September 11, 2008

Fort Worth, TX, September 11, 2008 – TransSolutions is celebrating its ten-year anniversary providing aviation and transportation engineering and consulting services for diverse clients around the world. Formed in 1998, the women-owned company was created in a management buyout from American Airlines' SABRE Transportation Planning Group. Co-founders and Managing Principals, Gloria G. Bender and Belinda G. Hargrove lead the firm whose services include planning solutions for transportation facilities, arenas and stadiums, public buildings, and educational facilities.

TransSolutions has extensive experience in the aviation industry, completing hundreds of analyses for airport authorities, airlines, and civil aviation administrations, successfully evaluating transportation infrastructure projects at 49 of the 50 largest airports in North America, and nine of the ten largest airports in the world. Since September 11, 2001, the firm has completed more than 50 security-related projects – including screening, staffing, and baggage handling systems for over half of the large hub airports in the U.S.

“We’re pleased to provide quality service to our clients and to continue to assist with their changing needs in today’s challenging environment,” said Ms. Bender. “As we look forward to the next decade, we are eager to continue to provide our clients with solutions they need and help them to be successful. It’s amazing it’s been 10 years already,” added Ms. Hargrove.
