

Financial Education in the Workplace

87%

of employees WANT financial education

3:1
or more ROI for employers who offer employees quality financial programs

$2,000

a year employers can save from a financially healthy employee

86%

of employees will participate in financial education

48%

are willing to pay some or all of the costs

51%

have not sought financial advice in the last 24 months

86%

feel that it is very to extremely important to have an EXPERIENCED financial educator providing financial education

80%

feel it is very to extremely important to have an ACCREDITED financial educator providing the education

Preferred formats for receiving financial education:

EMPLOYEE PREFERENCE

COST

LEARNING EFFECTIVENESS

Preferred times to participate in a financial education program are:

How employees are currently receiving their financial education:

25%
live webinar

64%
live seminar

45%
online self-study

30%
one-on-one coaching

Employees whose company provides financial education:

70%
receive it through online/self-taught or live webinars

68%
find the financial education provided to be very useful

65%
said their financial education came directly from their employer

45% feel their level of financial stress today is high to overwhelming
61% cited money as their #1 stressor
52% indicated distress over financial matters contributed to irritability, anger, fatigue and sleeplessness

1 hour/day

employees experiencing financial stress spend 13% of their workday dealing with money

<40% are satisfied with their present financial situation

To learn more about employee financial education for your business please contact:

Frank Wiginton, CEO
A Better Quality of Life Financial Consulting
www.employeefinancialeducation.ca frank@employeefinancialeducation.ca

© 2012 A Better Quality of Life Financial Consulting

Sources: Employee Financial Education Division – Financial Education in the Workplace Survey (Dec. 2011). Employee Financial Education Division – Whitepaper: Increase Profitability Through Employee Financial Literacy – Restore Productivity and Regain Organizational Commitment Through Employee Financial Education. Proposal to the Federal Task Force on Financial Literacy: “Educating Employers on the Value of Educating Employees on Financial Literacy”

