

Is Spring Home Remodeling Worth the Investment?

Why is Spring the Best Time to Start?

Though remodeling is always a good investment, with fair weather and warm temperatures, Spring is the ideal time to begin a remodeling project, especially an exterior remodeling project. Unlike winter, you don't have to worry about your project being delayed by any storms or exposing your new construction to harsh winter elements with a Spring remodel.

What Should You Remodel?

Why Should You Invest in a Spring Remodel?

Increase Curb Appeal

If you're selling your home soon, exterior updates and the addition of a custom deck, cabana, or pool will catch buyers' attention even before they step foot through the door.

Energy Efficiency

Increasing your outdoor living space and taking advantage of natural light helps save energy and lower your electrical bills.

Life Transitions

Remodeling during any time of the year can help your home transition with your family. Whether it is the birth of a new baby or an unexpected medical condition, reassess your family's needs and consider remodeling your home to meet them.

Return on Investment

Updating or remodeling your home helps increase your property value and ultimately its selling price.

How to Take the Next Step

Know Your Timeline

Make sure to be realistic about how long it will take to plan and complete a project so that it doesn't hamper any other upcoming plans.

Know Your Budget

Look at the scope of your project and know how much you can invest to bring the project to life.

Talk to a Contractor

Work with an experienced professional contractor to ensure that your project is a success from the start. Reputable contractors like Litchfield Builders will help you establish a realistic timeline, acquire the necessary permits, and overall guide you smoothly through the remodeling process.
