COLLABORATIVE SUPPLY PORTAL BY ULTRIVA CHOSEN AS ENERGY AND AEROSPACE COMPANY SOLUTION

Cupertino, CA – January 27, 2015 – Ultriva, Inc., provider of cloud-based supply chain execution software, announced the addition of a successful energy and aerospace manufacturer to their growing list of customers. The global manufacturer specializing in highly engineered, complex and severe environment products selected Ultriva as their technology provider and partner for their enterprise-wide Supply Chain Management software initiative.

The company will be executing a SaaS Enterprise Licensing Agreement for Ultriva's Collaborative Supply Portal (CSP), Lean Factory Management (LFM) and Quality Management System (QMS) modules. Plans are to implement all three modules at five plants in 2015 with additional plants slated for 2016 and beyond. Currently, six plants have been identified as implementation candidates for 2015. Within these six plants, there are five different ERP systems.

The international company operates two business units - energy products group and aerospace & defense - that provide precision-engineered system, subsystem, component, product, and service solutions which support a massive global infrastructure. From upstream, midstream and downstream oil and gas markets, to process and power, HVAC, maritime, pharmaceutical, analytical instrumentation, medical, and aerospace, and defense markets, the global manufacturer has the proven experience and technical capabilities to handle any application requirement. They are a major player in these markets with plans to grow their business through acquisitions.

Ultriva's Collaborative Supply Portal offers a transitional path to a demand driven enterprise. The Collaborative Supply Portal provides visibility of demand and supply so planners, buyers, and suppliers see a single version of truth. Ultriva's solution improves collaboration between plants and suppliers so they can interact and respond to unexpected changes in demand.
