

Dr. Steven Stein, MHS, Named Finalist for Ernst and Young Entrepreneur Of The Year Award

Toronto, ON – July 21, 2015 – The Ernst & Young Entrepreneur Of the Year Award™, which honors entrepreneurship and innovation in Canada, announced on July 9th that Multi-Health Systems Inc. (MHS) CEO, Dr. Steven Stein is a finalist in the category of Health Sciences.

"Canadian entrepreneurs succeed because they're always searching for better," says Colleen McMorrow, EY's national Entrepreneur Of The Year program director. "This year's Ontario finalists are some of the best and brightest stars we've seen."

MHS has put forth and executed great strategies in order to grow consistently over the past 30 years and serve the global community. A leading publisher of scientifically validated assessments, MHS serves clients in educational, clinical, corporate, government, military, pharmaceutical, and research settings. MHS has grown to become an international company with products sold in more than 75 countries and translated into over 50 languages.

"We are thrilled to be named a finalist." said Steven J. Stein, Ph.D., CEO of MHS. "When I started this company with my wife Rodeen 30 years ago in our basement, I never imagined it would become a global business."

Dr. Stein started MHS with the idea that children would reveal more to a computer than they do clinicians. He turned this idea into a business which today has more than 100 dedicated employees. Appreciating the benefits of technology for over 30 years, MHS continues to lead the pack with accessible and reliable online assessments designed to evaluate mental health issues, measure and manage talent, and manage risks to public safety.

Dr. Stein is a leading expert on psychological assessment and emotional intelligence, he has consulted to military and government agencies, including the U.S. Air Force, Army, and Navy; special units of the Pentagon; and the FBI Academy; as well as corporate organizations and professional sports teams.

Category finalists were chosen by an independent panel of judges. One category winner will be named the overall Ontario winner on October 29, 2015, who will go on compete with winners from four other regions – Pacific, Prairies, Quebec and Atlantic – to become Canada's EY Entrepreneur Of The Year. The Canadian winner will go on to compete globally with more than 50 countries for the title of EY World Entrepreneur Of The Year in June 2016.
