FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(August 20, 2009 – Temple, GA) Janus International has announced that it has expanded its line of portable storage containers. In addition to their MASS (Moveable Additional Storage Structures) units, Janus has added four more container styles, each with its own unique set of features. Some models are foldable and can be erected in 15 minutes, while others are stackable, which offers valuable land conservation. And because these structures are classified as equipment, they may carry tax advantages to the owner as well as eliminate lengthy zoning procedures.

“The market has been calling for these inventive and flexible types of containers,” says Ramey Jackson, Vice President of Sales. “We are offering these products as a cost-effective method of helping our customers expand their storage resources.”
