The Habitat for Humanity Greater San Francisco ReStore Receives
Large Building Materials Donation from GreenBuild Expo 2012

All proceeds from sale of items at discounted rates will go towards building Habitat homes for community in need

San Francisco — November 20, 2012 — Habitat for Humanity Greater San Francisco is pleased to announce its collaboration with GreenBuild 2012, the world's largest conference and expo dedicated to green building, as this year's key nonprofit partner. With more than 30,000 attendees and 1,000 exhibitors coming together annually to work in the global green movement, GreenBuild has donated all remaining building materials from the expo to the Habitat for Humanity ReStore located in San Carlos, California. All proceeds from the sale of these high-quality building materials will help fund Habitat for Humanity's mission to provide decent, affordable housing to low-income families in San Francisco, Marin and the Peninsula.

"We are honored to partner with GreenBuild 2012 to divert building materials to our store so that they do not end up as waste in the land fill," said Phillip Kilbridge, Executive Director, Habitat for Humanity Greater San Francisco. "All proceeds from the Habitat for Humanity Greater San Francisco ReStore are used to build new homes which in turn help low-income families in the Bay Area reach their dreams of homeownership."

Items donated from the GreenBuild Expo will be available for sale as early as Wednesday, November 28. Items include concrete formwork, carpeting, wood flooring and cork flooring. The ReStore is excited to grow as a part of the green building movement by acquiring this stock.

The Habitat for Humanity Restore in San Carlos is one of more than 825 Restores in the United States and Canada. It is a discount outlet that accepts and re-sells new and reusable furnishing items and home improvement building materials. Hours of operation are Wednesday thru Sunday from 9am to 5pm.
