Stephen King, CEO of GrowthForce, has been named to the Board of Directors of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants. TSCPA is a nonprofit, voluntary, professional organization representing Texas CPAs. King's term was effective June 1.

With 20 local chapters statewide and 28,000 members, TSCPA is the largest in-state membership of any CPA organization in the nation. The Society is committed to serving the public interest with programs that advance the highest standards of ethics and practice within the CPA profession.

King has served on the Board of The Houston CPA Society, a chapter of the TSCPA, since April 2009. With this new nomination, he takes on a larger role helping to guide the direction of the Board on both a local and state level.
