Chicago, Illinois –December 10, 2009 – PositiveVision, a leading provider of information technology for the food manufacturing industry in the greater Chicago area announces that it has been selected by Bernard Foods, Inc. to provide their ERP solution.

Bernard Foods has been providing award winning food products for both food service and retail trade since 1947. They manufacture hundreds of specialty products, developed for schools, camps, hospitals, cruise ships and other facilities. Their company is the largest family owned and operated food manufacturer in the United States.

Bob Baran, President of PositiveVision stated, "We were originally brought in to assist them with Y2K challenges, and have since become a trusted advisor for them, upgrading their manufacturing software solution and providing ongoing support. When they first came to us, they were struggling with their accounting systems and cash flow, and needed to untangle their numbers before Y2K. They were having trouble closing their books, and weren't able to get the information they needed out of their system. Given that we are also a small business, we were very aware of the significance of these challenges."

PositiveVision not only helped Bernard Foods through Y2K, but was also able to guide them through a cost effective systems upgrade that improved their reporting, invoicing, and inventory control, to name a few. Subsequently, Bernard Foods was so satisfied with the work PositiveVision did for them, they completely turned over all of their IT functions to PositiveVision who now ensures Bernard Foods has the tools they need to continue to grow their business going forward.

"We couldn't be happier with how it all turned out," stated Bill Silva, CFO at Bernard Foods, Inc. "We have peace of mind knowing that PositiveVision will help us with any challenges we face. They have completely taken care of our needs and put our company on the right track. We couldn't ask for anything more."
