Understand how general rate increases or new contract proposals will affect your business.

Now you can track your parcel shipping with precise detail, understanding exactly how changes in rates will impact your bottom line based on your unique shipping patterns.

The Parcel Tool will analyze your Parcel spend and give you the upper hand in negotiating your contracts as you understand where general rate increases will have the greatest impact on your specific shipping needs. Not only does The Parcel Tool give you a robust data set, you can obtain an updated data set on demand, so you can continuously monitor changes and the impact of potential future rate hikes.

Armed with this information, you know what process changes need to be made internally to save on shipping. You now also have strategic areas on which to focus when negotiating your next contract with the carriers, so you can maximize your savings.

This data will allow you to create savings opportunities both now and in the future.

With dimensional pricing going into effect next year for both FedEx and UPS, now is the time to invest in a tool that will help you determine the true impact on your business.
