The Budget includes two legislative proposals that will make it easier for the CDFI Fund to provide awards to highly qualified CDFIs. The first proposal waives the CDFI Program's 3-year, $5 million award cap for 2010. Under this proposal, the Fund will have the discretion to use some of its additional resources to fully fund high quality applicants that received awards in previous rounds. The second proposal waives the CDFI Program's matching provision for 2010, which requires applicants to match awards on a 1:1 basis with non-Federal funds. Given current credit market conditions, CDFIs may find it difficult to obtain affordable private credit. Under this proposal, CDFIs will be able to apply even if they are struggling to find a match. With the matching requirement waived, the CDFI Fund does not anticipate making new direct loans in 2010. The schedule above reflects this change.

The Emergency Economic Stabilization Act (EESA) of 2008 (P.L. 110-343) authorized the establishment of the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) and the Office of Financial Stability (OFS) to purchase and insure certain types of troubled assets for the purpose of providing stability to and preventing disruption in the economy and financial systems and protecting taxpayers. The Act gives the Treasury Secretary broad and flexible authority to purchase and insure mortgage and other troubled assets, as well as inject capital by taking limited equity positions, as needed to stabilize the financial markets. This account provides for the administrative costs for the OFS.

As authorized by the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (EESA) (P.L. 110-343) and required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, as amended, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the TARP direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 2008 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis using a risk-adjusted discount rate, as required by the 2008 Act.

The direct loan programs serviced by this account include the Automotive Industry Financing Program (AIFP) and other EESA Section 101 loans. The AIFP was developed to prevent a significant disruption of the American automotive industry, which would pose a systemic risk to financial market stability and have a negative effect on the economy of the United States. Funding shown for other Section 101 loans represents a placeholder for future programs created under the TARP, and does not represent any specific programs. The guaranteed loan commitments serviced by this account include the Asset Guarantee Program (AGP). The AGP provides guarantees for assets held by systemically significant financial institutions that face a risk of losing market confidence due in large part to a portfolio of distressed or illiquid assets. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis.

The equity purchase programs serviced by this account include the Capital Purchase Program (CPP), the Systemically Significant Failing Institutions Program (SSFI), the Targeted Investment Program (TIP), and the Automotive Industry Financing Program (AIFP). The purpose of the CPP is to stabilize the financial system by building the capital base of healthy, viable U.S. financial institutions, which in turn will increase the capacity of those institutions to lend to businesses and consumers and support the economy. The SSFI is intended to provide stability and prevent disruptions to financial markets from the failure of a systemically significant institution. The AIFP was developed to prevent a significant disruption of the American automotive industry, which would pose a systemic risk to financial market stability and have a negative effect on the economy of the United States. The Office of the Special Inspector General for the Troubled Assets Relief Program ("SIGTARP") was created by the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 ("EESA") and is funded by a permanent appropriation. SIGTARP has the duty to conduct, supervise, and coordinate audits and investigations of funding provided under the Troubled Assets Relief Program ("TARP"). SIGTARP's mission is to advance the goal of economic stability through transparency, coordinated oversight, and robust enforcement of relief funding, thereby being a voice for, and protecting the interests of, those who fund the TARP programs — the American taxpayers.

Since its creation on December 15, 2008, SIGTARP has established regular lines of communication with TARP managers, developed relationships with the other TARP oversight bodies, founded a TARP-Inspector General Council (made up of all inspectors general with oversight responsibilities for TARP), entered into partnerships with other criminal and civil law enforcement agencies, and developed recommendations relating to the transparency and accountability of TARP operations, contracts, and program designs. SIGTARP is building its organization as rapidly as possible through the hiring of experienced senior executives and by utilizing the resources of other agencies to commence its audit and investigation programs.

In 2010, SIGTARP will continue to design and conduct programmatic audits of Treasury's TARP operations, as well as recipients' compliance with their obligations under relevant law and contract. SIGTARP will also conduct and supervise criminal and civil investigations into any parties suspected of TARP-related fraud, waste, or abuse. Future funding needs are under review. If additional resources are necessary, a request will be made.

Section 1117 of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (P.L. 110-289) provides temporary authority for the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase obligations and other securities issued by three housing related Government Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs): Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac and the Federal Home Loan Banks (FHLBs). Under this authority, in 2008 Treasury entered into agreements with Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to make investments of up to $100 billion in senior preferred stock in each GSE in order to ensure that each company maintains a positive net worth. The function of the Preferred Stock Purchase Agreements (PSPAs) is to instill confidence in investors that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac will remain viable entities critical to the functioning of the housing and mortgage markets. This measure enhances market stability by providing additional security to holders of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac securities, which, in turn, leads to increased mortgage affordability by providing additional confidence to investors in GSE mortgage-backed securities. This commitment also eliminates any mandatory triggering of receivership. To this end, the PSPAs are an effective means of averting systemic risk while at the same time protecting the taxpayer. In exchange for the substantial funding commitment the Treasury received $1 billion in preferred stock for each GSE and warrants to purchase up to a 79.9 percent share of common stock at a nominal price. On February 18, 2009, Treasury announced that the funding commitments for these agreements would be increased to $200 billion each.

The function of the GSE MBS Purchase Program is to help improve the availability of mortgage credit to American homebuyers. To promote the stability of the mortgage market, Treasury has purchased GSE MBS in the secondary market. By purchasing these guaranteed securities, Treasury is seeking to broaden access to mortgage funding for current and prospective homeowners as well as to promote market stability. Treasury estimates that it will purchase $60 billion of GSE MBS securities under this program in 2010. The size and timing of this program is subject to the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. The scale of the program is based on developments in the capital markets and housing markets. Given that Treasury can hold these securities to maturity, the spreads between Treasury issuances and GSE MBS indicate that there is little likelihood to expect taxpayer losses from this program, and, in fact, it could result in a positive return. Treasury's authority to purchase GSE MBS expires on December 31, 2009.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with GSE MBS purchases, which are treated as direct loans for budget execution. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis.

(The reserve reflects the net budgetary cost to the Government that would support $750 billion in asset purchases.) The existence of this reserve in the Budget does not represent a specific request. Rather as events warrant, the Administration will work with Congress to determine the appropriate size and shape of such efforts.

For the 2010 Budget, the Financial Management Service (FMS) will focus its efforts on the following four areas:

1. Payments — FMS develops and implements payment policy and procedures for the Federal Government, issues and distributes payments, promotes the use of electronics in the payment process, and assists agencies in converting payments from paper checks to electronic funds transfer. This includes controlling and providing financial integrity to the Federal payments and collections process through reconciliation, accounting, and claims activities. The claims activities settle claims against the United States resulting from Government checks which have been forged, lost, stolen, or destroyed, and collects monies from those parties liable for fraudulent or otherwise improper negotiation of Government checks.

WORKLOAD STATISTICS

(Thousands)

	2008 actual	2009 est.	2010 est.
Number of check claims submitted	1,461	1,200	1,200
Number of check payments	205,604	203,551	201,380
Number of electronic payments	793,832	808,727	831,828

2. Collections — FMS implements collections policy, regulations, standards, and procedures for the Federal Government, facilitates collections, promotes the use of electronics in the collections process, and assists agencies in converting collections from paper to electronic media.

3. Debt Collection — FMS provides debt collection operational services to client agencies that include collection of delinquent accounts, child support debt, offsets of Federal payments against debts owed to the Government, post-judgment enforcement, consolidation of information reported to credit bureaus, reporting for discharged debts or vendor payments, and disposition of foreclosed property.

The Budget includes two legislative proposals that will expand Treasury's ability to collect delinquent taxes from Federal vendors. The first proposal authorizes post-levy due process for levies issued against Federal vendor payments. The second proposal provides a technical correction to the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004, which will allow Treasury to levy 100% of all Federal vendor payments.

4. Government-wide Accounting and Reporting — FMS provides financial accounting, reporting, and financing services to the Federal Government and the Government's agents who participate in the payments and collections process by generating a series of daily, monthly, quarterly and annual Government-wide reports. FMS also works directly with agencies to help reconcile reporting differences.

This account pays interest on the invested balances of guaranteed and direct loan financing accounts. For guaranteed loan financing accounts, balances result when the accounts receive up-front payments and fees to be held in reserve to make payments on defaults. Direct loan financing accounts normally borrow from Treasury to disburse loans and receive interest and principal payments and other payments from borrowers. Because direct loan financing accounts generally repay borrowing from Treasury at the end of the year, they can build up balances of payments received during the year. Interest on invested balances is paid to the financing accounts from the general fund of the Treasury, in accordance with section 505(c) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990.

Appropriations are made for cases in which the Federal Government is found by courts to be liable for payment of claims and interest for damages not chargeable to appropriations of individual agencies and for payment of private and public relief acts. Public Law 95-26 authorized a permanent, indefinite appropriation to pay certain judgments from the general funds of the Treasury.

This account was created to provide loan guarantees for the construction of biomass-to-ethanol facilities, as authorized under Title II of the Energy Security Act of 1980. All of the loans guaranteed by this account went into default. The guarantees have been paid off, and the assets of all but one of the projects have been liquidated. The one remaining project, the New Energy Company of Indiana, continues to make payments to the Treasury on their loan, which the Government acquired after paying off the guarantee.

The Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security, collects duties assessed pursuant to a countervailing duty order, an antidumping duty order, or a finding under the Antidumping Act of 1921. Under a provision enacted in 2000, the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, through the Treasury, distributes these duties to affected domestic producers. These distributions provide a significant additional subsidy to producers that already gain protection from the increased import prices provided by the tariffs. The authority to distribute assessments collected after October 1, 2007 has been repealed. Assessments collected before October 1, 2007 will be disbursed as if the authority had not been repealed.

This fund was established as a permanent, indefinite appropriation in order to maintain adequate funding of the Check Forgery Insurance Fund. The Fund facilitates timely payments for replacement Treasury checks necessitated due to a claim of forgery. The Fund recoups disbursements through reclamations made against banks negotiating forged checks.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds through reclamation procedures, the Fund sustains the loss.

Public Law 108-447 expanded the use of the fund to include payments made via electronic funds transfer. A technical correction to the Fund's statutes to ensure and clarify that the Fund can be utilized as a funding source for relief of administrative disbursing errors was enacted by section 119 of Division D of Public Law 110-161.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created in 1973 to reduce the costs of certain Federal and federally assisted borrowing and to ensure the coordination of such borrowing from the public in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. Prior to that time, many agencies borrowed directly from the private market to finance credit programs involving lending to the public at higher rates than on comparable Treasury securities. With the implementation of the Federal Credit Reform Act in 1992, however, agencies simply finance such loan programs through direct loan financing accounts that borrow directly from the Treasury. Therefore, FFB loans are now used primarily to finance direct agency activities such as construction of Federal buildings by the General Services Administration and activities of the U.S. Postal Service. The FFB is also providing loans to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the National Credit Union Administration to finance programs that address the credit crisis. In certain cases, the FFB finances Federal direct loans to the public that would otherwise be made by private lenders and fully guaranteed by a Federal agency.

Lending by the FFB may take one of three forms, depending on the authorizing statutes pertaining to a particular agency or program: (1) the FFB may purchase agency financial assets; (2) the FFB may acquire debt securities that the agency is otherwise authorized to issue to the public; and (3) the FFB may originate direct loans on behalf of an agency by disbursing loans directly to private borrowers and receiving repayments from the private borrower on behalf of the agency. Because law requires that transactions by the FFB be treated as a means of financing agency obligations, the budgetary effect of the third type of transaction is reflected in the budget in the following sequence: a loan by the FFB to the agency, a loan by the agency to a private borrower, a repayment by a private borrower to the agency, and a repayment by the agency to the FFB.

By law, the FFB receives substantially less interest each year on certain Department of Agriculture loans that it holds than it is contractually entitled to receive. For example, during 2008, as a result of this provision, the FFB received $98 million less than it was contractually entitled to receive.

In 2007, net income of $533 million increased the FFB's net position from $1.8 billion to 2.4 billion. In 2008, the FFB's net income was $539 million, further increasing the net position to $2.9 billion.

In addition to its authority to borrow from the Treasury, the FFB has the statutory authority to borrow up to $15 billion from other sources. Any such borrowing is exempt from the statutory ceiling on Federal debt. FFB exercised this authority most recently in November 2004. In order to prolong Treasury's ability to operate under the then-$7.4 trillion debt ceiling, the FFB issued $14 billion of its own debt securities to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund (CSRDF) in exchange for $14 billion in special issue Treasury securities held by CSRDF. The FFB simultaneously redeemed these special issue Treasury securities with Treasury. This transaction extinguished $14 billion in securities that Treasury had issued to Government accounts (the CSRDF). An equivalent amount of the FFB's own debt to Treasury was reduced. The FFB debt held by the CSRDF will be redeemed beginning in 2009.

The following table shows the annual net lending by the FFB by agency and program and the amount outstanding at the end of each year.

The Budget includes a proposal to make modifications to the HOPE for Homeowners program, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. That program finances its activities by issuing bonds ("Hope Bonds") to the FFB. The Budget also includes a proposal affecting the premiums collected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's (FDIC's) Deposit Insurance Fund. FDIC is borrowing from the FFB to finance some of its activities to address the credit crisis.

The Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau (TTB) enforces the Federal laws and regulations relating to alcohol and tobacco by working directly and in cooperation with others to: (1) Provide the most effective and efficient system for the collection of all revenue that is rightfully due, eliminate or prevent tax evasion and other criminal conduct, and provide high quality service while imposing the least regulatory burden; and (2) Prevent consumer deception, ensure that regulated alcohol and tobacco products comply with Federal commodity, safety, and distribution requirements, and provide high quality customer service. The Budget proposes a new, permanent program requiring the payment of annual fees to the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade Bureau and permitting the agency to use those fees to cover the costs of its operation to the extent provided in annual appropriations acts.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing (BEP) designs, manufactures, and supplies Federal Reserve notes and other security instruments for various Federal agencies. Beginning in 2005, the BEP was given legal authority to print currency for foreign countries upon approval of the State Department.

The Bureau's vision is to maintain its position as a world-class securities printer providing its customers and the public superior products through excellence in manufacturing and technological innovation. The Bureau strives to produce U.S. currency of the highest quality, as well as many other security documents issued by the federal Government. Other activities at the Bureau include engraving plates and dies; manufacturing inks used to print security products; purchasing materials, supplies and equipment; and storing and delivering products in accordance with the requirements of customers. In addition, the Bureau provides technical assistance and advice to other Federal agencies in the design and production of documents, which, because of their innate value or other characteristics, require counterfeit deterrence.

The Bureau's top priorities for FY 2010 include the continued re-tooling and retrofitting of the currency production process which will allow the BEP to improve productivity, reduce its environmental impact and provide the needed capabilities to produce increasingly more complex currency note designs. This new equipment will ensure that the BEP continues to operate in an efficient and cost-effective manner. Another top priority for FY 2010 is the redesign the $100 note. Development of a redesigned $100 note is currently in process. BEP expects to gain design approval by the Secretary of Treasury and the note will be scheduled for production in the 2009/2010 time frame. The Federal Reserve will determine when the new note is issued to the public. Because aggressive law enforcement, effective design, and public education are all essential components of a concerted anti-counterfeiting program, the Bureau will continue its work with the Advanced Counterfeit Deterrent Committee to research and develop future currency designs that will enhance and protect future notes.

For 2010, the Budget proposes legislation that would make available up to $5,000 from the Bureau's Industrial Revolving Fund for necessary official reception and representation expenses.

The operations of the Bureau are currently financed by means of a revolving fund established in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 656, August 4, 1950 (31 U.S.C. 181), which requires the Bureau to be reimbursed by customer agencies for all costs of manufacturing products and services performed. The Bureau is also authorized to assess amounts to acquire capital equipment and provide for working capital needs.

The United States Mint manufactures coins, sells numismatic and investment products, and provides security and asset protection. Public Law 104-52, dated November 19, 1995, enacted 5136, of Subchapter III of chapter 51 of subtitle IV of title 31, United States Code established the United States Mint Public Enterprise Fund (the Fund). The Mint submits annual audited business-type financial statements to the Secretary of the Treasury and to Congress in support of the operations of the revolving fund.

The operations of the Mint are divided into three major components: Circulating Coinage; Numismatic and Investment Products; and Protection. The Mint is credited with receipts from its circulating coinage operations equal to the full cost of producing and distributing the coins that are put into circulation, plus the depreciation of the Mint's plant and equipment on the basis of current replacement value. From that, the Mint pays its cost of operations, which includes production and distribution costs. The difference between the face value of the coins and these costs is considered an "other financing source" and is deposited as seigniorage to the general fund. In 2008, the Mint transferred $750 million to the general fund. If any seigniorage was used to finance the Mint's capital acquisitions it would be recorded as budget authority in the year that funds are obligated for this purpose and as receipts over the life of the asset. No seigniorage has been used for this purpose in recent years.

Circulating Coinage.—This activity funds the manufacture of circulating coins for sale to the Federal Reserve System as determined by public demand. In 2010, this activity will manufacture 8.5 billion coins for sale to the Federal Reserve System.

In 2007, the United States Mint introduced a new Presidential $1 Coin Program as authorized by the Presidential $1 Coin Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-145). As required by legislation, the Presidential dollar coin specifications are similar to the Golden Dollar featuring Sacagawea and released into circulation at the rate of four different coin designs per year beginning in 2007 through 2018. Each coin design will honor former presidents of the United States in the order in which they served the nation.

Numismatic and Investment Products.—This activity funds the manufacture of numismatic and bullion coins, medals, and other products for sale to collectors and the general public. These coins include annual recurring programs such as proof and uncirculated sets, silver proof coins, the American Eagle gold and silver bullion uncirculated and proof coins, American Eagle platinum coins, 24-Karat gold coins, and national and historic medals. The activity also includes nonrecurring programs for coins and medals which are legislated to commemorate specific events or individuals. In 2010 this activity will fund any new or pending commemorative coin program as legislated by Congress. The Fifty State Quarters Program, which began in 1999, ended in December 2008 and is followed by a one-year commemorative quarter program to honor the District of Columbia, and the Territories (Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands). Beginning in 2010 through 2020, the United States Mint will mint and issue "America's Beautiful National Parks Quarter Dollar Coins" in accordance with Public Law 110-456. This program honors national parks and sites in each of the 50 states in the order in which they were first established as a national park or site. Similar to the issuance of the 50 State Quarters Program, five different coin designs will be issued each year of this program. All coins produced for this program are considered to be numismatic products.

Protection.—This activity funds protection of the Government's stock of gold and silver bullion, coins, Mint employees and visitors, plant facilities and equipment, and all other Mint property against abuse, theft, damage, disorders, and all other unsafe or illegal practices by utilizing police officers and modern protective devices.

The Bureau of the Public Debt (BPD) borrows the money needed to operate the federal government, accounts for the resulting debt and provides reimbursable support services to federal agencies. BPD will position Treasury to eliminate new issues of paper savings bonds, improve the quality and efficiency of service to retail customers, and continue to adopt technological advances to ensure Public Debt's systems remain secure.

This appropriation provides funds for the conduct of all Public Debt operations, which is comprised of four main activities:

Wholesale Securities Services.—This program supports the announcement, auction, issuance and settlement of marketable Treasury bills, notes, bonds and TIPS. It also provides an efficient infrastructure for the transfer, custody and redemption of these securities. BPD administers Treasury's regulations that provide investor protection and maintain the integrity, liquidity and efficiency of the government securities market.

Government Agency Investment Services.—This program supports federal, state and local government agency investments in non-marketable Treasury securities as well as federal agency borrowing from Treasury. There are more than 240 trust and investment funds held by federal agencies and, for 18 of the funds, Public Debt acts for the Secretary of the Treasury as managing trustee. These include some of the more recognizable federal trust funds such as Social Security, Medicare, Unemployment, and Highway.

Retail Securities Services.—This program manages marketable and non-marketable securities held directly with Treasury by more than 50 million retail customers. Besides the issuance and redemption of securities, services include processing customer service requests of varying complexity. These functions are performed directly by Public Debt, by Federal Reserve Banks as fiscal agents of the United States, and by qualified agents that issue and redeem savings bonds and notes.

Summary Debt Accounting.—This program is key to meeting Public Debt's responsibility to account for the public debt and related annual interest expenses. The program produces daily reports on the balance and composition of the public debt and also provides the overarching control structure for numerous subsidiary securities systems and their related transactions and cash flows.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) collects the revenue that funds the government and administers the nation's tax laws. The IRS serves every individual, business, and non-profit organization in the nation, and processes over 249 million tax returns annually. In FY 2008, the IRS collected $2.7 trillion in taxes (gross receipts before tax refunds), 96 percent of federal government receipts.

The IRS taxpayer service program helps millions of taxpayers understand and meet their tax obligations. The IRS enforcement program is aimed at deterring taxpayers inclined to evade their responsibilities while vigorously pursuing those who violate tax laws.

The IRS Strategic Plan 2009-2013 guides program and budget decisions and supports the Department of the Treasury Strategic Plan. The IRS Strategic Plan recognizes the increasing complexity of tax laws, changing business models, expanding use of electronic data and related security risks, accelerating growth in international tax activities, and growing human capital challenges.

The IRS strategic goals are: (1) Improve Service to Make Voluntary Compliance Easier and (2) Enforce the Law to Ensure Everyone Meets Their Obligation to Pay Taxes.

To improve service to make voluntary compliance easier, the IRS must incorporate taxpayer perspectives to improve all service interactions; expedite and improve issue resolution across all interactions with taxpayers; provide taxpayers with targeted, timely guidance and outreach; and strengthen partnerships with tax practitioners, preparers, and other third parties.

To enforce the law to ensure everyone meets their obligation to pay taxes, the IRS must proactively enforce the law in a timely manner while respecting taxpayer rights and minimizing taxpayer burden; expand enforcement approaches and tools; meet the challenges of international tax administration; allocate compliance resources using a data-driven approach to target existing and emerging high risk areas; continue focused oversight of the tax-exempt sector; and ensure that all tax practitioners, tax preparers, and other third parties in the tax system adhere to professional standards and follow the law.

To achieve its service and enforcement goals, the IRS must be the best place to work in government; build and deploy advanced information technology systems, processes, and tools to improve IRS efficiency and productivity; use data and research across the organization to make informed decisions and allocate resources; and ensure the privacy and security of data and safety and security of employees.

The FY 2010 President's Budget Request provides $12,126 million for the IRS to implement key strategic priorities.

Enforcement Program.—The 2010 Budget includes an Enforcement account increase of nearly $400 million in 2010, including $332.2 million to target and reduce the tax gap by investing in a strong compliance program. This increase is supported by a program integrity allocation adjustment totalling $890,000,000, which includes funding from both the Enforcement ($600,000,000) the Operations Support account ($290,000,000).

In 2008 direct revenue from enforcement activities totaled $56.4 billion. Vigorous enforcement encourages voluntary compliance, further increasing revenue. Increased resources for the IRS compliance programs yield direct measurable results through high return-on-investment activities. The new enforcement personnel funded in the FY 2010 President's Budget will generate $2.0 billion in additional annual enforcement revenue once the new hires reach full potential in FY 2012. However, this estimate does not include the revenue impact from the deterrence value of these investment and other IRS enforcement programs which are conservatively estimated to be at least three times the direct revenue impact.

Taxpayer Service Program.—The 2010 Budget continues improvements to both the quality and efficiency of taxpayer service, using a variety of person-to-person, telephone, and web-based methods to help people understand their tax obligations and pay their taxes. The IRS Service Program is funded in the Taxpayer Services and Operations Support appropriations.

In 2010, the IRS will increase self-service applications, continue to ensure web navigation is user-friendly and improve the quality and accuracy of its telephone responses. As a result of recent technology enhancements, including electronic filing and the IRS website, more taxpayers reach the IRS through the internet. For example, in 2008, more than 2.2 billion web pages were viewed on www.irs.gov, and more than 39.2 million taxpayers checked their refund status by accessing "Where's My Refund?" in English or Spanish on the IRS website. Taxpayers can also use automated features found at 1-800-829-1040. In addition, efforts to increase electronic filing will continue by adding new forms and schedules to the business electronic portfolio and leveraging partner organizations such as tax software providers and state taxing authorities.

Modernization Program.—The Budget continues funding for the Business Systems Modernization Program to give the IRS employees the technology tools they need to continue to administer and improve both service and enforcement. The Budget provides $254 million for continued investments in modernized taxpayer databases and electronic filing systems.

status; examining tax returns of exempt organizations; enforcing statutes relating to detection and investigation of criminal violations of the internal revenue laws; identifying under reporting of tax obligations; securing unfiled tax returns; and collecting unpaid accounts.

The Administration proposes total program integrity funding of $890,000,000 for enhanced tax enforcement activities. Full funding of these cost increases and new enforcement investments is important. The Administration proposes to fund a portion of them as contingent appropriations. To ensure full funding of proposed tax enforcement activities, the Administration proposes to employ a budget enforcement mechanism that allows for an adjustment by the Budget Committees to the section 302(a) allocation to the Appropriations Committees found in the concurrent resolution on the budget. To ensure full funding of the cost increases, this adjustment would be permissible only if the base level for tax enforcement within the Enforcement account was funded at a minimum of $4,904,000,000.

In previous years, an allocation adjustment was applied to the total enforcement activity level, which included the entirety of the Enforcement account and over half of the Operations Support account. For 2010, the Administration proposes to apply the allocation adjustment only to the Enforcement account base of $4,904,000,000. The maximum allowable funding for enhanced tax enforcement would be $890 million for 2010. Of this amount, $600,000,000 to support enhanced tax enforcement activities is requested as an allocation adjustment in the Enforcement account. In addition, the proportion of the Operations Support appropriation that directly supports Enforcement account activities (which includes $290,000,000 to support enhanced tax enforcement) would be funded as a regular appropriation, provided that such sums were appropriated within the Operations Support account to fully support both the base and enhanced tax enforcement activities. The Administration proposes this adjusted structure because it mitigates budget execution problems that may arise independent of the Administration's request. See additional discussion on pages 40-41 of the budget document A New Era of Responsibility.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) includes additional funding to implement and administer the health insurance tax credit under the TAA Health Coverage Improvement Act of 2009.

This appropriation provides resources for support functions that are essential to the successful operation of IRS programs. These functions include: overall planning and direction of the IRS; shared service support related to facilities maintenance, rent payments, printing, postage and security; resources for headquarters management activities such as communications and liaison, finance, human resources, Equal Employment Opportunity and diversity; research and statistics of income; and necessary expenses for telecommunication support and the development and maintenance of IRS operational information systems. Within this appropriation, $290,000,000 is included to support program integrity funding for enhanced tax enforcement activities. This amount is part of the total IRS enhanced tax enforcement funding of $890,000,000. The allocation adjustment is applied to only the Enforcement account in 2010. For the Operations Support account, such sums must be made available to fully support the Enforcement account base. The appropriations language for enhanced tax enforcement is not in a general provision as in years past, though the appropriations rely on sufficient action in both accounts to trigger the maximum allowable program integrity funding, as described in the Enforcement account above.

This appropriation provides resources for revamping IRS business practices and acquiring new technology. The IRS uses a formal methodology to evaluate, prioritize, approve, and fund its portfolio of business systems modernization investments. This methodology provides a documented, repeatable, and measurable process for managing investments throughout their life cycle. The process is reviewed by the Government Accountability Office on a regular basis as part of the submission requirements for expenditure plans submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

In 2009, the IRS shifted its focus from concurrent development of a database and associated applications to a strategy that focuses on completion of the core taxpayer account database. This approach will allow the IRS to accelerate data conversion to the new database while also addressing security, financial material weaknesses, and long-term architectural planning concerns. Once completed, the core database will improve the overall functionality of existing modernization systems, as well as improve overall customer service to taxpayers.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) allows State and local governments to issue Build America Bonds through December 31, 2010. These tax credit bonds, which include Recovery Zone Bonds, differ from tax-exempt governmental obligation bonds in two principal ways: (1) interest paid on tax credit bonds is taxable; and (2) a portion of the interest paid on tax credit bonds takes the form of a federal tax credit. The bond issuer may elect to receive a direct payment in the amount of the tax credit.

As provided by law, there are instances wherein the earned income tax credit (EITC) exceeds the amount of tax liability owed through the individual income tax system, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The EITC was originally authorized by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-12) and made permanent by the Revenue Adjustment Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-600). The Tax Reform Act of 1986 and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1990 and 1993 increased the credit amount and expanded the eligibility for the EITC.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) temporarily increases the EITC for working families with three or more children, and increases the threshold for the phase-out range for all married couples filing a joint return.

Effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2010, the Administration proposes to permanently extend: (1) the 45 percent credit percentage for families with three or more qualifying children; and (2) the increase ($5,000 for 2009, indexed for inflation for 2010) in the income thresholds for the phaseout of the EITC for married taxpayers filing a joint return (regardless of the number of children) above the income thresholds for the phaseout of the EITC for other taxpayers.

The Economic Stimulus Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-185) allowed for the issuance of tax rebates (economic stimulus payments) to certain eligible taxpayers through December 31, 2008. This tax rebate was a one-time benefit provided to taxpayers to stimulate the economy. Additionally, in 2009 the rebate were provided to taxpayers who did not receive the full economic stimulus payment in 2008 and whose circumstances may have changed, making them eligible for some or all of the unpaid portion. No outlays are expected from this account in 2010, as the one-time program is no longer active.

As provided by law, there are instances wherein the child credit exceeds the amount of tax liability owed through the individual income tax system, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The child credit was originally authorized by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-34).

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) expanded the pool of eligible low-income earners. The credit is refundable to the extent of 15 percent of an individual's earned income in excess of $3,000 for 2009 and 2010.

The Trade Act of 2002 established the Health Coverage Tax Credit (HCTC), an advanceable, refundable tax credit for a portion of the cost of qualified insurance. This credit is available to certain recipients of trade adjustment assistance (TAA) and Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation pension beneficiaries who are aged 55-64.

The HCTC program was expanded by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5). Increased benefits for certain HCTC eligible individuals include payment of 80 percent (up from 65 percent) of health insurance premiums, up to 24 months of coverage for qualified family members, and extension of COBRA benefits. This schedule reflects the effects of HCTC and other Administration health-related tax proposals in cases where the credit exceeds the tax liability resulting in payment to the tax filer.

COBRA gives workers who lose their jobs, and thus their health benefits, the right to purchase group health coverage provided by the plan under certain circumstances. This continuation coverage is provided pursuant to part 6 of subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (other than section 609), title XXII of the Public Health Service Act, section 4980B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (other than under subsection (f)(1) of such section insofar as it relates to pediatric vaccines), or section 8905(a) of 5 U.S.C., or under a State program that provides comparable continuation coverage.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) treats assistance eligible individuals who pay 35 percent of their COBRA premium as having paid the full amount. The remaining 65 percent is reimbursed to the employer, insurer or health plan as a credit against certain employment taxes. This schedule reflects the cases where the credit exceeds the tax liability resulting in the payment to the tax filer.

The Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-289) provided a refundable tax credit of up to $7,500 for first-time homebuyers. The credit allows for up to 10 percent of the purchase price for qualified residences. Taxpayers who qualify are allowed a one-time credit against their income tax for principal residences purchased on or after April 9, 2008, and before July 1, 2009. They must repay the credit over a 15-year period.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) expanded the credit and eliminated the repayment requirement. Taxpayers have the option of claiming up to $8,000 on either their 2008 or 2009 tax returns for qualifying 2009 purchases. The credit is available for qualifying purchases made between January 1, 2009 and November 30, 2009.

The American Jobs Creation Act of 2004 (Public Law 108-357) allows the IRS to use private collection contractors to supplement its own collection staff's efforts to ensure that all taxpayers pay what they owe. The IRS used this authority to contract with several private debt collection agencies starting in 2006. In March 2009, the IRS allowed its private debt collection contracts to expire, thereby administratively terminating the program.

As provided by law (26 U.S.C. 7623), the Secretary of the Treasury may make payments to individuals resulting from information given that leads to the collection of Internal Revenue taxes. The Taxpayer Bill of Rights of 1996 (Public Law 104-168) provides for payments of such sums to individuals from the proceeds of amounts (other than interest) collected by reason of the information provided, and any amount collected shall be available for such payments. This information must lead to the detection of underpayments of taxes, or detection and bringing to trial and punishment persons guilty of violating the Internal Revenue laws (in cases where such expenses are not otherwise provided for by law). This provision was further amended by the Tax Relief and Health Care Act of 2006 (Public Law 109-432) to encourage use of the program. A reward payment typically ranges of between 15 and 30 percent of the collected proceeds for cases involving high income non-compliant taxpayers. They allow for lower payments where information is provided that was already available from another source.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966, to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. During the process of collecting unpaid taxes, the government places a tax lien on real estate in order to protect the government's interest. Situations arise where property of this nature is collateral for other indebtedness and the tax lien is subordinate to the original indebtedness. In this circumstance, it is often in the government's interest to purchase the property during the foreclosure sale. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lien-holder's equity but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds is applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665), rewritten and reenacted as the National Bank Act of 1864, provided for the chartering and supervising functions of OCC. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government securities. OCC receives no appropriated funds from Congress.

OCC charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration of charter applications.

Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed onsite examinations, which are conducted by a staff of approximately 2,099 national bank examiners. As of December 31, 2008, OCC supervised approximately 1,605 institutions with national charters and 50 Federal branches with total assets of nearly $8.7 trillion.

In addition, OCC considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank and applications from banks to establish branches. OCC also promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks and bank directors.

The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) was established by Congress as a bureau of the Department of the Treasury as part of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (12 U.S.C. 1811 note). OTS assumed the regulatory functions of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board dissolved by the same act.

OTS charters, examines, supervises, and regulates federal savings associations insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). OTS also examines, supervises, and regulates state-chartered, FDIC-insured savings associations and provides for the registration, examination, and regulation of savings association affiliates and holding companies. OTS sets capital standards for Federal and State savings associations and reviews applications of state-chartered thrifts for conversion to federal thrifts.

OTS receives no appropriated funds from Congress. Income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments on thrifts and holding companies, examination fees, and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. As of September 30, 2008, OTS regulated 818 thrifts with total assets of $1.18 trillion; OTS also supervises 469 holding company enterprises with approximately $8.1 trillion in U.S. domiciled consolidated assets.

For 2010, the budget requests total resources for the VA Medical Services appropriation of $37.6 billion. This includes $34.7 billion in appropriated budget authority and $2.9 billion to be collected in the Medical Care Collections Fund.

For the first time since January 2003, VA expands eligibility for VA health care to non-disabled veterans earning modest incomes. This expansion will bring nearly 550,000 eligible veterans into the VA health care system by 2013. The 2010 budget request provides the resources to achieve this level while maintaining high quality and timely care for lower-income and service-disabled veterans who currently rely on VA medical care.

Medical services.—Provides for a comprehensive, integrated health care delivery system that addresses the needs of eligible veterans and beneficiaries in VA medical centers, outpatient clinic facilities, contract hospitals, State homes, and outpatient programs on a fee basis. Hospital and outpatient care is also provided by the private sector for certain dependents and survivors of veterans under the Civilian Health and Medical Programs for the Department of Veterans Affairs (CHAMPVA).

Medical Care Collections Fund (MCCF).—VA estimates collections of $2.9 billion, representing 8 percent of available resources. VA has the authority to collect inpatient and outpatient co-payments, medication co-payments, and nursing home co-payments; authority for certain income verification; authority to recover third-party insurance payments from veterans for nonservice-connected conditions; and authority to collect revenue from enhanced use leases. These collections also include those collected from the Compensated Work Therapy Program, Compensation and Living Expenses Program, and the Parking Program.

PERFORMANCE MEASURES

Provide high quality health care.—Use of clinical practice guidelines in treating patients results in improved health of veterans and reduced use of services. The prevention index spotlights and summarizes a variety of evidence-based measures for high quality preventive health care. VHA's strategy to monitor satisfaction through patient surveys will identify areas of improvement in all medical services.

 The survey instrument used in the past has been discontinued. VHA has moved to a nationally standardized tool, a family of surveys known as Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Plans and Systems (CAHPS). 2009 will be a re-baseline year to determine both annual and strategic targets.

Access to medical care.—VA's strategy is to improve access and timeliness of service by reducing waiting times in specialty and primary care clinics for new patient appointments in medical centers nationwide and by relying more extensively on non-institutional forms of long-term care.

The purpose of the Joint Incentive Fund (JIF) is to enable the Departments to carry out a program to identify and provide incentives to implement creative sharing initiatives at the facility, intra-regional and nationwide levels. The JIF promotes collaboration and new approaches to problem solving to enable the Departments to more effectively service veterans. The Departments have established the fund and developed processes and criteria to solicit and select projects. Section 721 of the 2003 National Defense Authorization Act, Public Law 107-314, established the fund and requires VA and Department of Defense (DOD) to establish a joint incentive program. In 2010, each Secretary shall contribute a minimum of $15 million to the fund after the appropriation is enacted.

For 2010, the Budget requests total resources for the VA Medical Facilities appropriation of $4.7 billion. Medical Facilities provides for the operations and maintenance of the capital infrastructure required to provide health care to the Nation's veterans. These costs include utilities, engineering, capital planning, leases, laundry services, grounds maintenance, trash removal, house-keeping, fire protection, pest management, facility repair, and property disposition and acquisition.

Note.—In 2009, $490 million of the $1 billion appropriated in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 will be used for: an increased number of non-recurring maintenance projects and energy projects. VA will use these funds to reduce the Facilities Condition Assessment deficiencies and backlog. The remaining $510 million will be used in 2010 for these same types of non-recurring maintenance and energy projects.

For 2010, the total budgetary resources of $1.9 billion are comprised of $580 million in direct appropriations, $580 million in medical care support, and $774 million in federal and private sector grants. The research program will support 3,345 FTE through direct appropriation and a total of over 15,000 research staff through all funding sources. New Research Initiatives in 2010, totaling $48 million, will provide Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom veterans with critical needs research activity.

This account is an intramural program whose mission is to conduct research focused on the special health care needs of veterans and to balance the discovery of new knowledge and the application of these discoveries to advance the health and care of veterans and the Nation. VA is uniquely positioned to move scientific discovery from investigators' laboratories to patient care. In turn, VA clinician investigators identify new research questions for the laboratory at the patient's bedside, making the research program one of VA's most effective tools to improve the care of veterans. Embedding research within an integrated health care system with a state-of-the-art electronic health record creates a national laboratory for the discovery of new medical knowledge and the translation of that knowledge into improved health. VA scientists who partner with colleagues from other Federal agencies, academic medical centers, nonprofit organizations, and commercial entities nationwide further expand the reach and scope of VA research. Although VA R&D is an intramural program, through VA's academic affiliations as well as collaborations with other federal agencies, it is fully integrated with the larger biomedical research community. Veterans' health issues are addressed comprehensively in the following four program divisions and the medical care research support required for these programs:

Biomedical laboratory.—Supports preclinical research to understand life processes from a molecular, genomic, and physiological level in regard to diseases affecting veterans.

Clinical science.—Administers investigations (i.e., human subject research such as drug, surgical, single subject, pilot and multi-center cooperative studies as well as feasibility trials) aimed at instituting new, more effective clinical care.

Health services.—Supports studies to identify and promote effective and efficient strategies to improve the delivery of health care to veterans.

Rehabilitation.—Develops novel approaches to restoring veterans with traumatic amputation, central nervous system injuries, loss of sight and/or hearing, or other physical and cognitive impairments to full and productive lives.

VA's Medical and Prosthetic Research programs are included in the Federal Science & Technology (FS&T) budget.

VA has the authority to collect co-payments which are deposited into the Medical Care Collections Fund (MCCF) receipt account. As allowed by the provisions of the appropriations Acts, these receipts are transferred to the Medical Services appropriation where they remain available until expended for the purposes of this account. In 2008, $2.4 billion was collected in the MCCF receipt account and transferred to the Medical Services appropriation to provide health care to our veterans. These collections consist of co-payments from veterans for inpatient, outpatient, and nursing home care and prescribed medications; third-party insurance payments from veterans for nonservice-connected conditions; and collections from enhanced-use leases, the Compensated Work Therapy Program, Compensation and Living Expensed Program, and the Parking Program.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation, pension, and burial benefits to veterans and survivors.

Compensation is paid to veterans for disabilities incurred in or aggravated during active military service. Dependency and Indemnity Compensation is paid to survivors of servicepersons or veterans whose death occurred while on active duty or as a result of service-connected disabilities. Compensation and vocational rehabilitation is provided to the children of Vietnam veterans who were born with certain birth defects. The Secretary may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who uses a prescribed medication for a service-connected skin condition or wears a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Secretary, tends to damage or tear the clothing of such veteran.

Miscellaneous benefits provided for are:

COMPENSATION AND PENSIONS—Continued

(a) payments for claims made pursuant to the provision of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended;

(b) a special allowance (38 U.S.C. 1312) to dependents of certain Veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act; and

(c) payments authorized by the Equal Access to Justice Act.

The appropriation also provides for a program to allow VA to perform income matches for certain compensation recipients.

In accordance with Public Law 97-377, the Reinstated Entitlement Program for Survivors (REPS) program restores Social Security benefits to certain surviving spouses or children of veterans who died of service-connected causes.

Legislation is proposed to provide a cost-of-living adjustment comparable to the annual social security increase to recipients of disability compensation, dependency and indemnity compensation, and clothing allowances. The increase, effective with payments made on January 1, 2010, is expected to be 0.0 percent.

A veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period, disabilities considered permanent and total, and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases or veterans age 65 or older. Income support is provided at established benefit levels.

An automatic annual cost-of-living increase comparable to the annual social security increase is provided for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. The increase, effective with payments made on January 1, 2010, is expected to be 0 percent.

This appropriation finances educational assistance allowances for certain service persons, veterans, and for eligible dependents of those: (a) veterans who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability; and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action. In addition, certain disabled veterans are provided with vocational rehabilitation, specially adapted housing grants, and automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. Voluntary contributions by eligible servicepersons and matching contributions provided by the Department of Defense are included in the Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education Account.

The Post 9-11 GI Bill (Chapter 33).—Public Law 110-252, will greatly expand education benefits on August 1, 2009. Based on length of active duty service and training rate, trainees may be entitled to benefits including: tuition and fees, housing allowance, books and supplies stipend, kickers, and Yellow Ribbon matching payments. Certain active duty members of the Armed Forces may transfer benefits to a spouse or children.

All volunteer force educational assistance (Montgomery GI Bill).—Public Law 98-525, enacted October 19, 1984, established two new educational programs: an assistance program for veterans who enter active duty during the period beginning July 1, 1985; and an assistance program for certain members of the Selected Reserve. Public Law 108-375 established a program to provide educational assistance to members of the reserve components called or ordered to active service in response to a war or national emergency declared by the President or the Congress, in recognition of the sacrifices that those members make in answering the call to duty. The Readjustment Benefit appropriation pays the basic benefit allowance for veterans, except for certain Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education participants who transferred to the Montgomery GI Bill program. Supplementary educational assistance, Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education converters, reservists, and the National Call to Service Program are financed by payments from Department of Defense.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries under existing legislation.

Dependents' education and training.—This program provides benefits to children and spouses of veterans who died of a service-connected disability or whose service-connected disability is rated permanent and total. In addition, dependents of servicepersons missing in action or interned by a hostile foreign government for more than 90 days are also eligible. Special Assistance to Disabled Veterans.—Service-disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover the costs of subsistence, tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. In addition to monetary benefits, individuals may also receive rehabilitation evaluation, planning, and delivery services designed to move the veteran into a suitable job.

Automobile Grants and Adaptive Equipment.—Certain disabled veterans are provided with automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. An allowance, up to a maximum of $11,000, is provided to certain service-disabled veterans and servicepersons toward the purchase price of an automobile. Adaptive equipment and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment is also provided.

Specially Adapted Housing Grants.—Specially adapted housing grants, up to a maximum of $60,000, are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. Veterans who suffer service-connected blindness or who have lost the use of both upper extremities can receive up to $12,000.

Tuition Assistance.—Public Law 106-398, enacted October 30, 2000, allows the military services to pay up to 100 percent of tuition and expenses charged by a school for service members. If a service department pays less than 100 percent, a service member eligible for the Montgomery GI Bill Active-duty (MGIB) or the Post 9-11 GI Bill (Chapter 33) can elect to receive VA benefits for all or a portion of the remaining expenses. Public Law 108-454 established a program that provides availability of education benefits for payment for national admissions exams and national exams for credit at institutions of higher education.

The National Exams.—The benefit allows VA to reimburse for the fee charged for national tests for admission to institutions of higher learning and national tests providing an opportunity for course credit at institutions of higher learning.

Licensing and Certification Test Payments.—Under Public Law 106-419, veterans and other eligible persons may receive up to $2,000 to pay fees required for civilian occupational licensing and certification examinations needed to enter, maintain, or advance in employment in a vocation or profession, effective March 1, 2001.

National Call to Service.—The 2003 National Defense Authorization Act directs Department of Defense to offer an active duty enlistment option of 15 months plus training time to facilitate interest in National Service. Program participants will be given the opportunity to select one of the following incentives: a $5,000 enlistment bonus, repayment of student loans up to $18,000, or one of two education allowances.

The insurance business line administers six life insurance programs, including two trust funds, two public enterprise funds, a trust revolving fund, and Veterans' Mortgage Life Insurance (VMLI), and supervises two additional programs for the benefit of servicepersons, veterans, and their beneficiaries through contracts with a commercial company. All programs are operated on a commercial basis, to the extent possible, consistent with all applicable statutes. The insurance appropriation is the supplemental funding mechanism for the following Government life insurance activities: U.S. Government Life Insurance Fund (USGLI); National Service Life Insurance (NSLI); Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance Fund (S-DVI); and Veterans' Mortgage Life Insurance.

Military and Naval Insurance.—Payments are made to the USGLI fund for certain World War I veterans for extra hazards of military service and for claims on war risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

National Service Life Insurance (NSLI).—Payments are made to the NSLI fund for certain World War II veterans for: (a) extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons unable to apply for National Service Life Insurance; and (c) death claims on policies under the waiver of a premium while the insured was on active duty.

Payment to Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance Fund (S-DVI).—Payments are made to the S-DVI fund to supplement the premiums and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Veterans' Mortgage Life Insurance (VMLI).—Payments are made to mortgage holders under this program, which provides mortgage protection life insurance to veterans who have received a grant for specially adapted housing due to severe disabilities. The general decline in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force is expected to continue in 2010 as indicated in the following table.

The Insurance Act of 1951 established the Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance (S-DVI) program for veterans with service-connected disabilities. S-DVI is open to veterans who separated from the service on or after April 25, 1951. This fund finances the payment of claims on existing life insurance policies and remains open for new issues at standard rates to veterans having service-connected disabilities.

Operating costs

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

All other.—Represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the value of his or her policy.

The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is indicated in the following table.

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	2008 actual	2009 est.	2010 est.
Number of policies	194,583	201,560	207,667
Insurance in force (dollars in millions)	$1,965	$2,050	$2,123

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the Veterans Insurance and Indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $807 million by September 30, 2010.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance; (2) service-disabled rated insurance; and (3) nonservice-disabled insurance availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance.

Budget program

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—This represents resources for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and to those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the cash value of his policy at an interest rate adjusted to reflect private sector borrowing costs.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force:

Insurance in force (dollars in millions)	$383	$345	$309

four service academies, and members of the Reserve Officer Training Corps. SGLI coverage is available in $50,000 increments up to the maximum of $400,000. Veterans' Group Life Insurance (VGLI) is a program of post-separation insurance which allows service members to convert their SGLI coverage to renewable term insurance. Family Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance (FSGLI) is a program extended to the spouses and dependent children of members insured under the SGLI program. FSGLI provides up to a maximum of $100,000 of insurance coverage for spouses, not to exceed the amount of SGLI the insured member has in force, and $10,000 for dependent children. Spousal coverage is issued in increments of $10,000.

The Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance Traumatic Injury Protection Program (TSGLI) became effective December 1, 2005. TSGLI provides for payment between $25,000 and $100,000 (depending on the type of injury) to any member of the uniformed services covered by SGLI who sustains a traumatic injury that results in certain serious losses.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for these programs, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as for the administrative expenses of these programs. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

Veterans housing program account.—The housing program helps eligible veterans, active duty personnel, surviving spouses, and members of the Reserves and National Guard purchase homes by substituting the Federal Government's guaranty for a down payment that might otherwise be required when purchasing a home. Under 38 U.S.C. 3703 and Public Law 110-389 501, the guaranty amount from January 1, 2009 through December 31, 2011 for a borrower with full entitlement is as follows:

(a) 50 percent for loans of $45,000 or less;$22,500 for loans greater than $45,000, but no more than $56,250;

(b) The lesser of $36,000 or 40 percent of the loan amount for loans greater than $56,250, but not more than $144,000;

(c) 25 percent for loans in excess of $144,000 up to $417,000 or;

(d) The lesser of 25 percent of the loan amount or the maximum guaranty amount for loans greater than $417,000.

The maximum guaranty amount varies depending on the location of the property.

1) For all locations in the United States other than Alaska, Guam, Hawaii, and the U.S. Virgin Islands, the maximum guaranty amount is the greater of 25 percent of (a) $417,000 or (b) 125 percent of the area median price for a single-family residence, but in no case will the guaranty exceed $273,656.25.

2) In Alaska, Guam, Hawaii, and the U.S. Virgin Islands, the maximum guaranty amount is the greater of 25 percent of (a) $625,500 or (b) 125 percent of the area median price for a single-family residence, but in no case will the guaranty exceed $410,484.38.

3) The maximum guaranty amounts set forth above will be adjusted annually. The next adjustment will affect loans closed on or after January 1, 2010.

The housing program also assists borrowers in retaining their homes during periods of temporary economic difficulty through foreclosure avoidance services.

Guaranteed transitional housing loans for homeless veterans program account.—Public Law 105-368, the Veterans Benefits Improvement Act of 1998, established a pilot project designed to expand the supply of transitional housing for homeless veterans and to guarantee up to 15 investment loans with a maximum aggregate value of $100 million. The project must enforce sobriety standards and provide a wide range of supportive services such as counseling for substance abuse and job readiness skills. Residents will be required to pay a reasonable fee.

This appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and operational support to VA's housing business line.

The housing program facilitates the extension of private capital, on more liberal terms than generally available to nonveterans, to assist veterans and servicepersons in obtaining housing credit, and assist veterans in retaining their homes during periods of temporary economic difficulty through intensive supplemental mortgage loan servicing.

This fund was established in 1940. It is for the World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program. Over 22 million policies were issued under this program. Activity of the fund reflects a declining claim workload. The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is shown as follows:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	2008 actual	2009 est.	2010 est.
Number of policies	921,942	831,170	742,661
Insurance in force (dollars in millions)	$10,651	$9,744	$8,838

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans Insurance and Indemnities appropriation.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special interest-bearing Treasury securities and in policy loans, are expected to decrease from an estimated $9,167 million as of September 30, 2009 to $8,498 million as of September 30, 2010. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of September 30, 2010, totals $8,261 million, leaving a balance of $237 million for contingency reserves.

The status of the fund, excluding noncash transactions, is as follows:

Note.—Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund was established in 1919 to receive premiums and pay claims on insurance issued under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	2008 actual	2009 est.	2010 est.
Number of policies	5,620	4,580	3,680
Insurance in force (dollars in millions)	$17	$14	$11

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from interest on investments and payments from the Veterans Insurance and Indemnities appropriation. Effective January 1, 1983, premiums were discontinued because reserves held in the fund were adequate to meet future liabilities of the program.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decrease from $27 million as of September 30, 2009, to $22 million as of September 30, 2010, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of September 30, 2010, totals $21 million, leaving a balance of $1 million for contingency reserves.

The mission of the National Cemetery Administration is to honor veterans with final resting places in national shrines and with lasting tributes that commemorate their service to our Nation. The National Cemetery Administration's vision is to serve all veterans and their families with the utmost dignity, respect, and compassion. Every national cemetery will be a place that inspires visitors to understand and appreciate the service and sacrifice of our Nation's veterans. There are four related programs managed by the National Cemetery Administration including: 1) burying eligible veterans and their family members in national cemeteries and maintaining the graves and their environs as national shrines; 2) administering grants to States in establishing, expanding, or improving State veterans cemeteries; 3) providing headstones and markers for the graves of eligible veterans in national, State, and private cemeteries; and 4) providing presidential memorial certificates to family and friends of deceased veterans, recognizing the veterans' contribution and service to the Nation.

The National Cemetery Administration also reflects budget information for the National Cemetery Gift Fund and the National Cemetery Administration Facilities Operation Fund. Through the Gift Fund, the Secretary is authorized to accept gifts and bequests which are made for the purpose of beautifying national cemeteries or are determined to be beneficial to such cemeteries, or are made for the purpose of the operation, maintenance, or improvement of the National Memorial Cemetery of Arizona. Through the Facilities Operation Fund, the Secretary is authorized to lease any undeveloped land and unused or underutilized buildings of the National Cemetery Administration, or parts or parcels thereof, for a term not to exceed 10 years. Proceeds from such leases are deposited in the Facilities Operation Fund, and are available to cover costs incurred by the National Cemetery Administration in the operation and maintenance of property of the Administration.

This appropriation funds the construction, replacement, rehabilitation, and expansion of water resources projects whose principal purpose is to provide commercial navigation, flood and storm damage reduction, or aquatic ecosystem restoration benefits to the Nation, and related activities. The Budget shows all funding provided through the Inland Waterways Trust Fund and Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund as transferred to and executed in the Construction account.

This account allocates funds based on performance-based guidelines, which improve the overall performance of the construction program by directing funds to high-performing ongoing projects and high-performing new construction starts. These guidelines focus construction funds on those investments within the three main mission areas of the Corps that provide the best return from a national perspective in achieving economic, environmental, and public safety objectives. To support the most sustainable investments in these missions that provide the Nation with high economic and environmental benefits, the Budget funds activities that complement multiple-project purposes and integrate environmental principles into traditional infrastructure efforts.

This account includes $155 million for work under the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), which represents 9 percent of the total amount in this account and 3 percent of the total amount in the Corps civil works program. Funding CERP at this level would not have a significant impact on the overall civil works program in 2010. Future levels of construction account funding for CERP will depend on the availability of funds, and the impact of such future funding on the overall civil works program cannot be determined at this time. Funding for the Department of the Interior (DOI) includes an additional $8 million for work under CERP.

This account also includes $60 million for other ecosystem restoration work in South Florida, including the Everglades ecosystem. Funding for DOI includes $56 million for such non-CERP work.

The 2010 Budget for the two agencies includes a total of $279 million for ecosystem restoration work in South Florida, of which $163 million is for CERP and $116 million is for non-CERP work.

This appropriation also funds the Corps continuing authorities programs, which involve the planning, design, and construction of smaller scale projects that do not require specific authorizing legislation.

This appropriation funds operation, maintenance, and related activities for water resources projects and related activities that the Corps operates and maintains. Work to be accomplished consists of dredging, repair, and operation of structures and other facilities, as authorized in various River and Harbor, Flood Control, and Water Resources Development Acts. Related activities include aquatic plant control, monitoring of completed projects where appropriate, removal of sunken vessels, and the collection of domestic waterborne commerce statistics. Key infrastructure that is of central importance to the Nation is given highest priority for funding in this account. The Budget shows all funding provided through the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund as transferred to and executed in the Operation and Maintenance account.

This appropriation funds all of the costs associated with protecting Corps facilities from potential security threats. It also funds the national emergency preparedness program under Executive Order 11490.

This account does not provide any funding in 2010 for the operation and maintenance of completed CERP projects because the Corps has not yet completed any such projects. Therefore, funding CERP operation and maintenance at this level would not have a significant impact on the overall Corps civil works program. The work scheduled for CERP over the next couple of years will likely involve the construction of some projects, but not their operation and maintenance. Future levels of funding for CERP operation and maintenance will depend on the pace of project construction and availability of funds. The impact of such future funding on the overall Corps civil works program cannot be determined at this time.

This revolving fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of plant and equipment used by the civil works program and for temporary financing of services chargeable to the civil works program. The fund also initially finances district operating expenses which the districts later reimburse with project-specific funds. In addition, payments are made into the fund when other agencies or entities use plant and equipment acquired by the fund.

The Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund is authorized under the Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-662, Title XIV), as amended. Revenue is derived from receipts from a 0.125 percent ad valorem tax imposed upon commercial users of specified U.S. ports, Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls, and investment interest. The Budget shows all funding provided through the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund as transferred to and executed in the Construction and Operation and Maintenance accounts.

The Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act authorized expenditures from this fund to finance up to 100 percent of Corps harbor operation and maintenance costs, including the operation and maintenance of Great Lakes navigation projects. The fund fully finances the operation and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Section 201 of Public Law 104-303 authorized the fund to pay the Federal share of the costs for the construction of dredged material disposal facilities that are necessary for the operation and maintenance of coastal or inland harbors, the dredging and disposal of contaminated sediments that are in or affect the operation and maintenance of Federal navigation channels, the mitigation of impacts resulting from Federal navigation operation and maintenance activities, and the operation and maintenance of dredged material disposal facilities for which fees have been collected and deposited in the fund.

The North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act (P.L. 103-182, section 683) authorized payment from the fund of administrative expenses incurred by the Department of the Treasury, the Corps, and the Department of Commerce related to administration of the harbor maintenance tax, but not to exceed $5 million in any fiscal year.

A 1995 United States Court of International Trade decision, United States Shoe Corp. v. United States (Case No. 94-11-00668), found the harbor maintenance tax unconstitutional under the export clause of the Constitution (Article I, section 9, clause 5), and enjoined the Customs Service from collecting the tax on exports. The Supreme Court affirmed that decision on March 31, 1998.

The Inland Waterways Trust Fund is authorized under the Inland Waterways Revenue Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-502), as amended by the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-662). The fund is used to pay one half of the costs associated with the construction, replacement, rehabilitation, and expansion of Federal inland waterways projects.

Revenue currently is derived from an excise tax imposed on diesel fuel for commercial vessels engaged in inland waterways transportation, plus investment interest. The Administration is proposing the adoption of an alternative funding source, which would replace the fuel tax.

The Budget shows all funding provided through the Inland Waterways Trust Fund as transferred to and executed in the Construction account.

The 2010 payment to the Military Retirement Fund includes funds for the amortization of the unfunded liability for all retirement benefits earned by military personnel for service prior to 1985. The amortization schedule for the unfunded liability is determined by the Department of Defense Retirement Board of Actuaries. Included in the unfunded liability are the consolidated requirements of the military departments to cover retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; retainer pay of enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps; and survivors' benefits.

The 2004 National Defense Authorization Act (P.L. 108-136) created additional benefits for certain retirees who receive disability compensation from the Department of Veterans Affairs and moved the responsibility for payments under the Combat Related Special Compensation program to the Military Retirement Fund. Any additional funding requirements for retirees with service prior to 1985 will be included in this payment.

Public Law 98-94 provided for accrual funding of the military retirement system and for the establishment of a Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund in 1985. The fund has three sources of income. The first is payments from the military personnel accounts, which cover the accruing costs of the future retirement benefits being earned by today's service members. The second source is interest on investments of the fund. The third source is made up of two payments from the general fund of the Treasury. The first Treasury payment covers a portion of the accrued unfunded liability for all the retirees and current members who had earned benefits before the accrual funding system was set up. The second Treasury payment covers the liability for concurrent receipt of military retired pay and disability compensation paid by the Department of Veterans Affairs. This benefit was added in the 2004 National Defense Authorization Act. The 2010 Budget proposes expanding this benefit to service members retired under the disability rules codified in Chapter 61 of Title 10 of the United States Code.

The status of the fund is as follows:

Public Law 106-398 provides for accrual funding for health care to Medicare-eligible retirees. The statute establishes an accrual health care fund which has three sources of funding. The first is contributions from employing agencies, which cover the liability for future benefits accruing to current service members. The second is an annual payment from the general fund of the Treasury on the accrued unfunded liability, and the third source is income from the investment of fund balances.

The agency has a currency fluctuation account that insulates its appropriation's buying power from changes in exchange rates. At the current exchange rate, ABMC would require $17.1 million to offset foreign currency fluctuations. In 2009, "such sums as may be necessary" language was enacted for this account. The Commission will continue to estimate and report its Foreign Currency Fluctuation Account requirements.

The 1991 Defense Authorization Act, Public Law 101-510, created an Armed Forces Retirement Home (AFRH) Trust Fund to finance the AFRH-Washington and the AFRH-Gulfport Homes. The homes are financed by appropriations drawn from the trust fund.

The AFRH Fiscal Year 2008 Performance and Accountability Report displayed the significant progress of the AFRH over the past four years.

The Gulfport Home is being rebuilt at a cost of $240 million as a result of Hurricane Katrina. The project has a target completion date of 2010. AFRH received $5.6 million for the planning and design of the Scott Project in 2009. AFRH is requesting $70 million from the Trust Fund for completion of the Scott Project, which will create better living conditions for residents; promote aging in place; and bring AFRH resident facilities in line with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), fire codes, and other building codes.

The AFRH provides, through the Armed Forces Retirement Home-Gulfport and Armed Forces Retirement Home-Washington, residences and related services for certain retired and former members of the Armed Forces.

These appropriations provide for development and conservation of fish and wildlife and recreational facilities on military installations. Proceeds from the sale of fishing and hunting permits are used for these programs at Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force installations charging such user fees. These programs are carried out through cooperative plans agreed upon by the local representatives of the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Interior, and the appropriate agency of the State in which the installation is located.

The Selective Service System (SSS) continues to register men as they reach age 18, as required by law, and maintain an active data base of registrant records. Should the Nation return to conscription for a national emergency, the Agency would have the first draftees at military processing centers according to the mobilization plan. The Agency also manages a program for the Nation's conscientious objectors. In cooperation with the Department of Defense, all Reserve Force Officers participating in the SSS program are being reduced to 150 in 2009 and 2010 to reflect readiness requirements and the Military Conversion initiative.

The SSS will continue to strengthen its partnership with the Armed Services. The Agency will continue its national initiative to offer every young man that receives a registration acknowledgment, almost two million annually, the opportunity to volunteer for the military services.

The agency is allocating an additional $2 million towards upgrading its information technology systems. A modernized information technology system will improve business processes and national registration compliance statistics, while helping to sustain an "all volunteer" military recruiting effort. This will ensure faster, more accurate processing, as well as more secure storage of personally identifiable information. It also will improve registration processing and enable better customer services via the Internet.

This appropriation supports EPA's core programs by providing funds for Office of Inspector General (OIG) audit, evaluation, and investigative products and advisory services. These products and services contribute substantially to improved environmental quality and human health and improved business practices and accountability. Specifically, the OIG performs contract audits and investigations which focus on costs claimed by contractors and assesses the effectiveness of contract management. Assistance agreement audits and investigations evaluate the award, administration, and costs of assistance agreements. Program audits, evaluations, and investigations determine the extent to which the desired results or benefits envisioned by the Administration and Congress are being achieved, and identify activities that could undermine the integrity, efficiency, and effectiveness of Agency programs. Financial statement audits review financial systems and statements to ensure that adequate controls are in place and the Agency's accounting information is timely, accurate, reliable and useful, and complies with applicable laws and regulations. Systems audits review the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of operations by examining the Agency's support systems for achieving environmental goals. Additional funds for audit, evaluation and investigative activities associated with the Superfund Trust Fund are appropriated under that account and transferred to the Inspector General account to allow for proper accounting. This appropriation also supports activities under the Working Capital Fund.

This appropriation finances salary, travel, science, technology, environmental monitoring, research, and development activities including laboratory and center supplies, certain operating expenses (including activities under the Working Capital Fund), contracts, grants, intergovernmental agreements, and purchases of scientific equipment. These activities provide the scientific and technology basis for EPA policy and regulatory development actions.

Superfund research costs are appropriated to the Hazardous Substance Superfund Trust Fund appropriation and transferred to this account to allow for proper accounting. Funding for the mobile sources program is to be derived in part from fees charged for motor vehicle engine certifications that are deposited in the Environmental Services special fund.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and each of the Agency's five goals. Specifically in 2010, its emphasis will be placed on the following:

Clean Air and Global Climate Change.—To protect and improve the air so it is healthy to breathe and to reduce risks to human health and the environment, EPA will conduct a range of science and technology activities. These include research on criteria air pollutants (ozone, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, and lead) to develop the scientific basis for EPA's national ambient air quality standards. EPA also will support research on the effects to human health of toxic air pollutants as well as risk assessment methodologies. EPA will develop and implement regulatory programs that will significantly reduce emissions from highway and non-road sources and will implement the renewable fuels provisions of the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-79). In addition, EPA will develop tools for State and local governments and Tribes to use in developing clean air plans to achieve air quality standards. The Agency also aims to improve indoor environments through the provision of technical support and analysis to understand indoor air effects and the identification of potential health risks.

Clean and Safe Water.—To ensure drinking water is safe, restore and maintain oceans, protect watersheds and their aquatic ecosystems, support economic and recreational activities, and provide healthy habitat for fish, plants, and wildlife, EPA will conduct research to support development of water quality and safe drinking water standards. A concerted effort will be made to help small communities meet the new drinking water standards for arsenic, microbial contaminants, and disinfection byproducts. EPA will work with States, Tribes, drinking water and wastewater utilities, and other partners to enhance the security of water utilities. EPA will also support research to manage risks associated with potential impacts of geologic sequestration of carbon dioxide on underground sources of drinking water. In 2010, EPA will continue the Water Security Initiative, a standardized, cost-effective approach that the water sector can implement to provide for coordinated surveillance and monitoring of drinking water systems. The Water Security Initiative will provide early warning of key threat agents. Amounts provided in 2010 complete funding for the cooperative agreements with the selected pilots. Additionally, EPA will provide outreach and technical support to all water utilities serving greater than 100,000 people, including support for utility participation in emergency response exercises. In 2010, EPA will continue the Water Infrastructure for the 21st Century Initiative, which will evaluate innovative technologies for improving management of water infrastructure. EPA will also conduct research on effective beach evaluation tools, and work to enhance understanding of the structure and function of aquatic systems through the development of improved aquatic criteria.

Land Preservation and Restoration.—To preserve and restore the land, EPA will conduct research to provide improved methods for site characterization, risk assessment and exposure analysis, mitigation approaches, and multimedia modeling. This research program also provides regional and site-specific technical support. Research will advance EPA's ability to accurately characterize the risks posed by contaminated sediments and determine the range and scientific foundation for remedy selection options. Groundwater research will focus on the transport of contaminants in that medium and the subsequent intrusion of contaminant vapors. Material management research will address nano-material fate and transport, brownfields decision support, alternative landfill covers and potential benefits of landfill bioreactors.

Healthy Communities and Ecosystems.— EPA will conduct research to adequately protect or restore the health of communities and ecosystems using integrated and comprehensive approaches and partnerships. The Agency will conduct research in the areas of human health, ecosystem services, mercury, global change, pesticides and toxics, endocrine disruptors, computational toxicology, nanotechnology, and Homeland Security. The Agency also ensures a safe food supply by reviewing and licensing pesticides. Strong science allows the identification of the most important sources of risk to human health and the environment as well as the best means to detect, abate, and avoid possible environmental problems, and thereby guides EPA's priorities, policies, and deployment of resources.

Compliance and Environmental Stewardship.—To improve environmental performance through compliance with environmental requirements, preventing pollution, and promoting environmental stewardship, and to protect human health and the environment by encouraging innovation and providing incentives for governments, businesses, and the public that promote environmental stewardship, EPA will conduct research on decision support tools, sustainability metrics, and new technology development. This research includes Life Cycle Analysis techniques that address the sustainability of alternative policy options and development of metrics for use in technology evaluation and watershed management. The National Enforcement Investigations Center is the primary source of forensics expertise in EPA. It provides technical services not available elsewhere to support the needs of EPA Headquarters and Regional offices, other Federal agencies, and State and local environmental enforcement organizations.

Enabling and Support Programs.—Enabling and Support Programs provide the people, facilities and systems necessary to operate the programs funded by the Science and Technology appropriations (S&T). The offices and the functions they perform are: Administration and Resources Management (facilities infrastructure and operations) and Environmental Information (IT/data management).

This appropriation includes funds for salaries, travel, contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities and administrative activities of the operating programs, including activities under the Working Capital Fund.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and each of the Agency's five goals. Specifically in 2010, EPA will emphasize the following:

Clean Air and Global Climate Change.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will apply a variety of approaches and appropriate tools. EPA will develop and implement strategies to attain ambient air quality standards for ozone, particulate matter, and other criteria pollutants, as well as reduce regional haze through regional approaches where significant transport of pollutants occurs. EPA will continue to develop and issue national technology-based and risk-based standards to reduce the quantity of toxic air pollutants emitted from industrial and manufacturing processes, as well as from urban sources. EPA will also develop control measures for sources that are best regulated at the Federal level. The Acid Rain program will continue its market-based approach to achieving reduced emissions of sulfur dioxide primarily from electric utilities. The market-based approach will also be used in other programs, where permitted under the Clean Air Act, to reduce emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides. EPA will continue to develop and implement voluntary outreach and partnership programs with State, Tribal, and local governments to improve indoor air quality and reduce potential risks to the public in homes, schools, and workplaces. In addition, EPA will develop and promulgate standards, regulations and guidelines to reduce exposure from radiation sources. EPA will continue its domestic and international efforts to limit the production and use of ozone-depleting substances and develop safe alternative compounds under the Montreal Protocol. EPA also will continue its partnerships with businesses and other sectors to help reduce greenhouse gas intensity and contribute to cleaner air. Through the development of the Mandatory Greenhouse Gas Reporting rule, EPA will work with sources to obtain high quality data in a cost effective manner. The voluntary government-industry partnership programs are designed to capitalize on the opportunities that consumers, businesses, and organizations have for making sound investments in efficient equipment, policies, practices, and transportation choices. EPA will analyze ways to reduce greenhouse gases, provide support for the development of a comprehensive climate change strategy, and provide leadership for international initiatives. EPA will continue to coordinate the implementation of the Methane-to-Markets initiative designed to expand global efforts to capture and use methane as a clean alternative energy source. The Agency will also participate with other agencies to help expand global efforts to increase energy efficiency and reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Clean and Safe Water.—To protect and restore the Nation's surface waters and provide the American public with water that is safe to drink, EPA will focus on several key strategies. EPA's strategy for helping systems provide safe drinking water over the next several years includes developing or revising drinking water standards, supporting States, Tribes, and water systems in implementing standards, promoting sustainable management of water infrastructure, and protecting sources of drinking water from contamination. To better address the complexity of the remaining water quality challenges, EPA will promote local watershed approaches to achieving the best and most cost-effective solutions to local and regional water problems. EPA will facilitate the ecosystem-scale protection and restoration of natural areas by supporting continuing efforts of all 28 National Estuary Program estuaries to implement their Comprehensive Conservation and Management Plans to protect and restore estuarine resources. EPA will continue support for ecosystem management and partnership collaboration through the Chesapeake Bay and Gulf of Mexico programs. To maximize the impact of each dollar, EPA will continue to strengthen its vital partnerships with States, Tribes, local governments, and other parties that are also working toward the common goal of improving the Nation's waters. EPA will help States implement nationally consistent water quality monitoring programs which will eventually allow the Agency to make a credible national assessment of water quality. High quality, current monitoring data is critical for EPA, States, Tribes and others to: make watershed-based decisions; develop necessary water quality standards and total maximum daily loads; and accurately and consistently portray conditions and trends. In addition, EPA will continue work with the Department of Energy to support the safe deployment of carbon dioxide capture and storage technologies as a climate mitigation strategy.

Land Preservation and Restoration.—To preserve and restore the land, EPA will use the most effective waste management and cleanup methods available. EPA will reduce adverse affects to land by reducing waste generation at its source, recycling waste, managing waste effectively by preventing spills and releases of toxic materials, and cleaning up contaminated properties. To reduce waste generation and increase recycling, EPA will (1) establish and expand partnerships with businesses, industries, Tribes, States, communities and consumers; (2) stimulate infrastructure development and environmentally responsible behavior by product manufacturers, users and disposers; and (3) help businesses, government, institutions and consumers reduce waste generation and increase recycling through education, outreach, training and technical assistance. EPA will continue the Resource Conservation Challenge (RCC) as a major national effort to find flexible, yet more protective ways to conserve our valuable natural resources through waste reduction, energy recovery, and recycling. Recognizing that some hazardous wastes cannot be completely eliminated or recycled, EPA will work to reduce the risks of exposure to hazardous wastes by maintaining a cradle-to-grave approach to waste management. EPA will also continue to work with States in order to bring all underground storage tank systems into compliance and keep them in compliance with the release detection and release prevention requirements outlined in the Energy Policy Act of 2005. EPA's cleanup programs have set a national goal of returning formerly contaminated sites to long-term, sustainable and productive use. This goal creates greater impetus for selecting and implementing remedies that, in addition to providing clear environmental benefits, will support future land use and provide greater economic and social benefits. To further accomplish the national cleanup goals, the Agency will forge partnerships and develop outreach and educational strategies.

Healthy Communities and Ecosystems.—To protect, sustain or restore the health of people, communities and ecosystems, EPA will focus on geographic areas with human and ecological communities at most risk. EPA is working to protect, sustain, and restore the health of natural habitats and ecosystems by identifying and evaluating problem areas, developing tools, and improving community capacity to address problems. The Budget also requests $475 million for the Administration's new Great Lakes Restoration Initiative. EPA will lead this interagency effort that will target resources to the most pressing environmental issues in the Great Lakes, such as aquatic invasive species, contaminated sediment, and nonpoint source pollution. To guide these efforts, EPA and its Federal partners will use performance measures to track progress and ensure the initiative results in improved environmental outcomes. EPA and its Federal partners will also work with States, Tribes, local governments, and nongovernmental organizations to protect this incredible natural resource. Appropriations language for this proposal can be found in EPA's Administrative Provisions.

To ensure that the foods the American public eats will be free from unsafe levels of pesticide residues, EPA will apply strict health-based standards to the registration of pesticides for use on food or animal feed and ensure that older pesticides meet current health standards. EPA will also work to expedite and increase the registration of safer pesticides and to decrease the use of pesticides with the highest potential to cause adverse effects. EPA intends to reduce potential human and environmental risks from commercial and residential exposure to pesticides through programs that focus on farmworker protection, endangered species protection, environmental stewardship, and integrated pest management.

In 2010, EPA through its toxics program will continue work to alleviate health risks from exposure to lead-based paint and other sources of lead in the environment, carry out voluntary stewardship programs for chemicals of special concern such as perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) and nanoscale materials that are subject to TSCA requirements, make screening-level data on high production volume (HPV) chemicals available to the public, and pursue risk-based decisions on HPV chemicals and hazard-based decisions on moderate production volume (MPV) chemicals through the Security and Prosperity Partnership (SPP) initiative. The Agency will also support the operations and management of the Brownfields program including training for organizations representing co-implementers of the Brownfields law and technical support for communities using Federal funding to address general issues of vacant properties and infrastructure decisions.

The United States will coordinate with other nations in multilateral efforts to protect the environment and human health. EPA will continue to promote formal bilateral and multilateral environmental agreements with key countries, execute environmental components of key foreign policy initiatives, and engage in regional and global negotiations aimed at reducing potential environmental risks via formal and informal agreements. EPA will continue to cooperate with other countries to ensure that domestic and international environmental laws, policies, and priorities are recognized and implemented and, where appropriate, promoted within the multilateral development assistance and trading system.

The unprecedented changes in information technology over the past few years, combined with public demand for information, are altering the way the Agency, Tribes and States collect, manage, analyze, use, secure, and provide access to quality environmental information. EPA is working with the States and Tribes to strengthen our information quality, leverage information maintained by other government organizations, and develop new tools that provide the public with simultaneous access to multiple data sets, allowing users to understand local, Tribal, State, regional, and national environmental conditions. Key to achieving information quality will be the further development of the National Environmental Information Exchange Network, which is primarily an affiliation between EPA and the States and Tribes. EPA will continue to reduce reporting burden, improve data quality, and accelerate data publications by accelerating the replacement of paper-based submissions with electronic reporting under the Toxic Release Inventory (TRI).

Compliance and Environmental Stewardship.—EPA will ensure full compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment. The Agency will use new and innovative approaches for compliance assistance and compliance incentives, as well as traditional enforcement activities, to promote compliance by the regulated community; set risk-based compliance and enforcement priorities; and strategically plan and target activities to address environmental problems associated with industry sectors and communities.

Preventing pollution at the source is the Agency's preferred strategy for reducing risk and minimizing environmental impacts. The EPA works closely with industry to build pollution prevention into the design of manufacturing processes and products; and also partners with States, Tribes, and governments at all levels to find simple, voluntary, and cost-effective pollution prevention solutions. Through waste minimization partnerships, the Agency will reduce the volume of hazardous chemicals in industrial waste streams and the volume of waste generated.

Enabling and Support Programs.—Enabling and Support Programs (ESPs) provide centralized management services and support to the Agency's various environmental programs.

The offices and the functions they perform within the Environmental Programs and Management appropriation are: the Offices of Administration and Resources Management (facilities infrastructure and operations, acquisition management, human resources management services and management of financial assistance grants/institutional assistance grants); Environmental Information (exchange network, information security, IT/data management); the Administrator (administrative law, civil rights/Title VI compliance, congressional, intergovernmental and external relations, regional science and technology, science advisory board); the Chief Financial Officer (strategic planning, annual planning and budgeting, financial services, financial management, analysis, and accountability); and, General Counsel (alternative dispute resolution, legal advice). Since these centralized services provide support across the Agency, resources for the ESPs are allocated across the Agency's appropriations, goals and objectives.

This appropriation provides for the construction, repair, improvement, extension, alteration, and purchase of fixed equipment or facilities that are owned or used by the Environmental Protection Agency. This appropriation supports the Agency-wide goals through Enabling and Support Programs that provide centralized management services and support to the Agency's various environmental programs. EPA's management infrastructure will set and implement the highest quality standards for effective internal management and fiscal responsibility. The facilities funded by this account will provide quality work environments and state-of-the-art laboratories that address employee safety and security and pollution prevention.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and each of the Agency's five goals through grants to States, Tribes and other partners. EPA is using standardized templates for State and Tribal grant agreements, including Performance Partnerships. The new template clearly links to EPA's strategic plan, reducing or eliminating the need to translate State workplan information into EPA's strategic and annual goals.

Clean Air and Global Climate Change.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will offer media-specific and multi-media Performance Partnership grants, and technical assistance to States and Tribes. This financial and technical aid will assist them in the development of their Clean Air Plans and support solutions that address local air needs. EPA will provide funds to States under section 105 of the Clean Air Act to improve air monitoring networks to obtain better data on emissions of criteria pollutants and air toxics. EPA will also provide funds to implement the clean diesel grant provisions of Title VII, Subtitle G of the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-79). Preference for these competitive grants will be given to applicants in areas that have not attained National Ambient Air Quality Standards.

Clean and Safe Water.—This Agency goal is to ensure people are provided clean and safe water to drink. In 2010, EPA will continue to work with State and local partners to develop policies that promote the use of water resources in ways that are both ecologically and economically sustainable. In support of this goal, EPA will provide $2.4 billion for the Clean Water State Revolving Funds (SRFs). The SRFs make low interest loans to communities and include a set-aside for Tribes and Alaska Native Villages to construct wastewater treatment infrastructure, in addition to other projects that enhance water quality. As of early 2009, the Federal Government has invested $27 billion in grants to help capitalize the 51 SRFs. With the required State match, additional State contributions, and funds from program leveraging, funds made available for such loans total $65 billion.

The Budget also requests $1.5 billion for the Drinking Water SRFs, which make low interest loans to public water systems and to Tribes and Alaska Native Villages to upgrade drinking water infrastructure to help them provide safe drinking water.

Direct grants are also provided to help address the significant water and wastewater infrastructure needs of Alaska Native Villages. To address concerns identified in program reviews, the Agency has implemented a management plan which identifies delayed and/or stalled projects and redirects resources from stalled projects to those that are ready to proceed maximizing the Federal investment in this program.

EPA will support its partnerships with States and Tribes through media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to: (1) increase the number of community drinking water systems that meet all existing health-based standards, (2) protect watersheds by reducing point and nonpoint source pollution, (3) decrease the net loss of wetlands, and (4) address agricultural and urban runoff and storm water. EPA will work with its State and Tribal partners to develop and implement broad-based and integrated monitoring and assessment programs that strengthen their water quality standards, improve decision-making, target restoration within the watershed, address significant stressors, and report on condition.

Land Preservation and Restoration.—Under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), EPA provides grants to States to strengthen their ability to implement hazardous waste programs. EPA also provides financial and technical assistance to eligible Tribal governments and inter-tribal consortia. In 2010, EPA will provide grants or cooperative agreements for new activities authorized by Title XV, Subtitle B of the Energy Policy Act of 2005 that are not otherwise provided for in Section 2007 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (SWDA). There will also be direct assistance through media-specific, and multimedia and/or Performance Partnership grants to enable Tribes to implement hazardous waste programs.

Healthy Communities and Ecosystems.—This Agency goal is to protect and restore America's water bodies, reduce exposure to lead, ensure proper pesticide use, support brownfields projects, mitigate cross-border risks and provide quality environmental information.

EPA provides grants to assist States, Tribes and partners with worker safety activities, protection of endangered species and water sources, and promotion of environmental stewardship. To protect, sustain or restore the health of people, communities and ecosystems, EPA will focus on geographic areas with human and ecological communities at most risk. EPA is working to protect, sustain, and restore the health of natural habitats and ecosystems by identifying and evaluating problem areas, developing tools, and improving community capacity to address problems. EPA will help provide technical and financial support to assist States, Tribes, and local governments towards the national goal of an overall increase in the acreage and condition of wetlands.

EPA will also fund brownfields projects resulting in assessments and cleanup activities that assist communities in paving the way for the productive reuse of contaminated properties and abandoned sites.

The Agency will provide direct grant assistance for water and wastewater infrastructure projects on the U.S.-Mexico border. EPA has met its NAFTA commitment to provide a total of $700 million for drinking water and wastewater infrastructure needs in the area. However, in recognition of the continuing environmental and public health needs in the border area, the Budget continues funding for these activities.

EPA plans to provide $10 million to States, territories, Tribes, and inter-tribal consortia to help them develop their information management and technology capabilities. The purpose of this support is two-fold: to assist the Agency in providing ready access to real-time environmental information and to allow States and Tribes to better integrate and share their environmental information.

Compliance and Environmental Stewardship.—To promote compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment, EPA will offer media specific and multi-media funding to States and Tribes for compliance assurance activities including compliance assistance and incentives, inspections and enforcement activities. EPA also plans to offer media-specific and multimedia, and/or Performance Partnership grants to States and Tribes, focusing on pollution prevention.

EPA will continue to provide grant assistance to States, territories, the District of Columbia and Tribes to develop and implement authorized programs for lead paint remediation, including programs to train and certify individuals engaged in remediation activities. Another priority for 2010 will be the implementation of a new regulation to address lead-safe work practices for renovation, repair and painting activities.

EPA received authority to establish a Working Capital Fund (WCF) and was designated a pilot franchise fund under Public Law 103-356, the Government Management and Reform Act of 1994. The Agency received permanent authority for the WCF in P.L. 105-65, which, among other things, is intended to increase competition for governmental administrative services. EPA's WCF became operational in 1997 and funds three main activities: information technology and telecommunications operations, managed by the Office of Environmental Information; Agency postage costs, managed by the Office of Administration; and the core accounting system, managed by the Office of the Chief Financial Officer. The 2010 amount reflects only base resources and may change during the year as programmatic needs change.

This appropriation provides funds for the implementation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended (CERCLA) including activities under the Working Capital Fund. This appropriation supports core Agency programs in four of the Agency's five goals. Specifically in 2010, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Land Preservation and Restoration.—To preserve and restore land and to protect human health and the environment, EPA will prevent and reduce the risks posed by releases of harmful substances and will clean up and restore contaminated sites to beneficial use. EPA will apply the most effective methods to control the risks of harmful substances, improve response capabilities, and maximize the effectiveness of response and cleanup actions. EPA's cleanup and response work at contaminated sites will address environmental problems, such as contaminated soil and groundwater, in order to reduce human exposures to hazardous pollutants and provide long-term human health protection. EPA will ensure that all releases of harmful substances to the environment are appropriately addressed by responding to incidents and providing technical support. To effectively prepare for and respond to incidents of national significance, EPA will improve decontamination readiness, continue to support a nationwide environmental laboratory network, and maintain a highly skilled, trained, and equipped response workforce. EPA will conduct research to improve methods and models and provide technical support to accelerate scientifically defensible and cost-effective decisions for cleanup at complex contaminated sites in accordance with CERCLA. EPA will also work to maximize responsible parties participation in site cleanups while promoting fairness in the enforcement process, and pursue greater recovery of EPA's cleanup costs. To further carry out the responsibilities of CERCLA, EPA will also allocate funds from its appropriation to Federal agency partners.

Compliance and Environmental Stewardship.—EPA will investigate and refer for prosecution criminal and civil violations of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980.

Enabling and Support Programs.—Enabling and Support Programs (ESPs) provide centralized management services and support to the Agency's various environmental programs. The offices and the functions they perform within the Superfund appropriation are: the Offices of Administration and Resources Management (facilities infrastructure and operations, acquisition management, human resources management services and management of financial assistance grants/institutional assistance grants); Environmental Information (exchange network, information security, IT/data management); the Chief Financial Officer (strategic planning, annual planning and budgeting, financial services, financial management, analysis, and accountability) and General Counsel (alternative dispute resolution, legal advice). Because these centralized services provide support across the Agency, resources for the ESPs are allocated across the Agency's appropriations, goals and objectives.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank (LUST) Trust Fund, authorized by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986, as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, and the Energy Policy Act of 2005, provides funds for responding to releases from leaking underground petroleum tanks, including activities under the Working Capital Fund. The Trust Fund is financed by a 0.1 cent per gallon tax on motor fuels, which will expire after September 30, 2011.

LUST funds are allocated to the states through cooperative agreements to clean up sites posing the greatest threat to human health and the environment as authorized under Section 9003(h) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (SWDA). Funds are also used for grants to non-state entities under Section 8001 of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. Federally-recognized Indian Tribes receive grant funding under P.L. 105-276. EPA supports oversight, cleanup, and enforcement programs which are implemented by the states. LUST Trust Fund dollars can be used for state-led cleanups and for State oversight of responsible party cleanups. In addition, the Energy Policy Act of 2005 expanded the authorized activities for the underground storage tank program.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and two of the Agency's five goals. Specifically in 2010, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Land Preservation & Restoration.—The LUST Program promotes rapid and effective responses to releases from Federally-regulated underground storage tanks containing petroleum by enhancing State, local, and Tribal enforcement and response capability. In 2010 EPA's LUST Program priorities will include: increasing the efficiency of LUST cleanups; addressing contaminants of concern; and promoting the continued use, reuse, and long-term management of LUST sites. EPA will help States and Tribes improve LUST cleanup performance by targeting source water areas using a drinking water mapping application, continuing to develop and promote the use of innovative tools such as multi-site and geographical cleanup approaches, optimizing the use of cleanup technologies, and streamlining cleanup decisions and processes. EPA will also continue efforts to monitor the soundness of state cleanup funds and work with states to complete cleanups and reduce the backlog of cleanups not yet completed.

Enabling and Support Programs.—Enabling and Support Programs provide the infrastructure of people, facilities, and systems necessary to operate the programs funded by the LUST appropriation. The offices and the functions they perform are: Administration and Resources Management (facilities infrastructure and operations, acquisition management, and human resources management services); Environmental Information (IT/data management); and the Chief Financial Officer (strategic planning, annual planning and budgeting, financial services, financial management, analysis, and accountability).

The purpose of the Federal State Partnership Fund for Program Integrity is to reduce error and improve efficiency and service in Federal assistance programs administered by States. Many State-administered programs operate independently of each other yet serve similar low-income populations. In addition, Federal and State officials responsible for improving program services often work independently of those responsible for program oversight and reducing improper payments. This proposal will seek to identify solutions that simultaneously support multiple objectives of improving program integrity through reduction in error, improving administrative efficiency, and improving service to eligible beneficiaries.

The Spectrum Relocation Fund, created by the Commercial Spectrum Enhancement Act of 2004, streamlines the process for reimbursing Federal agencies that must relocate wireless communications systems from Federal spectrum that has been reallocated to commercial use. Auction receipts associated with the reallocated spectrum from the Advanced Wireless Services spectrum license auction were deposited into the Fund in December 2006. To expedite clearing of the auctioned spectrum, the statute provides mandatory spending authority for approved relocation payments. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) administers the Fund in consultation with the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) of the Department of Commerce. By law, unused funds will revert to the general fund of the Treasury no later than December 2014. Actual relocation timelines vary by agency and are approved by OMB, in consultation with NTIA. The estimated mandatory spending is approximately $1176 million from 2007 to 2012, of which all but $58 million was transferred on a non-expenditure basis, and was made available to agencies beginning in March 2007. The Budget includes a receipt account for the deposit of auction proceeds, as well as a program account to provide reimbursement for the relocation of Federal systems.

This revolving fund provides for real property management and related activities, including operation, maintenance, repair of Federally owned buildings, and the construction of Federal buildings, courthouses and land ports of entry. Expenses of the Federal Buildings Fund (FBF) are financed from rental charges assessed to occupants of GSA-controlled space. Rent assessments, by law, approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. Rental income is augmented by appropriations to the fund when new construction needs exceed the resources available for investment within the fund.

The following table reports rent and other income to the fund.

The FBF consists of the following activities:

Construction and acquisition of facilities.—This activity provides for the acquisition of space through the construction or purchase of facilities and prospectus-level extensions to existing buildings. All costs directly attributable to site acquisition, construction, and the full range of design and construction services and management and inspection of construction projects are funded under this activity.

Repairs and alterations.—This activity provides for repairs and alterations of public buildings as well as associated design and construction services. Protection of the Government's investment, health and safety of building occupants, transfer of agencies from leased space, and cost effectiveness are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities. Primary consideration is given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to buildings, their support systems, and operating equipment.

Installment acquisition payments.—This activity provides payments for liabilities incurred under purchase contract authority and lease purchase arrangements. Periodic payments cover principal, interest, and other requirements.

Rental of space.—This activity provides for the acquisition of space through the lease of buildings from private sector landlords. Including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, the FBF will provide an estimated 190 million rentable square feet in 2009 and 194 million rentable square feet in 2010.

Building operations.—This activity provides services for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, maintenance, miscellaneous services (such as moving, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision), and general management and administration of all real property related programs including salaries and benefits paid from the FBF. The following table provides additional detail regarding the 2009 and 2010 building operations program (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

	Square feet	Expenses	Square feet	Expenses
Cleaning	183	300	187	316

Space acquisition	199	196
IT support	167	177
International Trade Center	10	0
Total	2,296	2,356

Other programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations and cleaning and other operations which are in excess of those services provided under the commercial rental charge.

Agency debt.—The following table reports agency debt outstanding for the construction of Federal buildings under authorities previously provided:

This appropriation covers relocation costs involved in moving agencies from valuable underutilized property, targeted for public sale, to facilities determined to be more economically suitable to their needs. Relocation and disposal is considered when the benefit/cost ratio is at least 2:1. The sale of these valuable underutilized properties would provide significant revenue to the Treasury and would far outweigh the relocation costs involved.

No appropriation is requested for this program in 2010. GSA will solicit relocation proposals from agencies.

This full cost recovery revolving fund provides for the acquisition of information technology solutions, telecommunications products and services, professional services, travel and transportation services, vehicles, and supplies for Federal agencies. Expenses of the Acquisition Services Fund (ASF) are financed through receipts from customer Federal agencies, pursuant to P.L. 109-313. The ASF is organized around four major business portfolios that deliver total solutions to customer agencies. These portfolios are: Integrated Technology Services (ITS), Assisted Acquisition Services (AAS), General Supplies and Services (GSS), and Travel, Motor Vehicle and Card Services (TMVCS).

The ITS Portfolio provides customer agencies with information technology and telecommunications products and services. Operations within this portfolio include Multiple-Award Schedules (MAS) and Government-wide Acquisition Contracts (GWACs) for the information technology and telecommunication business units. ITS operations aggregate and leverage the Federal Government's buying power to obtain a wide range of information technology and telecommunications products and services at significant savings for customer agencies.

The AAS Portfolio focuses on service delivery and assisting customers in making informed procurement decisions and serving as a center of excellence for the Federal community. AAS complements the programs of the Integrated Technology Services portfolio by providing acquisition, technical, and project management services that assist agencies in acquiring and deploying information technology and professional services solutions at the best value for taxpayer dollars.

The GSS Portfolio provides customer agencies a wide range of general products such as furniture, office supplies, and hardware products. GSS centralizes acquisitions on behalf of the Federal Government in order to strategically procure requirements and reduce cost to the government, while ensuring regulatory compliance for customers procurements. This portfolio also provides personal property disposal services to customer agencies.

The TMVCS Portfolio provides customer agencies with a broad scope of services that include travel and relocation services, freight management, motor vehicle acquisition, fleet management, and charge card services. TMVCS operations also aggregate and leverage the Federal Government's buying power to obtain a wide range of products and services at significant savings for customer agencies.

This revolving fund supports the Office of Citizen Services (OCS), which provides access points for citizens, businesses, other governments, and the media to obtain government information and services easily via the Web, e-mail, print, and the telephone. The Federal Citizen Services Fund is financed from annual appropriations from the general funds of the Treasury, reimbursements from agencies, fees collected from the public, gifts for undertaking Federal information activities, and other income incident to OCS activities. The Fund is authorized to retain unobligated amounts at the end of each fiscal year and obligate those amounts in subsequent fiscal years.

OCS maintains close working relationships with more than 40 Federal departments and agencies to identify, develop, promote, and make Federal information easily accessible to the public through a variety of channels. These channels include Internet websites located at USA.gov and Gobierno USA.gov (the US Government's official web portal), Pueblo.gsa.gov, ConsumerAction.gov, Kids.gov, and Info.gov. OCS operates a toll-free National Contact Center (1-800-FED-INFO) for responding to citizen telephone and e-mail inquiries about the Federal Government. OCS also publishes and distributes the quarterly Consumer Information Catalog, which lists Federal publications available to citizens through Pueblo, Colorado, and the Consumer Action Handbook, which provides information to citizens for resolving consumer problems. OCS operates these information outlets as part of the USA Services E-Gov initiative, which seeks to make government more citizen-centric. Additionally, OCS has awarded and operates a government-wide contracting vehicle (USA Contact) through which agencies can quickly and easily obtain contact center services to support their needs to communicate with the public.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expenses are funded by an appropriation to the Fund, by fees collected from agencies and the public, and by revenue received through the Fund's gift authority.

Reimbursements.—OCS provides a variety of citizen-centric services, e.g., publication distribution and contact center services, to other agencies and organizations and bills them to cover the costs of providing these services.

This appropriation provides for the Science Mission Directorate, which is comprised of the agency's Earth and space science programs. The appropriation provides for all of the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; design, repair, rehabilitation, modification of facilities, and construction of new facilities; and other general and administrative activities supporting the programs within this account. Detailed performance goals associated with these activities are addressed in NASA's detailed budget request.

NASA's Science Mission Directorate encompasses four themes: Earth Science, Planetary Science, Heliophysics, and Astrophysics. The Directorate seeks to answer fundamental questions concerning the ways in which Earth's climate is changing; the comparison of Earth with other planets in the solar system and around other stars; the connections among the Sun, Earth, and heliosphere; and the origin and evolution of planetary systems, the galaxy, and the universe, including the origin and distribution of life in the universe. The Directorate achieves its objectives through robotic flight missions, ground-based scientific research and data analysis, and the development of new technologies for future missions.

Life on Earth prospers in a biosphere and climate powered by energy from the Sun and moderated by water and carbon cycles. Working with domestic and international partners, NASA provides accurate and objective scientific data and analysis to advance understanding of Earth system processes and phenomena, thus improving prediction and response capabilities for climate, weather, natural hazards, and even human-induced disasters. Employing a constellation of 13 Earth-observing satellites routinely making measurements, NASA continues using the view from space to study the Earth system and improve prediction of Earth system changes and the connection between Earth and its star, the Sun. NASA will be launching additional missions over the next several years to further enhance and expand understanding of Earth and its processes. These include the Aquarius mission (scheduled to be launched in 2010) which will make new, first-of-a-kind global measurements of ocean surface salinity, of known importance to the study of climate change, the National Polar-orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System Preparatory Project (NPP, with an anticipated launch of 2011), the Landsat Data Continuity Mission (planned for launch in 2012), and the Global Precipitation Measurement Mission, which will provide accurate, global rain measurements every three hours and is to be launched in two parts in 2013 and 2014. In a continuing initiative, NASA also has begun implementation of a series of advanced Earth-observing satellite missions based on the recommendations of the National Research Council's Earth Science and Applications Decadal Survey, a community-consensus study released in 2007, that identified the most important Earth System Science questions and proposed a sequence of focused satellite missions to advance Earth science. In response to that study, NASA is developing the Soil Moisture Active Passive and the ICESat II satellites for launch by 2015 and is initiating a new Ventureclass series of missions to enable quick deployment of competed Earth sensing instruments. In addition, NASA will support activities to better leverage existing data sources and models in furthering climate and ocean science, as recommended in various community planning documents.

Planetary science seeks to discover the nature and origin of the celestial bodies among which we live and to explore whether life exists beyond Earth. To unlock the solar system's mysteries, NASA will continue its investigation of Mars from orbit and on the surface with a new generation of missions, including launching the Mars Science Laboratory rover (October 2011 launch, June 2012 arrival), which will dramatically increase in situ exploration capability with analytical laboratories focused on determining if Mars was habitable and if organics are present. Exploration will continue with the rovers Spirit and Opportunity, as well as the Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter and Mars Odyssey. The investigation of the outer planets will include such missions as the Cassini Saturn orbiter that has continued to return stunning images and revise scientific understanding of the ringed planet and its moons, the Juno mission that will further improve understanding of the origin and evolution of Jupiter (launch in August 2011), and the New Horizons (Pluto) mission which will complete NASA's initial reconnaissance of the solar system. Dawn, launched in September 2007, is on its nine-year mission to investigate in detail 1 Ceres and 4 Vesta, two main-belt asteroids that are among the largest proto-planets remaining intact since the formation of the solar system. MESSENGER, a mission to Mercury, will provide the first images covering the entire planet and collect detailed information on the composition and structure of Mercury's crust, its geologic history, the nature of its thin atmosphere and active magnetosphere, and the makeup of its core and polar materials. NASA exploration of the Moon includes GRAIL, a moon gravity mapping mission that will advance understanding of the thermal evolution of the Moon, as well as a series of robotic missions that will significantly increase our knowledge of the Earth's closest neighbor as we prepare for a human return to the Moon.

In seeking to understand the Sun, heliosphere, and planetary environments as a single, connected system, NASA's Heliophysics theme pursues three sets of missions: Solar Terrestrial Probe missions, Living with a Star missions, and Explorer missions. Solar Terrestrial Probe addresses fundamental science questions about the physics of plasma and the flow of mass and energy in the solar system, and includes the development of the Magnetospheric MultiScale mission, with an anticipated launch date not earlier than 2014. Living with a Star missions develop specific knowledge and understanding of those aspects of the Sun-Earth system that directly affect life and society. The first Living with a Star mission, Solar Dynamics Observatory, is planned to launch in 2009. Radiation Belt Storm Probes, the next Living with a Star mission, has an anticipated launch date not earlier than 2012. The Living with a Star program plans to provide a launch vehicle and one instrument/science investigation for a joint Solar Orbiter Collaboration with the European Space Agency. AIM and THEMIS are two Explorer missions that study the upper atmosphere of the earth and the magnetic connections and processes of the Earth's magnetosphere. Three other Explorer missions, IBEX, CINDI, and TWINS, were launched in 2008 to investigate physical conditions and processes of the coupled Sun-Earth system in the heliosphere, ionosphere, and magnetosphere respectively. NASA intends to select two new Small Explorer missions for formulation.

Within the Astrophysics theme, perplexing and important questions guide NASA's quest to understand the secrets of the universe: How does the universe work? Where did we come from? Are we alone? To answer these questions, NASA will continue to operate its prolific Hubble, Chandra, Spitzer, and Fermi space telescopes, while planning a series of future missions linked by powerful new technologies and complementary approaches to shared science goals. Toward this end, the Hubble Servicing Mission 4, scheduled to launch on Space Shuttle Atlantis in 2009, will extend the lifetime of critical components of this central data source. Together these missions will enhance NASA's ability to find planets around other stars and peer deep into the history of the universe and improve understanding of its structure. The Kepler mission, launched in 2009, will enable the discovery of Earth-size and smaller planets around other stars. NASA continues development of the James Webb Space Telescope to study the earliest galaxies and some of the first stars formed after the Big Bang. The astrophysics community is in the process of defining priorities for space- and ground-based investigations for the next decade under the auspices of the National Research Council. NASA is currently conducting concept definition activities for some of the missions under consideration, including the Joint Dark Energy Mission, which would provide the most accurate inventory to date of the mysterious dark energy, a major component of the universe and a contributor to its rate of expansion.

This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the aeronautics research program activities within the Aeronautics Research Mission Directorate (ARMD). The full costs provide for all of the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; design, repair, rehabilitation, modification of facilities, and construction of new facilities; and other general and administrative activities required to execute the programs within this account. Costs include labor, travel, procurement, test and fabrication costs. Detailed performance goals associated with these activities are addressed in NASA's detailed budget request.

NASA's Aeronautics Research Mission Directorate is committed to expanding the boundaries of aeronautical knowledge for the benefit of the nation and the broad aeronautics community. NASA conducts cutting-edge research that includes foundational research across a number of core competencies that support aeronautics and space exploration activities; research in key areas related to the development of advanced aircraft technologies and systems, including those related to aircraft safety, environmental compatibility, and fuel efficiency; and research that supports the Next Generation Air Transportation System (NextGen) in partnership with the Joint Planning and Development Office.

NASA's aeronautics research directly supports the goal and objectives of the National Aeronautics Research and Development Policy that was established by Presidential Executive Order 13419 in December 2006. NASA ensures that it is aligned with the Policy by (1) conducting high-quality, cutting-edge research that benefits the constituents of the entire aeronautics community; (2) disseminating the results of all research to the widest practical and appropriate extent; (3) pursuing a coordinated approach to managing the Nation's research, development, test, and evaluation infrastructure; (4) fostering intellectual partnerships with industry and academia through a comprehensive acquisition strategy including, but not limited to cooperative Space Act Agreements and fully and openly competed research awards, emphasizing true collaborations among all partners through NASA Research Announcement and Requests for Proposals (RFP); and (5) establishing strong partnerships with other Government agencies and organizations, especially the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Defense, and the Joint Planning and Development Office.

NASA Aeronautics consists of four integrated research programs and the Aeronautics Test Program. The Fundamental Aeronautics Program conducts cutting-edge research that enables the development of vehicles capable of atmospheric flight over a wide range of speeds. Because aircraft of the future will need to address multiple and often conflicting design challenges such as noise, emissions, and performance, a key focus will be the development of physics-based, multidisciplinary design, analysis, and optimization tools. Such tools will make it possible to evaluate radically new vehicle designs and to assess the potential impact of innovative concepts and technologies on a vehicle's overall performance.

The Aviation Safety Program builds upon the unique safety-related research capabilities of NASA to develop innovative tools, concepts, methods, and technologies that will improve the intrinsic safety attributes of current and future aircraft, and that will help overcome aviation safety challenges that would otherwise constrain the full realization of the NextGen. Such challenges include significant increases in air traffic density, increased reliance on automation, and a greatly increased diversity of air vehicles.

The Airspace Systems Program addresses the air traffic management research needs of the Next Generation Air Transportation System (NextGen) in collaboration with the member agencies of the Joint Planning and Development Office (JPDO). NASA is working closely with the JPDO as well as other government, industry, and academic partners to enable the formation, development, integration, and demonstration of revolutionary concepts, capabilities, and technologies allowing significant increases in capacity, efficiency, and flexibility needed to meet the Nation's airspace and airportal (gates, taxiways, runways, and final approach airspace) requirements for decades to come. These goals are in direct support of the guidelines in the National Aeronautics research and development policy and plan.

The Integrated Systems Research Program, a new program beginning in FY 2010, will encompass systems-level research development of aircraft technologies in the relevant flight environments. The overarching purpose is to reduce the local and global environmental impacts of aviation. This includes the development of technologies to significantly reduce fuel consumption, engine emissions or pollutants, and engine and airframe noise. The rationale for beginning this program is its relationship to the NextGen. If the environmental impacts of aviation are not drastically improved from the current situation, growth of the air traffic management system and implementation of NextGen will be inhibited. The integrated system-level research in this program will be coordinated with on-going long-term, foundational research within the three other research programs, and will focus specifically on maturing and integrating technologies in major vehicle systems/subsystems for accelerated transition to practical application.

The Aeronautics Test Program ensures the strategic availability and accessibility of a critical suite of aeronautics test facilities that are deemed necessary to meet Agency Aeronautics Research, Agency, and national needs. Strategic utilization, operations, maintenance, and investment decisions are made for major wind tunnel/ground test facilities at NASA's Ames Research Center, Glenn Research Center, and Langley Research Center, and for the Western Aeronautical Test Range, support/testbed aircraft, and simulation and load laboratories at Dryden Flight Research Center.

This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the exploration activities of the agency, which consist of the programs within the Exploration Mission Directorate. The Exploration Systems Mission Directorate was established to enable sustainable exploration and scientific discovery in the solar system. It is comprised of two major themes: Constellation Systems and Advanced Capabilities. NASA will review U.S. post-Shuttle human space flight activities this summer.

The Constellation Program within the Constellation Systems Theme is responsible for developing, demonstrating, and deploying the transportation, life support, and surface systems that will enable sustained human and robotic exploration of the Moon, Mars, and beyond. Human exploration will enable scientific activities and discoveries not obtainable with robotic explorers.

An important element of Constellation Systems Theme is the Commercial Crew and Cargo Program, which is providing incentives to spur private industry to provide cost-effective cargo delivery to the International Space Station, allowing NASA to focus its internal resources on exploration.

The Advanced Capabilities theme consists of three programs: the Lunar Precursor Robotic Program, the Exploration Technology Development Program, and the Human Research Program. Activities within these programs help prepare for human lunar exploration, test new technologies that enable exploration, and further understanding of the effects of space on human performance. The Lunar Precursor Robotic Program is developing a precursor mission to characterize the lunar environment.

The Lunar Reconnaissance Orbiter and Lunar Crater Observing and Sensing Satellite, scheduled to launch in 2009, will seek to find safe landing sites, locate potential resources, characterize the radiation environment, and demonstrate new technology. The Exploration Technology Development Program makes focused investments in innovations to reduce the cost and expand the capabilities of future space exploration missions. The Human Research Program focuses on ensuring the health, safety, and productivity of humans embarking on missions of exploration in the solar system. Projects advance knowledge critical for supporting long-term human survival and performance during operations beyond low Earth orbit, with a focus on improving medical care and human health maintenance.

This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the education activities of the agency, which consist of the projects within the Office of Education. The full costs include all labor, travel, and procurement costs to execute these projects. Detailed performance goals associated with these activities are addressed in NASA's detailed budget request.

NASA's Education program works to inspire and educate students at all levels to pursue careers in the fields of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM), while also engaging the education community to reach this goal. The Education portfolio demonstrates a commitment to STEM education to ensure that the next generation of explorers and innovators is fully prepared to join NASA's workforce while contributing to national needs. NASA's educational activities are designed to inspire, engage, educate, and employ our Nation's youth. To achieve these goals, NASA will continue to: (1) strengthen the Nation's future STEM workforce through a portfolio of initiatives for students at all levels, especially underserved and underrepresented communities; (2) attract and retain students in STEM disciplines and encourage their pursuit of higher education in disciplines critical to NASA's scientific and technical needs; and (3) engage Americans in NASA's mission by building strategic partnerships and linkages between STEM formal and informal education providers.

This appropriation provides for the Agency supporting functions associated with the science, aeronautics, education, space operations, and exploration activities of the agency. This account provides for the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; maintenance; design, repair, rehabilitation, modification of facilities, and construction of new facilities; and other general and administrative activities supporting the programs within the Agency's five mission accounts.

Cross-Agency Support provides a strategic focus for managing agency mission support functions and some of NASA's unique research facilities. This budget area consists of three themes: Center Management and Operations, Agency Management and Operations, and Institutional Investments.

Center Management and Operations includes the basic costs to manage and operate each of the nine NASA field centers and to maintain the technical capabilities required to support the Agency's Mission. This budget is not directly identified or aligned to a specific program or project requirement, but is necessary for efficient and effective administration and operation of the NASA Centers.

Agency Management and Operations provides for the management and oversight of Agency programs, the performance of Agency-wide activities and functions, and the maintenance of unique research capabilities and facilities. Responsibilities include the determination of programs and projects; establishment of management policies, procedures, and performance criteria; evaluation of progress; and the coordination and integration of all phases of the Agency's mission. The five major programs included in this theme are Agency Management, Safety and Mission Success, Agency IT Services, Innovative Partnerships Program, and Strategic Capability Asset Program.

Institutional Investments provides for design and execution of non-programmatic of Facilities projects, Demolition of Facilities, and Environmental Compliance and Restoration activities.

This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the space operations activities of the agency, which consist of the programs within the Space Operations Mission Directorate. The full costs include all labor, travel, procurement, test and fabrication costs to execute these programs, which provide for all of the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; design, repair, rehabilitation, modification of facilities, and construction of new facilities; and other general and administrative activities supporting the programs within this account. Detailed performance goals associated with these activities are addressed in NASA's detailed budget request.

The International Space Station is a complex of research laboratories in low Earth orbit in which American, Russian, Canadian, European, and Japanese astronauts are conducting unique scientific and technological investigations in a micro-gravity environment. The 2010 President's Budget provides funding for Space Station launch processing activities, on-orbit assembly, and continuation of research payload and experiment deliveries to orbit. The objective of the Space Station is to support human space exploration and conduct science experiments unique to the location of the Space Station. NASA plans to complete assembly of the Space Station in 2010 prior to Shuttle retirement, including the delivery of the Cupola, Node 3, and logistics and supplies. The Alpha Magnetic Spectrometer (AMS) science experiment will be flown after these flights if it can be safely and affordably completed in calendar year 2010.

The Space Shuttle program's mission is to support space exploration by completing the assembly of the International Space Station by the end of the decade. The 2010 President's Budget request assumes the Space Shuttle will fly five missions in 2010, with an additional flight to deliver the AMS science payload if it can be safely and affordably completed in calendar year 2010. The 2010 President's Budget provides specific program investments for vehicle safety and supportability needed to maintain a viable Shuttle fleet until its retirement by the end of 2010. The 2010 Budget request will allow NASA to combat flight hardware obsolescence, maintain ground systems and facilities, and to continue progress towards an orderly phase-out of the program. In addition, the Shuttle program will support the Space Operations and Exploration Systems Mission Directorates to leverage select Shuttle flight hardware and ground systems to advance the development of future human spaceflight systems.

Space and Flight Support is comprised of multiple capabilities that provide on-going customer support for a wide range of services. The programs include Space Communications and Navigations, Launch Services, Rocket Propulsion Testing, and Crew Health and Safety, and are provided to a wide range of customers including NASA, other U.S. federal agencies, foreign governments, and commercial customers. The services are critical for enabling the conduct of space exploration, aeronautical research, and physiological research. The 2010 President's Budget continues to support service continuity for the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite System, including two new satellites scheduled to launch in the 2013 timeframe. In 2010 NASA consolidates the Space Flight Operations Directorate project funding from Exploration Systems Mission Directorate and Space Operations Mission Directorate under the new line item, Human Space Flight Operations. Space Flight Crew Operations provides trained crew members and is responsible for all Johnson Space Center aircraft operations for all NASA human space flight endeavors.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Notwithstanding the limitation on the duration of availability of funds appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for any account in this Act, except for "Office of Inspector General", when any activity has been initiated by the incurrence of obligations for [construction of facilities or] environmental compliance and restoration activities as authorized by law, such amount available for such activity shall remain available until expended. [This provision does not apply to the amounts appropriated for institutional minor revitalization and minor construction of facilities, and institutional facility planning and design.]

Notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for any account in this Act, except for "Office of Inspector General", the amounts appropriated for construction of facilities shall remain available until September 30, [2011] 2014.

Funds for announced prizes otherwise authorized shall remain available, without fiscal year limitation, until the prize is claimed or the offer is withdrawn.

Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in this Act may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation, except as otherwise specifically provided, shall be increased by more than 10 percent by any such transfers. Any transfer pursuant to this provision shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under section 505 of this Act and shall not be available for obligation except in compliance with the procedures set forth in that section.

[Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds shall be used to implement any Reduction in Force or other involuntary separations (except for cause) by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration prior to September 30, 2009.]

The unexpired balances of the Science, Aeronautics, and Exploration account, for activities for which funds are provided under this Act, may be transferred to the new accounts established in this Act that provide such activity. Balances so transferred shall be merged with the funds in the newly established accounts, but shall be available under the same terms, conditions and period of time as previously appropriated.

[For the closeout of all Space Shuttle contracts and associated programs, amounts that have expired but have not been cancelled in the Human Space Flight, Space Flight Capabilities, and Exploration Capabilities appropriations accounts shall remain available through fiscal year 2015 for the liquidation of valid obligations incurred during the period of fiscal year 2001 through fiscal year 2009.]

Funding designations and minimum funding requirements contained in any other Act shall not be applicable to funds appropriated by this title for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

[The Administrator of NASA shall, not later than February 2, 2009, submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report that delineates by fiscal year, mission directorate and object class the full costs necessary for Space Shuttle retirement and transition activities for fiscal years 2006 through 2015 that includes, but is not limited to, the following: (1) the costs for environmental compliance and remediation; (2) the gross and net proceeds from exchange sales of excess Space Shuttle equipment; (3) the costs to maintain required facilities at Kennedy Space Center during the gap in human space flight; (4) the costs associated with preservation of historic properties; (5) the costs of workforce transition; and (6) other costs related to Space Shuttle retirement and transition.] (Science Appropriations Act, 2009.)

The Research and Related Activities appropriation enables the United States to provide leadership and promote progress across the expanding frontiers of scientific and engineering research and education. This appropriation provides resources for NSF to achieve the following strategic outcome goals: Discovery—fostering research that will advance the frontiers of knowledge, emphasizing areas of greatest opportunity and potential benefit and establishing the Nation as a global leader in fundamental and transformational science and engineering; Learning—cultivating a world-class, broadly inclusive science and engineering workforce and expanding the scientific literacy of all citizens; and Research Infrastructure—building the Nation's research capability through critical investments in advanced instrumentation, facilities, cyberinfrastructure, and experimental tools. Research activities will contribute to the achievement of these goals by advancing discovery, innovation, and education beyond the frontiers of current knowledge and empowering future generations in science and engineering.

The major research program activities of NSF are:

Biological Sciences.—This activity promotes scientific progress in biology through support of research on all levels, including molecules, cells, organisms, and ecosystems. This activity also supports a comprehensive research initiative on plant genomes, including research on economically significant crops.

Computer and Information Science and Engineering.—Research within and across the many sub-fields of computing, contributing to the education and training of computing professionals and informing the preparation of a U.S. workforce with computing competencies essential to success in an increasingly competitive, global market.

Engineering.—Research supported by this activity aims to increase U.S. engineering capability and strength, and focus that capability and strength on areas that are relevant to national problems and long-term needs. This activity also includes small business innovation research.

Geosciences.—This activity supports research and associated infrastructure to advance knowledge of the properties and dynamics of the planet on which we live. Research includes understanding the causes and implications of climate change, as well as disruptive processes such as earthquakes and storms.

RESEARCH AND RELATED ACTIVITIES—Continued

Mathematical and Physical Sciences.—Research in this activity is directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. It includes research in mathematical sciences, astronomy, physics, chemistry, and materials science.

Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences.—This activity supports research, education, and infrastructure in the social, behavioral, cognitive, and economic sciences and funds the collection and dissemination of statistics on the science and engineering enterprise.

Office of International Science and Engineering.—This activity promotes an integrated strategy for international science and engineering which complements and enhances NSF's broader research and education goals and which facilitates international collaboration.

U.S. Polar Research Programs.—This activity supports Arctic and Antarctic research and operational science support and other related activities for United States polar research programs.

U.S. Antarctic Logistical Support Activities.—This activity provides funding to reimburse Federal agencies for logistical and other related activities supported by the United States Antarctic Program.

Integrative Activities.—This activity supports emerging cross-disciplinary research efforts and major research instrumentation. This activity also provides support for the Science and Technology Policy Institute. The Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research broadens participation of States and regions in science and engineering by helping institutions expand their research capacity and competitiveness.

Office of Cyberinfrastructure.—This activity supports acquisitions, operations, and upgrades of cyberinfrastructure in support of the Nation's science and engineering research and education community.

The United States Arctic Research Commission promotes Arctic research and recommends national Arctic research policies to guide Federal agencies in developing and implementing their research programs in the Arctic region.

Education and Human Resources (EHR) activities provide a comprehensive set of programs that further NSF's goal of ensuring a diverse, competitive, and globally engaged U.S. science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) workforce, as well as scientifically literate citizens. At the pre-kindergarten through grade 12 (pre-K-12) levels, EHR catalyzes reform of STEM education through the development of public-private partnerships. Its pre-K-12 programs provide new instructional materials for students and teachers that incorporate the latest advances in teaching, learning, and educational technologies; growth in the knowledge base; and teacher education opportunities that support the full continuum of STEM teacher education from pre-service and in-service, through life-long learning. Undergraduate programs improve curricula, strengthen laboratory course offerings, enhance faculty, and lead reform efforts in STEM disciplines. Programs for advanced technological education strengthen education for students preparing to enter the high-technology workforce. Graduate level support is directed primarily to fellowships and traineeships to sustain the U.S. world leadership in science and technology. All EHR programming focuses on broadening participation of groups underrepresented in STEM fields including activities focused on the improvement of infrastructure and academic programs at minority-serving institutions. EHR supports education research that advances our knowledge of how people learn in the STEM disciplines; it also supports the development and effective implementation of learning technologies. Evaluation and communication activities ensure accountability by developing indicators that measure program impact and inform the education community of best practices and relevant information. EHR activities also include programs supported by H-1B non-immigrant visa fees. These programs provide undergraduate and graduate scholarships in STEM fields, support for private-public partnerships in K-12, and support for STEM education by providing research opportunities for STEM teachers and students in grades 7-12.

The Office of Personnel Management's (OPM) mission is to help agencies build an effective Federal civilian workforce based on merit system principles. OPM leads Federal agencies in the strategic management of their human resources, proposes and implements human resources management policy, and provides agencies with ongoing advice and technical assistance to implement these policies and initiatives. OPM also supports veterans' preference in Federal hiring and manages the process for personnel security and background checks for suitability and national security clearances. OPM continues to honor the Government's commitment to employees by managing the trust funds that support the retirement and insurance benefits they earn, and delivering excellent benefit services and support to civil servants both during and after their Federal careers. The 2010 Budget will permit OPM to pursue long-term human capital strategies that deliver results and enhance the values of the civil service. New human resources management strategies will streamline the Federal hiring process, decrease time to hire, and change how Federal employees' job performance is evaluated.

The functions and objectives of the OPM Divisions are:

Strategic Human Resources Policy (SHRP).—Develops and administers human resources (HR) policies that strengthen leadership and succession planning activities; provides a source of reliable workforce information; ensures common standards for agency payroll and HR systems; supports improved labor-management relations and security/suitability requirements; establishes competitive compensation and benefits systems; and provides agencies a with variety of hiring options for securing talent.

Human Capital Leadership and Merit Systems Accountability (HCLMSA).—Leads the Government-wide effort to transform human capital management so that agencies are held accountable for managing their workforce effectively, efficiently, and in accordance with merit system principles, to achieve mission results.

In 2010, OPM will continue to work with Federal agencies as the owner of the Strategic Management of Human Capital initiative. OPM uses its leadership position to establish guidelines for human resources under the Standards for Success in the Human Capital Assessment and Accountability Framework. OPM provides guidance to agencies in the assessment of their human resources programs. As part of this guidance, OPM develops specific milestones that contain tools, models, and training to hold agencies accountable for their human capital practices. OPM also works with agencies to ensure that their human resources are being managed in accordance with merit system principles to accomplish their missions. OPM assists agencies in building and strengthening their internal human resources accountability programs to include data collection and analysis, program evaluation, and merit systems compliance.

Also in 2010, HCLMSA will continue to provide technical assistance to agencies. For instance, OPM has statutory mandates to pre-approve agency actions in a wide range of human capital matters. HCLMSA, through agencies' Human Capital Officers, reviews and provides assistance on agencies human capital initiatives, such as workforce planning, talent management and performance management strategies and solutions while continuing to strengthen accountability. HCLMSA also reviews and acts on agency requests for such authorities as: Voluntary Early Retirement Authority; Voluntary Separation Incentive Authority; dual compensation waivers; temporary and term appointment extensions; classification appeals; and pay and leave claims. Through these review processes, HCLMSA staff work closely with agency human resources staff to ensure that each agency implements human capital solutions that are best tailored to the demands of its mission.

Human Resources Products and Services (HRPS).—Provides cost-effective products and services to help maintain the Government's position as a competitive employer by assisting agencies, employees, and annuitants with staffing, selection, development, and retirement and insurance programs. In addition, HRPS is responsible for supporting the Department of Justice in ensuring voting rights for American citizens.

The 2010 Budget includes funding to maintain timely processing of retirement claims, provide services to Federal annuitants, and continue the conversion of hard-copy retirement records to electronic format while OPM reviews the long-term strategic objectives and requirements for retirement system modernization. HRPS operates the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHBP), which offers comprehensive and competitive benefits choices for Federal employees, annuitants, and family members, and helps the Federal government recruit and retain a high-quality workforce. Through FEHBP, OPM will continue to provide customers with a variety of resources to make more informed health insurance decisions, including health plan brochures and website postings, health plan customer satisfaction survey results, web-based comparison/decision tools, and performance results for managed care health plans. OPM will work aggressively with health insurance plans to hold down premium costs while at the same time negotiating expanded coverage. HRPS also manages the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program; the Federal Long Term Care Insurance Program, which is the largest employer-sponsored long term care insurance program in the world with over 210,000 enrollees; the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program (FEDVIP), the largest employer-sponsored dental-vision program in the nation; and the Flexible Spending Account Program, which allows employees to pay for health and dependent care expenses on a pre-tax basis.

Management Services.—OPM's management services include: OPM human resources; equal employment opportunity; security; facilities; telecommunications; publishing; acquisitions; information technology management; risk management; strategic planning; and financial management to support all of OPM's goals.

Executive Services.—OPM's executive services include: executive direction; legal advice and representation; public affairs; and legislative activities concerning OPM as well as assistance for the President's Commission on White House Fellows.

E-Gov Projects.—OPM manages the Human Resources Line of Business (HR LOB) initiative, which is transforming and modernizing HR business processes and systems Government-wide. There are currently five Federal Shared Service Centers providing technology solutions to support Federal agencies Government-wide with HR management and administrative transactions. The HR LOB is also responsible for agency migration to these service centers. In addition, the Enterprise Human Resources Integration project is an E-Government initiative to transform human resources processes from paper-based to electronic. OPM operates and maintains a comprehensive data warehouse of HR information across the Executive branch. Cost efficiencies are realized through these streamlined HR processes.

This appropriation provides agency-wide audit, investigation, evaluation, inspection, and administrative sanction and debarment functions to identify program management, contractual, and administrative deficiencies that may create conditions for fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement. During 2008, Office of Inspector General (OIG) activities resulted in positive financial impacts of over $113 million, and led to 45 arrests, 45 indictments, 45 criminal convictions, and 990 suspensions or debar-ments within the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHBP).

The audits function provides internal agency audit, health and life insurance audit, contract audit, and information systems audit services. Internal agency audits review all facets of agency operations, and include the oversight of the agency financial statement audit. Insurance audits review the operations of health and life insurance carriers, health care providers, pharmacy benefit managers, and insurance subscribers. Contract audits provide professional advice to agency contracting officials on accounting and financial matters regarding the negotiation, award, administration, repricing, and settlement of contracts. Information systems audits review both general controls and application controls for agencies' systems and programs as well as for the information systems of carriers within FEHBP.

The investigative and evaluative function detects and investigates improper and illegal activities involving agency programs, personnel, and operations. A large component of the investigative program involves activities within the health benefits, retirement and life insurance programs. Health care providers whose conduct may pose a threat to the financial integrity of benefit programs or to the well-being of insurance program enrollees are debarred by administrative sanctions from participation in the health insurance program.

In 2010, OIG will continue to develop its prescription drug audit program, which includes audits of pharmacy benefit managers. OPM estimates that approximately 26 percent of FEHBP expenses, or between $10 and $11 billion in 2010, will be for prescription drugs. Through these audits, OIG helps the FEHBP recover inappropriate charges, negotiate more favorable contracts, control future cost growth, and improve benefits provided to program enrollees. OIG will also continue its FEHBP data warehouse initiative in 2010. This project streamlines and enhances the various administrative and analytical procedures involved in the oversight of FEHBP. The purpose of the project is to capture data from experience-rated insurance carriers in a data warehouse of health care information. The system's software tools support a variety of analytical procedures, including data mining, using the data in the warehouse. The project has facilitated more efficient and effective oversight of FEHB by enhancing the ability of auditors and investigators to identify improper payments.

The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act (P.L.109-435) created the Postal Service Retiree Health Benefits Fund to help fully fund the Postal Service's retiree (annuitant) health benefits liabilities.

This account receives from the Postal Service: 1) the pension savings provided to the Postal Service by the Postal Civil Service Retirement System Funding Reform Act of 2003 (P.L.108-18) that were held in escrow during 2006; 2) payments defined within P.L.109-435 to begin the liquidation of the Postal Service's unfunded liability for post-retirement health benefits; and 3) beginning in 2017, payments for the actuarial cost of Postal Service contributions for the post-retirement health benefits for its current employees. This account also receives any surplus resources of the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund that are not needed to finance future retirement benefits under the Civil Service Retirement System to current or former employees of the Postal Service that are attributable to civilian employment with the Postal Service.

POSTAL SERVICE RETIREE HEALTH BENEFITS FUND—Continued

As a result of this health benefits financing system, beginning in 2017, the Postal Service will cease to pay annual premium costs for its post-1971 current annuitants directly to the Employees and Retired Employees Health Benefits Fund. Instead, these premium payments will be paid from amounts that the Postal Service remits to this fund. Payments for a proportion of the premium costs of Postal Service annuitants' pre-1971 service would continue to be paid by the General Fund of the Treasury through the Government Payment for Annuitants, Employees Health Benefits account.

OPM's Revolving Fund provides financing for investigations, training, and other functions that OPM is authorized or required to perform on a reimbursable basis. OPM programs offer the following:

Within our Human Resources Products and Services Division (HRPS), the Center for Talent Services (CTS) delivers integrated, expert solutions to support Federal agencies' human resources needs. Talent Services provides relevant, cost-effective products and services on a fee-for-service basis that span the employment life cycle from recruitment and selection through training and development. Examples of CTS's products and services include tailored recruitment and branding, nationwide testing services (including screening for the U.S. Armed Forces), employee competency assessments, workforce and succession planning, surveys of organizational culture and climate, strategies for change, and USAStaffing, an automated recruitment and assessment tool.

HRPS also operates USAJOBS. The USAJOBS system serves as the one-stop solution for bringing government recruiters and job seekers together, giving recruiters the ability to create and advertise government jobs, search through job seeker resumes, and manage the hiring process through a Web interface. It provides job seekers the ability to create and advertise their resumes, search for government jobs, and apply for a job directly through the Web interface. Regulations contained in 5 CFR Parts 330, 333, and 335 that implement section 4 of Public Law 104-52 authorize OPM to charge fees to agencies to pay the cost of providing Federal employment information and services through USAJOBS.

HRPS' Center for Leadership Capacity Services (CLCS) conducts residential and nonresidential programs for Federal executives and managers to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of Federal programs. CLCS operates three leadership development centers that serve government managers and executives from GS-11 to Senior Executive Service. CLCS courses are designed to fit the long term career development path of emerging federal leaders. Many of the open enrollment courses are accredited and can be applied to college level degree programs. In addition, CLCS offers custom-designed leadership programs for individual agencies and for communities of professional interest. Moreover, CLCS develops and delivers leadership candidate development and succession planning programs, including the Presidential Management Fellows program, and consulting services for leading organizational change initiatives.

Finally, HRPS manages the GoLearn program. GoLearn provides web-based learning, competency, performance and content management systems along with collaboration tools and content libraries on a fee-for-service basis that supports many agencies' learning and development functions. In addition, the GoLearn Program operates the only government-wide Learning Management System (GoLearn.gov) available to any federal employee and a content repository tool that allows agencies to cost-effectively create and manage pools of reusable content objects for training and communication.

OPM's Federal Investigative Services Division (FISD) provides background investigative services to agencies on a fee basis. FISD conducts more than 90 percent of the Federal Government's background investigations concerning Federal employees, contractors, and military members for various Federal agencies. Investigations are a critical step in the Federal hiring processes, and can affect hiring or removal decisions based on the individual's fitness and suitability for employment. Based on information gathered in background investigations, Federal agencies also issue security clearances and place individuals in sensitive positions involving national security or the public trust.

Within these programs, the revolving fund fully or partially supports three E-Government projects: E-Clearance, the Human Resources Line of Business, and Enterprise Human Resources Integration. On a fee-for-service basis, the Enterprise Human Resources Integration project provides Federal agencies with an electronic official personnel folder (eOPF) system, as well as workforce analysis and other analytical tools. These tools streamline and automate the electronic exchange of standardized HR data and provide comprehensive workforce analysis, forecasting, and reporting capabilities across the Executive Branch for the strategic management of human capital.

The Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund covers two Federal civilian retirement systems: the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS). CSRS is basically a defined benefit plan, covering Federal employees hired prior to 1984. CSRS participants do not participate in the Social Security system. FERS is a three-tiered pension program that uses Social Security as a base, provides an additional basic benefit, and includes a thrift savings plan. FERS covers employees hired after 1983 and formerly CSRS-covered employees who elected to join FERS.

The Budget proposes that the United States Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) continue to fund the full cost for retirement benefits for PTO's employees covered under the Civil Service Retirement System.

This display combines FEHB fund and the Retired Employees Health Benefits (REHB) fund.

The FEHB fund provides for the cost of health benefits for: 1) active employees; 2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors; 3) those annuitants transferred from the REHB program as authorized by Public Law 93-246; and 4) the related expenses of OPM in administering the program.

The REHB fund, created by the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act of 1960, provides for: 1) the cost of health benefits for retired employees and survivors who enroll in a Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; 2) the contribution to retired employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and 3) expenses of OPM in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the FEHB fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

Active employees	2,159,000	2,143,000	2,148,000
Annuitants	1,867,713	1,896,000	1,923,000
Total	4,026,713	4,039,000	4,071,000

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, one percent is added for administrative expenses and three percent is added for a contingency reserve held by OPM for each carrier. OPM is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

The REHB fund is available without fiscal year limitation. The amounts contributed by the Government are paid into the fund from annual appropriations. The number of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	2008 actual	2009 est.	2010 est.
Uniform plan	261	214	175
Private plans	640	525	430
Total	901	739	605

Financing.—The funds are financed by: 1) withholdings from active employees and annuitants; 2) agency contributions for active employees; 3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to OPM; and 4) contributions made by the United States Postal Service in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 101-508.

Funds made available to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. OPM maintains a contingency reserve, funded by employee and Government contributions, that may be used to defray future cost increases or provide increased benefits. OPM makes payments to carriers from this reserve whenever carrier-held reserves fall below levels prescribed by OPM regulations or when carriers can demonstrate good cause such as unexpected claims experience or variations from expected community rates.

The budget proposes that the Patent and Trademark Office continue to fund the accruing costs associated with post-retirement health benefits for its employees.

This account funds the administrative expenses of SBA headquarters and field office operations. Appropriations for the administration of the disaster and business loan programs are merged with this account. The 2010 Budget provides increased funding for the continued development of a new loan management accounting system. The budget proposes $11.69 million for this activity, which will improve oversight of SBA's $89 billion portfolio of loans and loan guarantees. Additional funding is also requested for core agency activities, including information technology investments and human capital development. In addition, this account funds non-credit business assistance grant programs. The 2010 Budget includes a new initiative that would allow SBA to provide technical assistance through traditional or new grant partners. The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 provided an additional $69 million within this account, available in 2009 and 2010, of which $24 million is for marketing, management, and technical assistance of the microloan program, $20 million is to automate loan processing, and $25 million to support the administration of SBA programs.

The 2010 Budget proposes $16.3 million in new budget authority and $1.0 million transferred from the Disaster Loans Program account for a total of $17.3 million for the Office of Inspector General (OIG). This appropriation provides funds for agency-wide audit, investigative, and related functions to promote economy and efficiency in SBA operations and to prevent and detect waste, fraud, and abuse. In addition, the passage of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 provided an additional $10 million, available from 2009 through 2013, for oversight and audit of SBA Recovery Act programs, grants, and projects.

SBA is authorized to issue bond guarantees to surety companies for construction, service, and supply contracts or work orders, and to reimburse these sureties up to 90 percent of the losses sustained if the contractor defaults. With the enactment of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA), SBA can provide bond guarantees for contracts up to $5 million (up from $2 million) and in some cases up to $10 million, through September 30th, 2010. SBA's guarantees provide an incentive for sureties to issue bonds to small contractors who could not otherwise secure them and compete in the contracting industry. In 2010, the Budget proposes a $1 billion program level that is anticipated to be sufficient to accommodate program demand. The passage of the ARRA also provided an additional $15 million in funding to cover potential losses for this program.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, as amended, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of the business loan program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

For 2010, the Budget proposes $236 million in new budget authority for the Business Loans Program account. This includes $153 million in administrative expenses funding, $80 million in credit subsidy for the Section 7(a) guaranteed loan program, and $3 million in credit subsidy for the direct Microloan program.

The Section 7(a) program provides general business credit assistance. The requested guaranteed loan program level for 2010 is $17.5 billion. The Section 504 Certified Development Company program is for long-term, fixed-rate financing and the requested guaranteed loan program level is $7.5 billion in 2010. The Small Business Investment Company (SBIC) program provides credit to support venture capital investments. The Budget proposes a program level of $3 billion for SBIC Debentures. Finally, the Budget proposes a $25 million program level for direct Microloans.

As part of the Secondary Market Guarantee (SMG) Program, SBA's fiscal agent pools the guaranteed portion of 7(a) loans and sells the securities to investors. This mechanism provides liquidity to lenders participating in the 7(a) loan program. For 2010, the Budget proposes a program level of $12 billion in such securities.

With the passage of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) of 2009, SBA was provided a total of $636 million for this account, to remain available until September 30, 2010. Of this amount, $6 million is available for the subsidy cost of additional lending under the Microloan program. In addition, $375 million was made available to temporarily eliminate or reduce fees for borrowers and lenders on 7(a) and 504 loans through 2010, or until the funds are exhausted. The ARRA also authorized 90 percent guarantees on most 7(a) loans. SBA estimates that this funding will support $8.7 billion in 7(a) loans and $3.6 billion in 504 loans, which will cover expected lending through December 31, 2009. For budget presentation purposes, the subsidy rates for 2009 and 2010 for the 7(a) and 504 programs reflect the blended rate for both ARRA and non-ARRA loans in each fiscal year.

The remaining $255 million in ARRA funds was made available to carry out a program to provide 100% guarantees on loans to viable small business concerns that have a qualifying small business loan and are experiencing immediate financial hardship.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, as amended, this account records, for loans made pursuant to Section 7(b) of the Small Business Act, as amended, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Disaster loans made pursuant to Section 7(b) of the Small Business Act provide Federal assistance for non-farm, private sector disaster losses. Through the disaster assistance program, SBA helps homeowners, renters, businesses of all sizes, and non-profit organizations pay for the cost of replacing, rebuilding or repairing property damaged by disasters. The program is the only form of SBA assistance not limited to small businesses. The program provides subsidized loans of up to 30 years to borrowers who have incurred uninsured physical losses or economic injury as the result of a disaster.

In 2010, the Budget supports $1.1 billion in loans, the ten-year average for such loans, excluding outlying events. The Budget includes a legislative proposal (Section 521 of the SBA Administrative Provisions) to increase the maximum term for Business Credit Elsewhere loans from three to seven years. With this policy proposal, the subsidy rate is 10.73 percent.

In addition to the above, the Budget also requests subsidy and administrative expenses funding to support pilot programs to test two guaranteed disaster programs authorized by sections 12084 and 12085 of the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (Public Law 110-246).

FEDERAL DISABILITY INSURANCE TRUST FUND—Continued

The President's Budget includes a legislative proposal to establish a mandatory system for collecting data on pension income from non-covered State and local employment. The proposal would eliminate the current self-reporting burden on individuals and will improve payment accuracy.

This schedule reflects the effects of a program integrity allocation adjustment. More information on the allocation adjustment is included in the narrative in the Limitation on Administrative Expenses account.

The Limitation on Administrative Expenses account provides resources for the SSA to administer the OASI and DI programs, the SSI program, the Special Benefits for Certain World War II Veterans program, and certain health insurance (including prescription drug) functions for the aged and disabled.

The request for additional funding for continuing disability reviews builds on SSA's success in reducing program costs by ensuring that only individuals still too disabled to work continue to receive benefits. Continuing disability reviews are a proven investment, yielding $10 in lifetime program savings for every $1 spent. The additional funding requested also provides resources to increase the number of redeterminations of eligibility processed under title XVI of the Social Security Act. Redeterminations are also a proven investment, by ensuring that SSI recipients are receiving the correct benefit amount based on non-medical factors of eligibility. An estimate based on the 2010 request is that redeterminations processed above the base level reflects a return on investment of $7 in program savings over ten years for each $1 of additional funding spent, including savings accruing to Medicaid. The language for the additional funding permits that up to $34 million may be spent on initiatives to improve the asset verification process, provided that these initiatives are as cost-effective as SSI redeterminations. For example, the Access to Financial Institutions initiative helps SSA to identify individuals who have financial accounts exceeding the Supplemental Security Income resource limits. If there are no initiatives that meet the cost-effectiveness criteria, the funding will be used for additional continuing disability reviews and redeterminations.

Full funding of these cost increases and new enforcement investments is important. The Administration proposes to fund them as contingent appropriations. To ensure full funding of continuing disability reviews and redeterminations, the Administration proposes to employ a budget enforcement mechanism that allows for an adjustment by the Budget Committees to the section 302(a) allocation to the Appropriations Committees found in the concurrent resolution on the budget. To ensure full funding of the cost increases, this adjustment would be permissible only if the base level for continuing disability reviews and redeterminations was funded at $273 million and the use of the funds was clearly restricted to the specified purpose. The maximum allowable adjustment to the 302(a) allocation would be $485 million for 2010. See additional discussion on page 40-41 of the budget document A New Era of Responsibility.

The Affordable Housing Program was created by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA). FIRREA requires each of the twelve Federal Home Loan Banks to contribute 10 percent of its previous year's net earnings to an Affordable Housing Program (AHP) to be used to subsidize the cost of affordable homeownership and rental housing. The Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) regulates the AHP and ensures that the AHP fulfills its mission.

The Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) was established as a Federal-State partnership in 1965 to invest in sustainable economic development in the 420 county Appalachian Region. The Commission is comprised of 13 members representing the States in the Region and a Federal Co-Chairman, who represents the Federal Government. It is the mission of the ARC to help the Appalachian Region reach parity with the nation by planning and coordinating regional investments and targeting resources to those communities with the greatest needs. ARC investments go toward area development and technical assistance goals, such as increasing job opportunities, improving employability, strengthening basic infrastructure and building the Appalachian Development Highway System. ARC also assists communities through support of 74 multi-county Local Development Districts (LDDs) that assist local governments in implementing economic development strategies. In 2010, ARC will continue to focus on its mission of helping the Appalachian region reach parity with the rest of the nation.

Salaries and expenses.—In this Federal-State partnership, the Federal Government contributes half of the expenses of a professional staff that works with the states and the Federal staff in operating the program. The other half of these non-Federal employee expenses are provided by member States.

Performance.—A detailed presentation of performance outcomes, measures, and targets can be found in the ARC 2010 Budget submission.

The Committee for Purchase From People Who Are Blind or Severely Disabled (the Committee) administers the AbilityOne Program (formerly known as the JWOD Program) under the authority of the Javits-Wagner-O'Day Act of 1971, as amended. The principal objective of the Program is to leverage the purchasing power of the Federal Government to provide employment opportunities for people who are blind or have other severe disabilities. The Committee accomplishes its mission by first identifying Government procurement requirements that can create employment opportunities for individuals who are blind or have other severe disabilities. Following opportunities for public comment and after due deliberation, the Committee then places such products and service requirements on the AbilityOne Procurement List, thus requiring Federal departments and agencies to procure the designated products and services from a network of over 600 qualified State and private nonprofit agencies (NPAs) employing people who are blind or have other severe disabilities.

The long-term goal of the AbilityOne Program has been and continues to be increasing job opportunities for people who are blind or have other severe disabilities. In 2008, approximately 43,000 individuals who earned $441 million in wages were employed through the AbilityOne Program. Because of their employment, these individuals have reduced their dependence on Social Security, Food Stamps, Temporary Assistance of Needy Families, and other public income transfer payments.

Because of changes in Federal procurement practices, the focus of the AbilityOne Program has changed significantly in the last decade. In an effort to become the preferred source for products and services for Federal customers, the Program has opened new lines of business in areas such as automotive fleet management, document destruction services, and secure mail facility management that offer opportunities for future employment growth and support a more streamlined, efficient Government. In addition to pursuing these initiatives, the Program has expanded the range of military unique products and services it has traditionally provided to meet the needs of the Nation's war fighters. The resources proposed for 2010 would enable the Committee to continue increasing employment opportunities for people who are blind or severely disabled while providing Federal departments and agencies with high quality products and services to support their missions.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936 (CEA), as amended. CFTC furthers the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging efficiency, assuring integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. CFTC performs daily surveillance of high-risk market activity and fundamental economic market factors as it systematically investigates the functioning of markets and market users. CFTC's oversight enables the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and CFTC constantly works to develop better tools to assist in detecting and preventing price distortions. CFTC also is responsible for detecting, investigating, and litigating violations of the CEA and CFTC regulations and monitors compliance activities of designated contract markets, registered commodities professionals, and self-regulatory organizations.

The Administration proposes increased resources for the CFTC in 2009. These increased resources will ensure proper oversight of the markets through the maintenance of adequate staffing levels, which generally have been held constant for years in the face of substantial market growth—trading volume has increased six-fold over the past 10 years. The resources will allow the Commission to make improvements in information technology by upgrading hardware and software, and by improving existing systems and developing new systems critical to maintaining adequate market oversight. It will also allow the CFTC to build upon its knowledge of the increasingly complex futures markets and improve its ability to undertake enforcement actions against wrongdoers. The CFTC must remain vigilant in its supervision of critical areas such as energy markets and foreign currency fraud, and maintain expertise on the changing nature of traded products and evolving platforms on which they are traded.

The CFTC is the only Federal financial regulator that does not derive its funding from the specialized entities it regulates, and since the CFTC's programs provide clear benefits to market participants it is appropriate for those participants to at least partially offset or contribute toward the cost of providing those programs. Legislation will again be proposed to collect a fee on the settlement of contracts on commodity futures, options on futures, and other transactions set by derivatives clearing organizations. The fees would be set at a level to equal the costs to the taxpayer of funding CFTC's Market Oversight and Clearing & Intermediary Oversight functions (CFTC's non-Enforcement functions). Such fees are already imposed on futures exchanges to fund the programs of the futures industry's self-regulatory organization, and will help to offset the deficit impact of general taxpayer funding of the CFTC's activities.

The Corporation for National and Community Service (Corporation) provides opportunities for Americans to serve their community and country while meeting the Nation's greatest challenges. By working with nonprofit organizations, faith-based groups, schools, and other civic organizations, the Corporation engages Americans of all ages in community-based service that addresses educational, human, public safety, health and environmental needs. In doing so, the Corporation strengthens the ties that bind us together as a people and provides educational opportunities for those who make a commitment to service.

At the time of the development of the President's Budget, Congress was in the process of reauthorizing the Corporation, which had not occurred since the enactment of the National and Community Service Act of 1993. Now that the President has signed the Edward M. Kennedy Serve America Act into law, the Administration looks forward to working with Congress to ensure that the Corporation's budget incorporates the priorities set out in reauthorization.

The President's Budget reflects an initial investment in a significant expansion of the Corporation, particularly the AmeriCorps program. This expansion will give more Americans the opportunity to serve through new and existing Corporation programs and achieve demonstrable results.

Learn and Serve America.—Provides grants to schools, higher education institutions, and community programs to integrate service into their curricula. Service-learning aims to promote civic participation and volunteering from an early age. The 2010 Budget provides continued support for service-learning programs in our nation's schools and funds a 10-year longitudinal study on the impact of service-learning.

AmeriCorps National Civilian Community Corps.—A residential national service program for people ages 14-24. The Budget funds

1,120 AmeriCorps NCCC members that will primarily be deployed to respond to natural disasters across the nation.

AmeriCorps State and National grants.—With funds channeled through both states and community-based organizations, AmeriCorps grants enable communities to recruit, train and place AmeriCorps members to meet critical local needs in education, public safety, health, and the environment. The 2010 Budget funds 74,861 AmeriCorps State and National members. Across all AmeriCorps programs, there will be a total of 83,781 AmeriCorps members funded in the President's Budget - the first step on a path to 250,000 by 2017.

AmeriCorps Volunteers in Service to America.—The AmeriCorps VISTA program provides full-time members to community organizations and public agencies working to resolve local poverty-related problems in areas such as illiteracy, hunger, unemployment, substance abuse, homelessness, and lack of adequate health support. The 2010 Budget request funds 5,983 full-time AmeriCorps VISTA members and 1,687 Summer Associates.

AmeriCorps National Service Trust.—The Trust serves as a secure repository for educational awards set aside for eligible participants in National Service programs. The 2010 Budget for the Trust includes an increase in the amount of the education awards, and links future increases in award amounts to the maximum Pell grant awards. Accounting methodology for the Trust is specified in the Strengthen AmeriCorps Program Act of 2003.

State Service Commission Administrative Grants.—These formula grants support the operation of state service commissions that administer approximately three-fourths of AmeriCorps State and National grant funds. Commissions are responsible for monitoring sub-grantees and ensuring that they comply with Federal requirements and performance expectations. These grants must be matched by the commissions.

Senior Corps.—The Budget expands and improves Senior Corps, which connects individuals over the age of 55 to local volunteer opportunities. Volunteers in the three Senior Corps programs provide a range of vital services in their communities, including mentoring vulnerable children, providing independent living services and support to frail seniors and their caregivers, and leveraging additional volunteers.

Training and Technical Assistance.—The 2010 Budget creates a centralized account for funding training and technical assistance services to programs and entities receiving or applying for financial support from the Corporation.

Innovation, demonstration, and assistance.—This activity supports innovative and demonstration service programs. The 2010 Budget expands the range of initiatives funded by the Corporation, including a new Social Innovation Fund, which will help identify and scale-up promising programs across the country, a new Volunteer Generation Fund, and a nationwide Call to Service Campaign. These new initiatives and programs are aimed at incubating new ideas, expanding proven initiatives that address specific community needs, and supporting the generation of new volunteers. The Budget also provides continued support for the annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service.

Evaluation.—This activity supports performance measurement and studies of program impact. The 2010 Budget request will support expanded and in-depth assessments of the performance and impact of Corporation programs.

General programming.—The Corporation for Public Broadcasting provides grants to qualified public television and radio stations to be used at their discretion for purposes related to program production or acquisition, as well as for general operations. The Corporation also supports the production and acquisition of radio and television programs for national distribution. In addition, the Corporation assists in the financing of several system-wide activities, including national satellite interconnection services and the payment of music royalty fees, and provides limited technical assistance, research, and planning services to improve system-wide capacity and performance. By custom, the Corporation has received an advance appropriation. For 2010, appropriations of $420 million were enacted in 2008, and for 2011, appropriations of $430 million were enacted in 2009.

The Administration proposes to continue supporting the Corporation through advance appropriations, and includes $440 million in the Budget for 2012.

Digital Transition.— The Budget proposes that in 2010, $36 million in additional funding be provided for digital conversion grants to public television broadcasters. The digital television transition will occur on June 12, 2009, and these funds will ensure that public broadcasters can provide digital broadcasts and content to their communities.

Interconnection.—The Corporation, in an agreement with National Public Radio, continues replacement of the public radio interconnection system, which is the major national distribution network for public broadcasting stations. The Budget proposes that $25 million be provided in 2010 for the final phase of replacing and upgrading of the interconnection system.

The National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act established the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency (CSOSA) for the District of Columbia as an independent Federal agency, which has assumed the District of Columbia (D.C.) pretrial services, adult probation, and parole supervision functions. The mission of CSOSA is to increase public safety, prevent crime, reduce recidivism and support the fair administration of justice in close collaboration with the community.

The CSOSA appropriation supports the Community Supervision Program and the Pretrial Services Agency.

Community Supervision Program.—This activity provides supervision in the community of adult offenders on probation, parole, or supervised release, consistent with a crime prevention strategy that emphasizes public safety and successful re-entry into the community through an integrated system of close supervision, routine drug testing, treatment support services, and graduated sanctions. The activity also develops and provides the courts and the U.S. Parole Commission with critical information for probation and parole decisions. The Budget proposes additional resources for Global Positioning System (GPS) monitoring for high-risk offenders to enhance law enforcement and public safety functions.

Pretrial Services Agency.—This activity assists the trial and appellate levels of both the Federal and local courts in determining eligibility for pretrial release by providing background information on all arrestees. The background information is used to establish release conditions to ensure defendants will return to court and will not be a danger to the community while on pretrial release. The Pretrial Services Agency is further responsible for supervising conditions of release, conducting drug testing, administering graduated sanctions, referring defendants to treatment and other social services, and reporting on defendants' compliance to the courts. The Budget proposes additional resources to provide enhanced monitoring of high-risk defendants through the expansion of pilot cellular monitoring and Global Positioning System (GPS) programs.

The Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board, authorized by Public Law 100-456, is responsible for evaluating the content and implementation of the standards relating to the design, construction, operation, and decommissioning of defense nuclear facilities of the Department of Energy (DOE). The Board also reviews the design of new DOE defense nuclear facilities and periodically reviews and monitors construction of such facilities to ensure adequate protection of public and worker health and safety. In addition, the National Defense Authorization Act for 1992 and 1993 (Public Law 102-190) expanded the Board's jurisdiction to include facilities and activities involved with the assembly, disassembly, and testing of nuclear weapons. The Board is also responsible for investigating any event or practice at a defense nuclear facility which has or may adversely affect public health and safety. The Board makes specific recommendations to the Secretary of Energy on measures that should be adopted to ensure that both public and employee health and safety are adequately protected.

The Delta Regional Authority (DRA), authorized by P.L.106-554, was established as a Federal-State partnership to assist the eight-state, 252-county Mississippi Delta region in obtaining the economic development essential to create and sustain strong local economies.

In 2010, DRA will focus on multi-state planning and the facilitation of regional investments towards this mission. Available grant investments will go toward basic public and transportation infrastructure, business development, job training and employment-related education, with DRA funding prioritized to distressed areas within the region.

The FY 2010 Budget proposes to permanently restore the DRA Federal cochairperson's voting power so that a decision of the DRA again requires an affirmative vote of the Federal cochairperson as well as a majority of the State members. That authority lapsed as of December 31, 2008.

The 2010 Budget includes a proposal to settle claims of prior discrimination brought by black farmers against the Department of Agriculture that were previously addressed by section 14012 of P.L. 110-246. Legislation will be proposed to provide mandatory funding for a court-approved settlement of litigation that will require the payment of valid claims pursuant to a privately managed settlement process. Upon enactment, the authority would permit the expeditious and judicious resolution of discrimination claims with minimal burden on the claimants and the government.

Under the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997, the Federal Government is required to finance the District of Columbia Courts. This Federal payment to the District of Columbia Courts funds the operations of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, Superior Court, the Court System, and the Capital Improvement Program. Capital improvements include establishing a permanent home for the D.C. Family Court, a complete renovation of the historic Old Courthouse, as well as design and renovation work on several other buildings in Judiciary Square.

The 2010 Budget provides resources to support the Courts' personal services budget, as well as resources for the Capital Improvement Program to continue the renovation of the Old Courthouse, including renovation of the adult holding facility, and to provide much needed general facility improvements.

By law, the annual budget includes estimates of the expenditures for the operations of the District of Columbia Courts prepared by the Joint Committee on Judicial Administration in the District of Columbia and the President's recommendation for funding District Courts operations. The President's recommended level of $249 million includes: $179 million for District of Columbia Court of Appeals, Superior Court of the District of Columbia, and the District of Columbia Court System operations; and $70 million for capital improvements for District courthouse facilities. Under a separate transmittal to the Congress, the District Courts are requesting $352 million: $190 million for operations and $162 million for capital improvements.

The District of Columbia Courts appoint and compensate attorneys to represent persons who are financially unable to obtain such representation under three Defender Services programs: the Criminal Justice Act (CJA) program, which provides court-appointed attorneys to indigent persons who are charged with criminal offenses; the Counsel for Child Abuse and Neglect (CCAN) program, which provides court-appointed attorneys for family proceedings in which child neglect is alleged, or where the termination of the parent-child relationship is under consideration and the parent, guardian, or custodian of the child is indigent; the Guardianship program, which provides for the representation and protection of mentally incapacitated individuals and minors whose parents are deceased. In addition to legal representation, these programs provide indigent persons with services such as: transcripts of court proceedings; expert witness testimony; foreign and sign language interpretation; and investigations and genetic testing. The President's recommended funding level for Defender Services is $52 million. Under a separate transmittal to the Congress, the Courts are requesting $55 million for Defender Services.

CRIME VICTIMS COMPENSATION FUND

The D.C. Superior Court has a Crime Victims Compensation Program that assists innocent victims of violent crime and their families with crime-related expenses such as funeral and burial costs, medical and mental health costs, lost wages, loss of support and services, clean up of a crime scene and the cost of temporary shelter for victims of domestic violence or arson. Through the services of a victim advocate, crime victims receive assistance in filing applications; locating victim service programs, support groups, or mental health counselors; and handling quality of life issues that arise after victimization. Monies in the fund consist of assessments imposed upon criminal defendants, a grant from the U.S. Department of Justice Office for Victims of Crime, and a portion of the general revenue of the court. Of any unobligated balances remaining in the Fund at the end of each year, 50 percent is made available to the D.C. Courts for direct compensation to crime victims and 50 percent is transferred to the District of Columbia for outreach activities.

The National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997, as amended (the Act), requires the Secretary of the Treasury to make payments at the end of each fiscal year, beginning in 1998, from the General Fund of the Treasury into the District of Columbia Judicial Retirement and Survivors Annuity Fund (Judicial Fund). Annual payments consist of amounts necessary to amortize the original unfunded liability over 30 years, the net experience gain or loss over 10 years, and any other changes in actuarial liability over 20 years; and amounts necessary to fund the normal cost and covered administrative expenses for the year. This account receives the annual payments from the General Fund and immediately transfers those amounts to the Judicial Fund through an expenditure transfer.

The Budget proposes $19 million to support permanent supportive housing in the District. This program, modeled on the best practices of other public programs, places vulnerable individuals and families in permanent housing first, and then provides treatment for other challenges that may be at the root of the homelessness. This approach has had success in other cities and is a new Federal partnership with D.C. for 2010. The Budget also provides $5 million to support the District's efforts to reconnect disconnected youth to positive school and work-related activities, including through new Neighborhood-based Service Coalitions. The Budget includes $15 million for the District's forensic laboratory needs; $20 million for the D.C. Water and Sewer Authority to support critical infrastructure needs; and $2 million in one time support for the D.C. National Guard.

The 1990 District of Columbia Appropriations Act established a system "to improve the means by which the District of Columbia (now the D.C. Water and Sewer Authority, DCWASA) is paid for water and sanitary sewer services furnished to the Government of the United States or any department, agency, or independent establishment thereof." Each agency is to pay 25 percent of its estimated yearly bill each quarter by depositing its payment into this account. If an agency does not submit payment on time, Treasury is directed to pay the Government-wide bill, making up the difference from a permanent, indefinite appropriation account, which is then to be reimbursed by the appropriate agencies.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-58) authorizes the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) to certify an Electric Reliability Organization (ERO) to establish and enforce reliability standards for the electric bulk-power system. These standards include requirements for operating existing bulk-power system facilities, including cybersecurity protection, and design of planned additions or modifications to these facilities to provide for reliable operation, but does not include requirements to construct new transmission or generation capacity. On July 20, 2006, FERC certified the North American Electric Reliability Corporation as the ERO. ERO is funded by fees on end users of the bulk-power system. Since it is anticipated that ERO will not report budget data to Treasury, ERO funding is based on estimates.

The 2010 Budget for EEOC aligns the agency's staffing and funding request with the Strategic Plan, Strategic Objective, Justice and Opportunity and Inclusive Workplaces. Allocations are further distributed among the agency's programs. EEOC continues to work toward developing a more effective organization to support its mission-related work. In addition, EEOC will continue to make the agency more accessible and responsive to citizens' needs. EEOC's enforcement responsibilities are in two areas; the private sector and the Federal sector.

Private sector: EEOC addresses equal employment opportunity in several ways. The agency investigates charges alleging employment discrimination; makes findings on the allegations; resolves charges through mediation; negotiates settlement or conciliation; and litigates cases of employment discrimination by enforcing compliance with existing laws and regulations. The priority for agency resources continues to be on maintaining a manageable inventory of cases.

The purpose of the Export-Import Bank (Ex-Im Bank or the Bank) is to sustain U.S. jobs by financing U.S. exports. To accomplish its objectives, the Bank's authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet officially sponsored foreign export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers. The Bank provides its export credit support through direct loan, loan guarantee, and insurance programs. The Bank is actively assisting small- and medium-sized businesses.

The 2010 Budget estimates that the Bank's export credit support will total $16.1 billion, and will be funded entirely by receipts collected from the Bank's customers. The Bank estimates it will collect $194.0 million in FY 2010 in receipts in excess of expected losses on transactions authorized in FY 2010 and prior years. These amounts will be used to: 1) cover the estimated costs for that portion of new authorizations where fees are insufficient to cover expected losses in an amount not to exceed $58.0 million, and 2) to cover administrative expenses in an amount not to exceed $83.9 million, of which $11.8 million are budgeted for technology expenses. Amounts collected in fiscal year 2010 in excess of obligations, up to $50.0 million, shall become available on September 1, 2010 and shall remain available until September 30, 2013. Any excess above $50.0 million will be deposited in the General Fund of the Treasury.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for Ex-Im Bank, the subsidy costs associated with direct loans and direct grants obligated, and loan guarantees and insurance committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Ex-Im Bank is a wholly-owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury.

The Ex-Im Bank has a reserve for possible credit losses, which provides for the risk of loss inherent in the lending process. This reserve is a general reserve, available to absorb credit losses related to the total loan portfolio. The reserve is increased by provisions charged to expenses and decreased by charge-offs, net of recoveries.

The provision for possible credit losses is based on the Bank's evaluation of the adequacy of the reserve, taking into consideration a variety of factors, including repayment status of loans, future risk factors, the relationship of the reserve to the portfolio, and worldwide economic conditions. Providing for such possible losses does not imply that any loans will be written off. It simply recognizes the fact that the prospects for collection of some of the Bank's loans are impaired. It does not provide for losses on a country-by-country basis and is intended only to provide an overall revaluation of the loan portfolio.

The Ex-Im Bank's Net Excess of Program Revenue over Costs was ($204.5) million in 2008. Total Government Net Position in the corporation was $67.1 million on September 30, 2008.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for Ex-Im Bank, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated and loan guarantees and insurance committed prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis. All new activity in this program in 1992 and beyond is recorded in corresponding program and financing accounts.

The Farm Credit Administration (FCA) is an independent Federal agency that examines and regulates the Farm Credit System (System) for safety and soundness and program compliance. The System is a cooperative agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations that lends to farmers, ranchers, and their cooperatives; farm related businesses; rural homeowners; and rural utilities. The FCA also performs the examination and general supervision of the Farmer Mac. In addition, FCA annually examines the National Consumer Cooperative Bank.

As of October 1, 2008, the System was composed of four Farm Credit Banks, one Agricultural Credit Bank, 92 associations, five service corporations, the Federal Farm Credit Banks Funding Corporation, and the Farmer Mac.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from institutions in the System, including the Farmer Mac, and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year budgets approved by the FCA Board.

The Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation (Corporation) was established to ensure the timely payment of principal and interest on insured System debt obligations purchased by investors. The Corporation is managed by a three member Board of Directors that consists of the same individuals as the Farm Credit Administration Board. The Corporation derives its revenues from insurance premiums collected from insured System banks and from the investment income earned on its investment portfolio. Insurance premiums are assessed on System banks based on the level of adjusted insured obligations outstanding in each bank. Congress established a secure base amount of 2 percent of adjusted outstanding insured System obligations, or such other amount determined by the Corporation's Board of Directors to be actuarially sound to maintain in the Insurance Fund. The Insurance Fund was below the secure base amount at September 30, 2008 at 1.74 percent. During the first half of 2008, the Corporation assessed premiums at 15 basis points on accrual loans and 25 basis points on non-accrual loans. Changes to the Corporation's premium authorities were included in the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008. The new authorities changed the assessment base from loans to adjusted insured obligations and raised the assessment limit to 20 basis points, plus an additional 10 basis points on non-accrual loans and other-than-temporarily impaired investments. In January 2009, the Corporation's Board determined insurance premium rates for 2009.

The Insurance Fund is available for payment on insured System obligations if a System bank defaults on its primary liability. The Insurance Fund is also available to ensure the retirement of certain eligible borrower stock, and to pay the operating costs of the Corporation. The Corporation can exercise its authority to make loans, purchase System bank assets or obligations, provide other financial assistance and otherwise act to reduce its exposure to losses.

The Corporation has the authority to make refunds of excess Insurance Fund balances. No refunds are anticipated in 2009.

Under the Telecommunications Act of 1996, telecommunications carriers that provide interstate and international telecommunications services are required to contribute funds for the preservation and advancement of universal service. The contributions provided, in turn, by each carrier's subscribers, are used to provide services eligible for universal service support as determined by the Commission. Eligible telecommunications carriers receive support from the universal service funds if they (1) provide service to high-cost areas, (2) provide eligible services at a discount to schools, libraries or rural health care providers, or (3) provide subsidized service or subsidized telephone installation to low-income consumers. Interest income on these funds is utilized to reduce carrier contributions. Contributions also fund the Administrative costs of the program.

The Administration supports Universal Service Fund reforms, that will help ensure subsidies are well-targeted, demonstrate results, and minimize the burden to ratepayers. In addition, the Administration will pursue means to strengthen USF financial and program management, and minimize waste, fraud, and abuse.

This program provided direct loans for the purpose of purchasing spectrum licenses at the Federal Communications Commission's auctions. The licenses were purchased on an installment basis, which constitutes an extension of credit. The first year of activity for this program was 1996.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis and administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis. The Commission no longer offers credit terms on purchases through spectrum auctions. Program activity relates to maintenance and close-out of existing loans.

Under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA, P.L. 111-5), the National Telecommunications and Information Administration of the Department of Commerce may use up to $90 million for consumer education and outreach related to the transition to digital television broadcasts, and may transfer this amount to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) if deemed necessary and appropriate by the Secretary of Commerce, in order to aid a smooth transition to digital broadcasts by increasing awareness, particularly among groups most at risk for losing television service. Accordingly, NTIA transferred $66 million to the FCC, consistent with the notification sent to Congress on April 1, 2009. NTIA and the FCC are tailoring digital television transition outreach efforts to respond to changing circumstances, and if future transfers are deemed necessary and appropriate, the Congress will be advised in accordance with the ARRA.

BROADBAND TECHNOLOGY OPPORTUNITIES PROGRAM, RECOVERY ACT

As directed in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5), the FCC will develop a national broadband plan and consult with the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) of the Department of Commerce in their implementation of the Broadband Technology Opportunities Program. The Secretary of Commerce, in consultation with the FCC and following Congressional notification, may transfer amounts to the FCC for carrying out these responsibilities.

DOMESTIC SATELLITE SERVICE SPECTRUM LICENSE AUCTIONS

The Administration proposes to ensure that spectrum licenses for predominantly domestic satellite services are assigned efficiently and effectively through competitive bidding. Services such as Direct Broadcast Satellite and Satellite Digital Audio Radio Services were assigned by auction prior to a 2005 court decision that called this practice into question on technical grounds. The Administration proposes to authorize through legislation auctions of licenses for these and similar domestic satellite services. Auction receipts associated with this clarification are estimated at $200 million through 2019.

SPECTRUM LICENSE USER FEE

To promote efficient use of the electromagnetic spectrum, the Administration proposes to provide the FCC with new authority to use other economic mechanisms, such as fees, as a spectrum management tool. The Commission would be authorized to set user fees on unauctioned spectrum licenses based on spectrum-management principles. Fees would be phased in over time as part of an ongoing rulemaking process to determine the appropriate application and level for fees. Fee collections are estimated to begin in 2009, and total $4.8 billion through 2019.

SPECTRUM AUCTION AUTHORITY

The Administration proposes to extend indefinitely the authority of the FCC to auction spectrum licenses, which expires on September 30, 2012. The additional offsetting receipts associated with this permanent extension are estimated to total $1.4 billion through 2019.

[ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS—FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION]

[SEC. 501. Section 302 of the Universal Service Antideficiency Temporary Suspension Act is amended by striking "December 31, 2008", each place it appears and inserting "December 31, 2009".]

[SEC. 502. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used by the Federal Communications Commission to modify, amend, or change its rules or regulations for universal service support payments to implement the February 27, 2004 recommendations of the Federal-State Joint Board on Universal Service regarding single connection or primary line restrictions on universal service support payments.] (Financial Services and General Government Appropriations Act, 2009.)

These provisions unnecessarily increase the risk of financial mismanagement of the Fund and limit reforms that could improve the efficiency of the program and reduce burdens on telephone ratepayers.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices.

The Financial Institutions Reform Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 established the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF), the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF), and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) Resolution Fund (FRF). Under the Deposit Insurance Reform Act of 2005, the BIF and SAIF were merged into a new Deposit Insurance Fund (DIF) during 2006. Under the Deposit Insurance Reform Act, the deposit insurance ceiling for retirement accounts was increased to $250,000. In addition, beginning in 2011, and every five years thereafter, FDIC and NCUA will have the authority to increase deposit insurance coverage limits for retirement and non-retirement accounts based on inflation if the Boards of the FDIC and NCUA determine such an increase is warranted. As part of its efforts to implement the new legislation, in November 2006 the FDIC Board approved a new system of risk-based premiums to be charged to depository institutions, and adopted a rate schedule intended to return the Deposit Insurance Fund to a Designated Reserve Ratio (the ratio of fund equity to insured deposits) of 1.25 percent. Pursuant to the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008, individual deposits are currently insured up to $250,000 until December 31, 2009. After December 31, 2009, individual deposits will be insured up to $100,000 per Deposit Insurance Reform Act of 2005.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 generally requires FDIC to use the least costly method to resolve failed banks, and mandates that FDIC take prompt corrective action against under-capitalized financial institutions. In order to accomplish its varied functions to protect depositors, FDIC is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured institutions and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as an insurer.

The primary purpose of the Deposit Insurance Fund (DIF) is to insure deposits and protect the depositors of failed institutions. Under the Deposit Insurance Reform Act of 2005, the FDIC's Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and its Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF) were merged into the new Deposit Insurance Fund on March 31, 2006. Through the DIF, the FDIC will resolve and recover funds disbursed from the assets of failed institutions. The FDIC is authorized to charge risk-based premiums on member institutions to restore and maintain adequate fund reserves, which must be a designated percent of estimated insured deposits (the reserve ratio) as set by the FDIC before the beginning of each year. The FDIC must set the designated reserve ratio between 1.15 and 1.50 percent of estimated insured deposits each year. If the ratio is projected to fall below 1.15 percent, the FDIC must develop a restoration plan to ensure the ratio is at or above the minimum ratio level within five years (absent extraordinary circumstances). For 2007, 2008, and 2009, the FDIC Board set the designated reserve ratio at 1.25 percent.

There has been significant deterioration of conditions in the banking industry since summer 2007. As of December 31, 2008, the FDIC classified 252 institutions with $159 billion in assets as "problem institutions" (institutions with the highest risk ratings), a level of problem assets almost four times higher than as of December 2007. As of December 31, 2008, the DIF reserve ratio stood at 0.40 percent, or $40.6 billion below the level that would meet the target reserve ratio of 1.25 percent.

The FDIC reported that the DIF reserve ratio had fallen below the minimum level of 1.15 percent as of June 30, 2008. Pursuant to 12 U.S.C. 1817(b), the FDIC proposed a plan to restore the DIF to 1.15 percent within 5 years by significantly increasing annual insurance premiums, estimated at the time as an annual effective rate of 13.5 basis points. Citing the significant strains on the banking industry, on February 27, 2009, the FDIC used its authority under "extraordinary circumstances" to extend the DIF restoration plan horizon to seven years. The FDIC also announced both further increases to regular assessment rates from those proposed in October, and a one-time special assessment on the banking industry of 20 basis points in order to increase the resources available to the DIF for resolving bank failures.

The Budget proposes to increase the FDIC's borrowing authority from $30 billion to $100 billion. By enhancing the FDIC's ability to finance losses from resolving failed institutions, the proposal would enable the FDIC to grant a deposit insurance premium reprieve in the near term when bank earnings are already strained. The Budget projects that the temporary reprieve would be followed by steady increases in insurance premium assessments as the economy and bank health recover. The Budget projects the DIF reserve ratio will return to 1.15 percent in 2015 and 1.25 percent in 2016.

The Non-Interest Bearing Transaction Account Guarantee is another component of the Temporary Liquidity Guarantee Program (TLGP). Through this guarantee, the FDIC covers without limit any losses that uninsured depositors incur within non-interest bearing transaction account deposits. This program was intended to promote funding stability, and would have the effect of protecting small business payrolls held at banks and thrifts. FDIC charges additional premiums for any banks that voluntarily opt into this program. The Budget projects that the program will guarantee approximately $700 billion in additional bank deposits over the life of the program. This new guarantee expires December 31, 2009. For more information, please see the Credit and Insurance chapter of the Analytical Perspectives volume of the Budget.

On October 14, 2008, using its existing authority, the FDIC created the Temporary Liquidity Guarantee Program (TLGP), aimed at freeing up funding for banks. As part of the TLGP, the FDIC guarantees qualifying bank and bank holding company debt. Under the senior unsecured debt guarantee, if there is default on the debt, the FDIC will make required principal and interest payments to unsecured senior debt holders. The FDIC charges additional premiums for any banks that voluntarily opt into this program. The program has been designed to promote liquidity by allowing banks to rollover existing debt. The guarantee was originally limited to unsecured debt issued on or before June 30, 2009, expiring June 30, 2012. On March 17, 2009 the FDIC extended the eligible period to issue debt through October 31, 2009 and levied a surcharge on debt issued between April 1, 2009 and October 31, 2009, which will be transferred to the Deposit Insurance Fund. As of March 31, 2009, the program guaranteed approximately $300 billion of debt. The Budget projects that the program will guarantee approximately $600 billion in bank loans over the life of the program. The FSLIC Resolution Fund (FRF) is the successor to FSLIC assets and liabilities from thrift resolutions prior to August 1989. Beginning in August 1989, the RTC assumed responsibility for the FSLIC's unresolved cases. On December 31, 1995, the RTC was terminated and its assets and liabilities were transferred to FRF.

Funds for FRF operations have come from: income earned on its assets; liquidation proceeds from receiverships; the proceeds of the sale of bonds by the Financing Corporation; and, a portion of insurance premiums paid by SAIF members prior to 1993. The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act authorizes appropriations to make up for any shortfall. The FRF will terminate upon the disposition of all its assets, and any net proceeds will be paid to the Treasury. Net proceeds from the former RTC will be paid to the Resolution Funding Corporation. Based on information provided by the FDIC, the Budget projects this dissolution to occur in 2012.

FDIC's Office of Inspector General (OIG) is an independent unit within FDIC that conducts audits, evaluations and investigations of corporate activities and assists FDIC in preventing and detecting fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement. The OIG was established by the FDIC Board of Directors pursuant to the Inspector General Act amendments of 1988 (Public Law 100-504). The Resolution Trust Corporation Completion Act, enacted December 17, 1993, provided that the FDIC Inspector General be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The Completion Act thus added FDIC to the establishments whose OIGs have separate appropriation accounts under Section 1105(a) of Title 31, United States Code. The OIG's appropriations are derived from the Deposit Insurance Fund; however, if the OIG performed work in connection with the FSLIC Resolution Fund (FRF), the cost of such work would be derived from the FRF.

Enacted October 14, 2008, the Inspector General Reform Act of 2008 contains various requirements affecting OIG and its operations, including the budgetary process. The requirements of the Act will be implemented as appropriate.

The High-Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas (HIDTA) program was established by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, as amended, and the Office of National Drug Control Policy Reauthorization Act of 2006, to provide assistance to Federal, State and local law enforcement entities operating in those areas most adversely affected by drug trafficking.

The HIDTA program provides resources to Federal, State, and local agencies in each HIDTA region to carry out activities that address the specific drug threats of that region. A central feature of the HIDTA program is the discretion granted to HIDTA Executive Boards to design and carry out activities that reflect the specific drug trafficking threats found in each HIDTA region. This discretion ensures that each HIDTA Executive Board can tailor its strategy and initiatives closely to local conditions and can respond quickly to changes in those conditions. Among the types of activities funded by the HIDTA program are: drug enforcement task forces comprised of multiple Federal, State, and local agencies designed to dismantle and disrupt drug trafficking organizations (DTOs); multi-agency intelligence centers that provide drug intelligence to HIDTA initiatives and participating agencies; initiatives to establish or improve interoperability of communications and information systems between and among law enforcement agencies; and investments in technology infrastructure.

The Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council (FFIEC) was established on March 10, 1979, pursuant to title X of the Financial Institutions Regulatory and Interest Rate Control Act of 1978 (FIRA), Public Law 95-630. In 1989, title XI of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) established the Appraisal Subcommittee (ASC) within the Examination Council.

The Council is a formal interagency body empowered to prescribe uniform principles, standards, and report forms for the federal examination of financial institutions by its members: the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (FRB), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA), the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), and the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) and to make recommendations to promote uniformity in the supervision of financial institutions.

The Council was given additional statutory responsibilities by section 340 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1980 to facilitate public access to data that depository institutions must disclose under the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act of 1975 (HMDA) and the aggregation of annual HMDA data, by census tract, for each metropolitan statistical area (MSA). The Council has established, in accordance with the requirement of the statute, an advisory State Liaison Committee (SLC) composed of five representatives of state supervisory agencies. In 2006, the State Liaison Committee was added to the Council as a voting member. The SLC includes representatives from the Conference of State Bank Supervisors (CSBS), the American Council of State Savings Supervisors (ACSSS), and the National Association of State Credit Union Supervisors (NASCUS).

The Budget estimates the Council will spend approximately $14 million during 2010.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (Public Law 101-73) established the Appraisal Subcommittee of the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council. Subsequent legislation (Public Law 101-235) authorized the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to designate a member of the Appraisal Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee is charged with ensuring that real estate appraisals used in federally-related transactions are performed in accordance with uniform standards by appraisers certified and licensed by the States. Its responsibilities include: (1) monitoring the requirements established by the States for the certification and licensing of appraisers; (2) monitoring the requirements established by the Federal financial institutions' regulatory agencies regarding appraisal standards; (3) monitoring and reviewing the practices, procedures, activities, and organization of the Appraisal Foundation; and, (4) maintaining a national registry of licensed and certified appraisers.

Subcommittee activities, including grants awarded to the Appraisal Foundation, were initially funded from a one-time appropriation of $5 million. These funds were repaid to Treasury at the end of 1998 in accordance with the Economic Growth and Regulatory Paperwork Reduction Act of 1996. The Subcommittee is now operating on fee income from State-licensed and certified real estate appraisers in the national registry.

The Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Pub. L. 110-289) reformed and strengthened the Government Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs) safety and soundness regulator by creating the Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA), a new independent regulator for Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and the Federal Home Loan Banks. The FHFA authorities consolidate and expand upon the regulatory and supervisory roles of the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (OFHEO), formerly within the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Secretary of HUD, and the Federal Housing Finance Board (FHFB). FHFA receives direct funding for its activities from mandatory assessments on the regulated enterprises.

The Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) is an independent administrative Federal agency created by Title VII of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (the Statute) with a mission to carry out five statutory responsibilities: (1) determining the appropriateness of units for labor organization representation; (2) resolving complaints of unfair labor practices; (3) adjudicating exceptions to arbitrators' awards; (4) adjudicating legal issues relating to duty to bargain; and (5) resolving impasses during negotiations. All work throughout the agency is undertaken to support a single program—to administer and enforce the Statute by determining the respective rights of employees, agencies, and labor organizations in their relations with one another.

FLRA's authority is divided by law and by delegation among a three-member Authority and an Office of General Counsel, appointed by the President and subject to Senate confirmation; and the Federal Service Impasses Panel, which consists of seven part-time members appointed by the President.

FLRA does not initiate cases. Proceedings before FLRA originate from filings arising through the actions of Federal employees, Federal agencies, or Federal labor organizations. Nationwide, FLRA includes seven Regional Offices, one satellite office, and a Headquarters site in Washington, D.C.

Authority.—The Authority adjudicates appeals filed by either Federal agencies or Federal labor organizations on negotiability issues, exceptions to arbitration awards, appeals of representation decisions, eligibility of labor organizations for national consultation rights, and unfair labor practice complaints.

Office of the General Counsel.—The General Counsel investigates allegations of unfair labor practices and processes representation petitions. In addition, the General Counsel conducts elections concerning the exclusive recognition of labor organizations and certifies the results of elections.

Federal Service Impasses Panel.—The Panel resolves labor negotiation impasses between Federal agencies and labor organizations.

The Federal Maritime Commission (FMC, or the Commission) regulates oceanborne transportation in the foreign commerce of the United States. The Commission administers the Shipping Act of 1984 (Shipping Act) as amended by the Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 1988 (OSRA); section 19 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920 (1920 Act); the Foreign Shipping Practices Act of 1988 (FSPA); and Public Law 89-777.

The Commission monitors the activities of ocean common carriers, marine terminal operators, conferences (agreements among carriers exempted from antitrust law), ports and ocean transportation intermediaries (OTIs) who operate in the U.S. foreign commerce to ensure that they maintain just and reasonable practices. FMC maintains a trade monitoring program to detect and appropriately remedy malpractices and prohibited acts under the Shipping Act; monitors the laws and practices of foreign governments which could have adverse impact on shipping conditions in U.S. trades and imposes remedial action as appropriate under section 19 of the 1920 Act or the FSPA. FMC enforces regulatory requirements applicable to carriers owned or controlled by foreign governments; processes and reviews carrier agreements, service contracts and service arrangements for compliance with the Shipping Act, and reviews carriers' privately published tariff systems for public accessibility and accuracy as required by OSRA. The Commission also issues licenses to qualified OTIs in the U.S., ensures that all OTIs are bonded to protect the shipping public from financial loss and, under P.L. 89-777, ensures that passenger vessel operators demonstrate adequate financial responsibility to indemnify passengers in case of injury or nonperformance of transportation.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) provides assistance to parties in labor disputes in industries affecting commerce through conciliation and mediation.

Dispute mediation.—FMCS assists labor and management in the mediation and prevention of disputes, other than those involving rail and air transportation, whenever such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of interstate commerce or a major impairment to the national defense. FMCS also makes mediation and conciliation services available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. FMCS provides mandatory mediation and, where necessary, impartial boards of inquiry to assist in resolving labor disputes involving private nonprofit health care institutions. The workload shown below includes assignments in both the private and public sectors. These numbers include collective bargaining and grievance mediation.

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board is responsible for managing the Thrift Savings Fund. Program administration for the Fund is financed from the Fund. Program expenses are derived first from Fund forfeitures of agency one percent automatic contributions for employees who separate from the Federal Government prior to vesting and then from earnings on all participant and agency contributions to the Fund.

The Thrift Savings Fund is a special tax-deferred savings fund established by the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986. Due to the fiduciary nature of the Fund, it is not included in the totals of the Federal budget. Information on the financial status and activities of the Fund follows this account.

All Federal civilian employees and members of the uniformed services are eligible to contribute to the Fund. However, only those civilian employees covered by the Federal Employees' Retirement System (or equivalent retirement systems) and a limited category of uniformed services personnel may have their contributions matched by the employing agencies in accordance with the formulas prescribed by law. Employees are entitled to select how contributions are distributed among five investment funds: a U.S. Government securities investment fund; a fixed income index investment fund; a common stock index investment fund; a small capitalization stock index investment fund; and an international stock index investment fund. A series of five lifecycle funds was introduced in August 2005. These funds are composed of varying allocations of the five core investment funds. The allocations are based on the target maturity date of each fund.

The Federal Trade Commission (the Commission or FTC) seeks to protect consumers and enhance competition by eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the marketing of goods and services and by ensuring that consumer markets function competitively. The FTC's work is based on the belief that competition among producers, and accurate information in the hands of consumers, brings the best products and lowest prices to the marketplace, spurs innovation, and strengthens the economy.

Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting commerce. The goal of consumer protection is to prevent fraud, deception, and unfair business practices in the marketplace. The agency works to accomplish this goal through four objectives: (1) identify fraud, deception, and unfair practices that cause the greatest consumer injury; (2) stop fraud, deception, and unfair practices through law enforcement; (3) prevent consumer injury through education; and (4) enhance consumer welfare through research, reports, advocacy, and international cooperation and exchange.

Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts are aimed at fostering and preserving our competitive market. The goal of maintaining competition is to prevent anticompetitive mergers and other anticompetitive business practices in the marketplace. The agency works to accomplish this goal through four objectives: (1) identify anticompetitive mergers and practices that cause the greatest consumer injury; (2) stop anticompetitive mergers and practices through law enforcement; (3) prevent consumer injury through education; and (4) enhance consumer welfare through research, reports, advocacy, and international cooperation and exchange.

The 2010 Budget includes a program level for the Commission of $287 million in 2010, allowing the Commission to maintain the current performance of its missions. The 2010 requested program level will be fully funded by $158 million from the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury and offsetting collections from two sources: $110 million from fees for Hart-Scott-Rodino Act premerger notification filings as authorized by 15 U.S.C. 18a and $19 million from fees sufficient to implement and enforce the Telemarketing Sales Rule, promulgated under the Telemarketing and Consumer Fraud and Abuse Prevention Act (15 U.S.C. 6101 et seq., as amended).

The Intelligence Community Management Account (ICMA) provides resources that directly support the Director of National Intelligence (DNI) and the Intelligence Community (IC) as a whole in coordinating cross-program activities, improving budget oversight, and strengthening Community Management. ICMA funds selected oversight elements including the National Intelligence Council, the Center for Security Evaluation, the DNI Special Security Center, the President's Daily Briefing Staff, and other enterprise-wide functions.

These oversight elements are the DNI's principal source of advice and assistance in planning and executing his intelligence community management responsibilities. These responsibilities include: developing the National Intelligence Program budget, developing intelligence plans and requirements, and overseeing research and development activities. The National Intelligence Council provides analytical support to the DNI and to national policy makers. The Center for Security Evaluation is responsible for evaluating and improving security capabilities at United States embassies. The DNI Special Security Center develops uniform IC-wide security policies. The President's Daily Briefing Staff supports the production of the daily intelligence briefing that is provided to the President and his senior staff.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent, quasi-judicial Federal agency established by Congress with broad investigative responsibilities on matters of trade. The mission of the Commission is threefold: administer U.S. trade remedy laws within its mandate in a fair and objective manner; provide the President, the United States Trade Representative, and the Congress with independent, quality analysis, information, and support on matters of tariffs and international trade and competitiveness; and maintain the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States.

For 2010, the Commission requests an appropriation of $82.7 million to support its authorized operations. The 2010 request represents a 10.1 percent increase over the 2009 appropriation request of $75.1 million. The increase is primarily due to the acquisition of additional space to meet workload demands, as well as required increases in salaries and benefits.

In 2006, the Commission issued the latest edition of its Strategic Plan and is currently implementing the 2009 Performance Plan. For the purpose of developing the Strategic Plan, the Commission's functions were divided into five operations and, in order to facilitate the linkage of financial resources to the achievement of strategic goals, the budget justification is structured in the same manner. There are 15 strategies for the five operations. In 2008, the Commission met or exceeded 82 percent of the performance goals.

As presented in the Commission's Strategic Plan, there are five major operations that serve the Commission's external customers:

Import Injury Investigations: These cover the conduct of the Commission's countervailing duty, antidumping, and sunset review investigations (collectively known as Title VII investigations), safeguards and market disruption investigations, and appellate litigation of challenges to the Commission's determinations.

Intellectual Property-Based Import Investigations: These cover the conduct of the Commission's adjudicatory investigations (referred to as section 337 investigations) regarding alleged unfair methods of competition and unfair acts in the importation of goods into the United States and most frequently involve allegations of patent or trademark infringement.

Industry and Economic Analysis: This covers all activities related to the acquisition, maintenance, and application of analytical and technical trade expertise. This expertise is applied through studies regarding the performance and global competitiveness of various U.S. industries, the impact of changes in trade policy on the overall economy or subsets thereof, trade and competitiveness issues, and the probable economic effect of tariff reductions and trade agreements.

Tariff and Trade Information Services: This covers a wide range of activities that provide the Congress, the Executive Branch, and the general public with reliable and timely trade information and analysis.

Trade Policy Support: This covers direct support activities for policy makers such as the provision of technical expertise and objective information on trade issues to congressional committees and members' offices, the United States Trade Representative, interagency committees, and U.S. delegations to multilateral organizations.

All of these operations define the output of the Commission, emphasizing the benefits that the Commission provides in facilitating an open trading system based on the rule of law and the economic interests of the United States. Within each operation, specific critical success indicators and strategic goals are identified. The Commission's Strategic Plan, Performance and Accountability Report, and Budget Justification are available at <http://www.usitc.gov>.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are transmitted to Congress without revision by the President.

Public Laws 99-500, 101-208, and 102-221 established the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation to operate a fellowship program to encourage graduate study of the framing, principles, and history of the American Constitution. Appropriations of $10 million in 1988 and 1989 established the foundation's trust fund. The funds have been invested by the Secretary of the Treasury in U.S. Treasury securities, and the interest earned on these funds is available for carrying out the activities of the foundation. Funds raised from private sources and the surcharges from commemorative coin sales are also placed in the trust fund.

The foundation is authorized to award graduate fellowships of up to $24,000 to high school teachers of American history, American government, and social studies. College seniors and recent college graduates who want to become secondary school teachers of these subjects are also eligible.

Fellowship awards.—This activity is comprised of fellowship awards to cover educational expenses. It also supports the foundation's annual Summer Institute on the U.S. Constitution, which all current fellows are required to attend. The Institute is an intensive educational experience that will ensure that all fellows know the history of the framing, ratification, and implementation of the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Program administration.—This activity covers the costs of planning, fund-raising, and the operation of the fellowship program.

The Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) is an independent agency in the Executive branch of the Federal government that serves as the guardian of Federal merit systems. The Board's mission is to protect Federal merit systems and the rights of individuals within those systems. The MSPB accomplishes its mission by: hearing and deciding employee appeals from agency actions; hearing and deciding cases brought by the Special Counsel involving alleged abuses of the merit systems, and other cases arising under the Board's original jurisdiction; conducting studies of the civil service and other merit systems in the Executive branch to determine whether they are free from prohibited personnel practices; and providing oversight of the significant actions and regulations of the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) to determine whether they are in accord with merit system principles and free from prohibited personnel practices. The MSPB's inception began in 1883, when Congress passed the Pendleton Act establishing the Civil Service Commission and a merit-based employment system for the Federal government. The Pendleton Act grew out of the 19th century reform movement to curtail the excesses of political patronage in government. As the Commission's responsibilities multiplied, a growing consensus emerged that it could not properly and adequately perform managerial and adjudicatory functions simultaneously. Concern over the inherent conflict of interest in the Commission's role as both rule-maker and judge was a principal motivating factor behind the enactment by Congress of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978. The Act replaced the Civil Service Commission with three new independent agencies: the OPM, which manages the Federal workforce; the Federal Labor Relations Authority, which oversees Federal labor-management relations; and the MSPB. The MSPB assumed the employee appeals functions of the Commission and was given the new responsibilities to perform merit systems studies and to review the significant actions of the OPM.

OTHER INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

The Institute is part of the Morris K. Udall Foundation, and serves as an impartial, non-partisan institution providing professional expertise, services, and resources to all parties involved in such disputes. The Institute helps parties determine whether collaborative problem solving is appropriate for specific environmental conflicts, how and when to bring all the parties to the table, and whether a third-party facilitator or mediator might be helpful in assisting the parties in their efforts to reach consensus or to resolve the conflict. In addition, the Institute maintains a roster of qualified facilitators and mediators with substantial experience in environmental conflict resolution, and can help parties in selecting an appropriate neutral. (See www.ecr.gov for more information about the Institute.)

Public Law 102-259 established the Morris K. Udall Scholarship and Excellence in National Environmental Policy Foundation to provide educational resources to promote studies in the natural environment and Native American public health and tribal policy. In 1998, Public Law 105-56 created the U.S. Institute for Environmental Conflict Resolution as part of the Foundation. The Institute provides mediation, facilitation, training, and other services to foster collaboration and resolve disputes involving federal environmental and natural resources issues.

In 2008, the Foundation awarded 80 undergraduate scholarships. Twelve Native American Congressional Summer Internship Program recipients spent ten weeks in Congressional offices and the White House participating in a program created by the Udall Foundation.

In 2009 and 2010, the Foundation will maintain its current level of scholarships and internships.

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) manages the Government's archives and records, and operates Presidential Libraries. The 2010 Budget provides funding to operate the Office of Government Information Services, administer the Controlled Unclassified Information initiative, permanently maintain pre-1952 civilian personnel records, and account for inflation.

Records services.—This program provides for selecting, preserving, describing, and making available to the public, scholars, and Federal agencies the permanently valuable historical records of the Federal Government and the historical materials and Presidential records in Presidential Libraries; for preparing related publications and exhibit programs; and for conducting the appraisal of all Federal records. This program also funds a records declassification program and the Information Security Oversight Office, established by Executive Orders 12829, 12958, and 13142.

Archives related services.—This activity provides for the publication of the Federal Register, the Code of Federal Regulations, the U.S. Statutes-at-Large, and Presidential documents, and for a program to improve the public's access to regulations.

Archives II facility.—Construction costs of the Archives II facility are financed by $302 million of federally guaranteed debt issued in 1989. Since 1994 and continuing in 2010, the Archives seeks appropriations for the annual payments for interest and redemption of debt to be made under the contract for construction and related services.

The Electronic Records Archives (ERA) is a system that will allow NARA to manage records electronically and ensure the preservation of and access to Government electronic records. ERA will preserve electronic records in a manner that enables requesters to access them on computer systems now and in the future. The ERA system will also, for the first time, automate basic functions in the lifecycle management of Federal records, including records scheduling and appraisal, and transfer of both electronic and non-electronic records to the National Archives, Presidential Libraries and Federal Records Centers.

Requested funding for 2010 will support the deployment of public access and initial preservation capabilities developed during 2009. The 2010 Budget also provides funding to establish a robust online backup and restoration service and ensure that adequate capabilities are in place for managing restricted information.

The mission of the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA) is to facilitate the availability of credit union services to all eligible consumers, especially those of modest means, through an objective independent regulatory environment that protects credit union members. Credit unions are privately owned, cooperative associations organized for the purpose of promoting thrift among their members and creating a source of credit for provident and productive purposes.

The NCUA, through its operating fund, conducts activities prescribed by the Federal Credit Union Act of 1934, as amended, which include: (a) chartering new Federal credit unions; (b) determining field of membership of Federal credit unions; (c) promulgating rules and regulations; (d) performing regulatory and safety and soundness examinations; and (e) conducting administrative activities of the share insurance fund.

The NCUA funds its activities through assessments levied on all Federally chartered credit unions, as well as funds drawn from the balance of the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund as reimbursement for administrative activities.

In 2008, NCUA chartered four new Federal credit unions, bringing the total number of Federal credit unions to 4,909, with total assets of over $442 billion.

The primary purpose of the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (SIF) is to provide insurance for deposits in member accounts (shares) in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions that apply and qualify for insurance, as authorized by Public Law 91-468, and to protect the depositors of failed institutions. The SIF reimburses the NCUA operating fund for its share of the agency's administrative costs. As of September 30, 2008, 7,904 natural person credit unions were insured by the SIF with insured shares of $598 billion, an increase of $42 billion from 2007, or 7.5 percent.

Pursuant to Public Law 98-369, each insured credit union is required to deposit and maintain in the SIF one percent of its insured member share accounts. If these one percent deposits, plus the investment income generated, do not cover all administrative and financial costs, the NCUA is authorized to assess an additional insurance premium on member credit unions based on the SIF's equity ratio (the ratio of Fund assets to the total amount of insured shares). Under current law, the SIF may borrow up to $100 million for use in unforeseen emergencies. The Budget proposes to increase the SIF's borrowing authority to $6 billion.

There has been significant deterioration of conditions in the banking and credit union industry since 2007, and on September 30th, 2008, the NCUA reported that the SIF equity ratio had fallen to 1.26 percent, below the NCUA-set target ratio of 1.30 percent. Pursuant to section 202(c)(2) of the Federal Credit Union Act, the NCUA is required to assess a premium charge on member institutions if the equity ratio in the SIF falls below 1.2 percent, which it is projected to do in 2009. The Budget reflects a proposal to permit a 7 year restoration period to return the SIF equity ratio to 1.2 percent, rather than the one year restoration period under current law. The Budget proposal projects the NCUA levying lower premiums in the near term and steadily increasing premiums through 2015. Under the proposal the SIF equity ratio will return to 1.2 percent in 2015 and 1.3 percent in 2016.

On December 9, 2008, the NCUA announced a new program designed to increase liquidity at corporate credit unions, the Credit Union System Investment Program (SIP). Under SIP, NCUA's Central Liquidity Facility will extend 1-year credit advances to credit unions. Credit unions will in turn invest those funds in corporate credit unions, providing a low cost source of liquidity for corporate credit unions that is guaranteed by the NCUA Share Insurance Fund. As of March 31, 2009, $8.2 billion has been advanced. The Budget projects advances of $12 billion for 2009.

On December 9, 2008, the NCUA announced the Credit Union Homeowners Affordability Relief Program (HARP). Under HARP, NCUA's Central Liquidity Facility will make a one year secured advance of credit up to $2 billion invested through a special corporate credit union note. This advance is renewable for a term of one year. Credit unions that reduce mortgage rates within program guidelines qualify for a bonus payment from the corporate credit union, which shares mortgage loan modification costs. The NCUA Share Insurance Fund will guarantee the special corporate credit union debt, including the bonus payment. As of March 31, 2009, $164 million has been advanced under this program.

The Community Development Credit Union Revolving Loan Fund (CDRLF) was established by the Congress in 1979 under Section 130(e) of the Federal Credit Union Act to support credit unions that serve low-income communities. Public Law 99-609, enacted on November 6, 1986, transferred the CDRLF from the Department of Health and Human Services to NCUA.

The CDRLF provides loans and technical assistance grants to qualifying credit unions with a low-income designation. The NCUA disbursed loans of $2,300,307 in fiscal year 2008 and anticipates approving at least $2,500,000 in fiscal year 2009.

In 2008, funds appropriated for grants, supplemented by CDRLF investment income, were used to fund 240 grants totaling $1,159,244. Technical assistance grants are made to low-income credit unions to help them improve the financial condition of their credit unions, provide financial services to members, and stimulate economic activities in the communities served.

The National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) supports excellence in the arts, brings the arts to all Americans, and provides leadership in arts education. In 2010, the Budget proposes $161.315 million for grants programs and associated costs, including Challenge America: Reaching Every Community and American Masterpieces: Three Centuries of Artistic Genius.

NEA will support these projects with public and private partners, including State arts agencies and regional arts organizations.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended, also authorizes NEA to receive money and other donated property. Such gifts may be used, sold, or otherwise disposed of to support arts projects and activities.

This presentation also includes the Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Fund. The Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Act of 1975, as amended, authorizes the Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities to enter into indemnity agreements to cover certain eligible works of art on exhibition in the United States or abroad. Loss or damage claims certified by the Council are paid from this fund. NEA administers the Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Program on behalf of the Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities.

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) supports educational and scholarly activities in the humanities, preserves

America's cultural and intellectual resources, and provides opportunities for all Americans to engage in learning in the humanities. In 2010, NEH will continue to support partnerships with state humanities councils; the strengthening of humanities teaching and learning in the nation's schools and higher educational institutions; efforts to preserve and increase access to books, U.S. newspapers, documents, and other reference materials, basic research and original scholarship in the humanities; and museum exhibitions, documentary films and radio programming, and reading programs in the humanities that reach general audiences.

Support is provided through outright grants, matching grants, and a combination of the two. Eligible applicants include state humanities councils, higher education institutions, libraries, museums, historical organizations, other cultural institutions and organizations; and individuals.

The National Capital Arts and Cultural Affairs program is being transferred from the Commission of Fine Arts to the National Endowment for the Humanities. The National Endowment for the Humanities will transform the National Capital Arts and Cultural Affairs program from a non-competitive grants program to a competitive grants program; place a greater emphasis on educational and public outreach on the part of the grant recipients; and encourage the use of websites and other digital technologies to expand the reach of grant recipients beyond the District of Columbia.

This presentation also includes the Gifts and Donations account. The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended, authorizes the Humanities Endowment to receive money and other donated property. Such gifts may be used, sold, or otherwise disposed of to support humanities projects and activities. Budget authority in this schedule reflects cash received each year by the Endowment.

Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Approximately 95 percent of merit unfair labor practice cases and over 88 percent of merit representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases and to avoid litigation.

Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions.

Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case, a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30 percent of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder, with exceptions filed, requires contested Board decision. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. The Board also rules on objection and challenge questions in election cases.

Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request that the appellate courts enforce its decisions.

Mediatory and alternative dispute resolution (ADR) services.—The National Mediation Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 746 rail and air carriers and approximately 795,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries. The Board's ADR program provides collective bargaining training, facilitation, and grievance mediation services to the labor-management community.

Emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which substantially threaten to interrupt essential service, may appoint emergency boards to investigate and report on the dispute. Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

Arbitration services.—Arbitration is governed by sections 3 and 7 of the Railway Labor Act. Railroad employee grievances resulting from disputes over the interpretation or application of collective bargaining contracts may be brought for settlement to the National Railroad Adjustment Board (NRAB). The divisions of the NRAB are composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives compensated by the party or parties they represent. Public Law 89-456 provides for the adjustment of disputes involving grievances resulting from interpretation or application of bargaining agreements in the railroad industry and for disputes otherwise referable to the NRAB. In these disputes, the National Mediation Board compensates the neutral selected to help resolve these grievances,

Administrative direction and support for the public law boards, special boards of adjustment, and the NRAB are provided by Federal employees who are compensated by the National Mediation Board.

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), as an independent nonregulatory agency, is charged with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents, the conduct of special studies, the development of recommendations to prevent accidents, the evaluation of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents, and the review of appeals of adverse certificate and civil penalty actions taken by the Administrators of agencies of the Department of Transportation involving airman and seaman certificates and licenses.

In 2010, the Administration requests a total funding level of $95 million for NTSB Salaries and Expenses to allow the NTSB to fulfill its role in improving safety on the Nation's transportation system.

The National Transportation Safety Board is mandated by Congress to investigate all catastrophic transportation accidents and, therefore, has no control over the frequency of costly accident investigations. The emergency fund provides a funding mechanism by which periodic accident investigation cost fluctuations can be met without delaying critical phases of the investigations. The current balance of $2 million is sufficient to cover unanticipated costs associated with an increased number of accidents, and thus the Administration does not propose new funding in 2010.

The National Veterans Business Development Corporation (NVBDC) was established under P.L. 106-50 with the purpose of providing veterans with access to education, access to capital and services, and access to markets. In assessing these goals, the NVBDC has attempted to build partnerships and conduct outreach with Federal departments and agencies, veterans service organizations, community based organizations and private sector corporations. NVBDC's original authorization provided for start-up capital but directed that the organization implement a plan to become financially self-sufficient. Consistent with this original design, the 2010 Budget provides no new funding for NVBDC.

PAYMENT TO THE NEIGHBORHOOD REINVESTMENT CORPORATION

For payment to the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation for use in neighborhood reinvestment activities, as authorized by the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 8101-8107), [$131,000,000, of which $5,000,000 shall be for a multi-family rental housing program: Provided, That of the amounts made available under this heading, $6,000,000 shall be made available to conduct a consumer mortgage public education campaign: Provided further, That funding amounts provided under the previous proviso shall be available for campaign development, production, and outreach activities. For an additional amount, $50,000,000 $133,000,000: Provided, That Section 605(a) of the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation Act (42 U.S.C. 8104) is amended by adding at the end of the first sentence, prior to the period, ", except that the board-appointed officers may be paid salary at a rate not to exceed level II of the Executive Schedule": Provided further, That in addition, $33,800,000 shall be made available until expended to the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation for mortgage foreclosure mitigation activities, under the following terms and conditions:

(1) The Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation ("NRC"), shall make grants to counseling intermediaries approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) (with match to be determined by the NRC based on affordability and the economic conditions of an area; a match also may be waived by the NRC based on the aforementioned conditions) to provide mortgage foreclosure mitigation assistance primarily to States and areas with high rates of defaults and foreclosures primarily in the subprime housing market to help eliminate the default and foreclosure of mortgages of owner-occupied single-family homes that are at risk of such foreclosure. Other than areas with high rates of defaults and foreclosures, grants may also be provided to approved counseling intermediaries based on a geographic analysis of the Nation by the NRC which determines where there is a prevalence of subprime mortgages that are risky and likely to fail, including any trends for mortgages that are likely to default and face foreclosure. A State Housing Finance Agency may also be eligible where the State Housing Finance Agency meets all the requirements under this paragraph. A HUD-approved counseling intermediary shall meet certain mortgage foreclosure mitigation assistance counseling requirements, as determined by the NRC, and shall be approved by HUD or the NRC as meeting these requirements.

(2) Mortgage foreclosure mitigation assistance shall only be made available to homeowners of owner-occupied homes with mortgages in default or in danger of default. These mortgages shall likely be subject to a foreclosure action and homeowners will be provided such assistance that shall consist of activities that are likely to prevent foreclosures and result in the long-term affordability of the mortgage retained pursuant to such activity or another positive outcome for the homeowner. No funds made available under this paragraph may be provided directly to lenders or homeowners to discharge outstanding mortgage balances or for any other direct debt reduction payments.

(3) The use of Mortgage Foreclosure Mitigation Assistance by approved counseling intermediaries and State Housing Finance Agencies shall involve a reasonable analysis of the borrower's financial situation, an evaluation of the current value of the property that is subject to the mortgage, counseling regarding the assumption of the mortgage by another non-Federal party, counseling regarding the possible purchase of the mortgage by a non-Federal third party, counseling and advice of all likely restructuring and refinancing strategies or the approval of a work-out strategy by all interested parties.

(4) NRC may provide up to 15 percent of the total funds under this paragraph to its own charter members with expertise in foreclosure prevention counseling, subject to a certification by the NRC that the procedures for selection do not consist of any procedures or activities that could be construed as an unacceptable conflict of interest or have the appearance of impropriety.

(5) HUD-approved counseling entities and State Housing Finance Agencies receiving funds under this paragraph shall have demonstrated experience in successfully working with financial institutions as well as borrowers facing default, delinquency and foreclosure as well as documented counseling capacity, outreach capacity, past successful performance and positive outcomes with documented counseling plans (including post mortgage foreclosure mitigation counseling), loan workout agreements and loan modification agreements. NRC may use other criteria to demonstrate capacity in underserved areas.

(6) Of the total amount made available under this paragraph, up to [$5,000,000 $3,000,000 may be made available to build the mortgage foreclosure and default mitigation counseling capacity of counseling intermediaries through NRC training courses with HUD-approved counseling intermediaries and their partners, except that private financial institutions that participate in NRC training shall pay market rates for such training.

(7) Of the total amount made available under this paragraph, up to 4 percent may be used for associated administrative expenses for the NRC to carry out activities provided under this section.

(8) Mortgage foreclosure mitigation assistance grants may include a budget for outreach and advertising, and training, as determined by the NRC.

[(9) The NRC shall report bi-annually to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations as well as the Senate Banking Committee and House Financial Services Committee on its efforts to mitigate mortgage default. Such reports shall identify successful strategies and methods for preserving homeownership and the long-term affordability of at-risk mortgages and shall include recommended efforts that will or likely can assist in the success of this program as well as an analysis of any policy and procedures that failed to result in successful mortgage foreclosure mitigation. The report shall include an analysis of the details and use of any post mitigation counseling of assisted borrowers designed to ensure the continued long-term affordability of the mortgages which were the subject of the mortgage foreclosure mitigation assistance.] (Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2009.)

Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation (NRC), also known as "NeighborWorks America," was established by Congress in 1978 as an original community/public/private partnership providing financial support, technical assistance, and training for affordable housing and community-based revitalization efforts nationwide to ensure that communities become and remain vibrant, healthy places for families with modest means. Through its core activities, NRC supports more than 3,300 community development organizations across the United States, including more than 235 chartered community-based non-profit organizations under different names that comprise the NeighborWorks network spanning urban, suburban, and rural communities. Over the past 30 years, the NeighborWorks network has effectively supported community development through professional training and certification, symposiums, development and promotion of industry standards, and provision of information and other services. Five years ago, NRC anticipated the current foreclosure crisis and created the NeighborWorks Center for Foreclosure Solutions with support from many partners, and since 2008 has also made a significant contribution to national efforts to address the foreclosure crisis by administering the National Foreclosure Mitigation Counseling program.

NRC receives both Federal and non-Federal funding to finance its program activities. The Budget provides $133 million in base funding and an additional $34 million for activities to preserve homeownership and those related to foreclosure mitigation and prevention. Foreclosure mitigation activities include training, increasing the number of foreclosure prevention counselors, grants to organizations that provide foreclosure prevention, and education and outreach.

Nuclear Reactor Safety.—A major part of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC) mission is to ensure that its licensees design, construct, and operate civilian reactor facilities safely. The Atomic Energy Act and the Energy Reorganization Act provide the foundation for regulating the Nation's civilian nuclear power industry. Nuclear reactor safety encompasses all NRC efforts to ensure that civilian nuclear reactor facilities and research and test reactors are operated in a manner that provides adequate protection of public health and safety and the environment, and protects against radiological sabotage and theft or diversion of special nuclear materials. These efforts include reactor licensing; reactor license renewal; operator licensing; financial assurance; inspection; performance assessment; new reactor licensing; identification and resolution of safety issues; reactor regulatory research; regulation development; operating experience evaluation; incident investigation; homeland security efforts (including threat assessment, mitigating strategies, and emergency preparedness); emergency response; investigation of alleged wrongdoing by licensees, applicants, contractors, or vendors; imposition of enforcement sanctions for violations of NRC requirements; and reactor technical and regulatory training. NRC participates in international safety support activities, including some that support the Agency's domestic mission and others that support broader U.S. national interests. These activities include international policy formulation, treaty implementation, international information exchange, international safety and safeguard assistance, and deterring nuclear proliferation. NRC will continue to maintain its security and safeguards program for civilian reactor facilities and address any significant weaknesses.

Nuclear Materials and Waste Safety.—Nuclear materials safety encompasses all NRC efforts to ensure that NRC-regulated aspects of nuclear fuel cycle facilities and nuclear materials activities are handled in a manner that provides adequate protection of public health and safety and that promotes the common defense and security. These efforts include licensing/certification, inspection, and enforcement activities; import-export licensing of nuclear materials and equipment; regulation and guidance development; nuclear materials research; identification and resolution of safety and safeguard issues; improved regulatory control of radiological sources; operating experience evaluation; incident investigation; threat assessment; emergency response; technical training; implementation of State and tribal programs; and investigation of alleged wrongdoing by licensees, applicants, certificate holders, and contractors.

Nuclear waste safety encompasses NRC's high-level waste regulatory activities associated with high-level waste disposal at the potential Yucca Mountain repository; regulatory and oversight activities for decommissioning, which involves safely removing a facility from service and reducing residual radiation to a level that permits the property to be released for unrestricted or restricted use; environmental protection; oversight of certain Department of Energy radioactive waste incidental to reprocessing; the safe and secure storage and transportation of radioactive materials through the certification of spent fuel storage containers and transportation packages; and waste safety research. Low-level radioactive waste activities associated with the disposal of waste are addressed in accordance with the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act of 1980, as amended. NRC will continue to maintain the security and safeguards program for decommissioning reactors, spent fuel storage installations, transportation packages, and storage cask designs.

The Office of Special Counsel (OSC): 1) investigates Federal employee and applicant allegations of prohibited personnel practices (including reprisal for whistleblowing) and other activities prohibited by civil service law, and when appropriate, prosecutes before the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB); 2) provides a safe channel for whistleblowing by Federal employees and applicants; 3) enforces the Uniform Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA); and 4) advises on and enforces the Hatch Act. OSC may transmit whistleblower allegations to the agency head concerned and require an agency investigation. OSC then submits a report to the Congress and the President when appropriate.

Overall in 2008, there were more than 7399 instances for which the assistance or action of OSC was sought by Federal employees and other persons, an increase of 31.4% over 2007. Many prohibited personnel practice cases investigated by OSC are resolved without recourse to formal proceedings before MSPB. In 2008, OSC obtained 62 favorable actions in prohibited personnel practice cases, 32 corrective actions in Hatch Act complaints, and 28 corrective actions in USERRA cases. Efforts to obtain such negotiated resolutions will continue. In 2008, OSC also filed one disciplinary action complaint before MSPB in a prohibited personnel practice matter, and three disciplinary action complaints before MSPB in Hatch Act matters. OSC received 445 Hatch Act complaints during 2008, an increase of 57.8% over 2007. OSC issued 4283 Hatch Act advisory opinions (both written and oral) to people who sought advice, an increase of 53.4%. During 2008, OSC's Disclosure Unit received 530 new disclosure matters for possible referral, an increase of 10.0%. The Disclosure Unit referred matters to agency heads for their review a total of 40 times during 2008.

OSC's Strategic Plan focuses on continuing to improve performance in three areas: the agency's timeliness in handling cases, the quality of OSC's work product and decisions, and fulfillment of OSC's education and outreach responsibilities. The Strategic Plan continues to emphasize cross-training and strategic management of human capital in order for the agency and its individual units to use their resources to maximum effect. The agency's emphasis on its USERRA mission is also noted.

Case type	Case received 2008	Case process 2008
Prohibited personnel practice complaints	2089	1971
Hatch Act complaints	445	264
Whistleblower disclosures	530	488
USERRA referrals	15	13
USERRA demo project claims	37	139
Hatch Act advisory opinions issued	4283

The Veterans Benefits Improvement Act of 2004 (P.L. 108-454) established a demonstration project that routed approximately 150 additional USERRA claims annually to OSC rather than the Department of Labor for investigation. This demonstration project started in February 2005 and extended through the end of 2007. OSC assembled a dedicated USERRA Unit to investigate and prosecute these cases, and achieved a very high corrective action rate of 27% on them.

For 2009 and 2010, based upon the trends of the last five years, OSC projects intake for Hatch Act cases, prohibited personnel practice cases and disclosure cases will continue to increase.

The funding requested for 2010 will enable OSC to maintain the staffing level necessary to operate the agency while maintaining low case backlogs.

The Office of the Federal Coordinator for Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Projects (OFC), established by Public Law 108-324, is an independent agency in the Executive Branch, pursuant to the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline Act of 2004. The Federal Coordinator is responsible for coordinating all Federal activities for an Alaska natural gas transportation project, including joint surveillance and monitoring with the State of Alaska during construction of a project and for one year following the completion of the project. An Alaska natural gas transportation project could deliver significant natural gas supply to the U.S. lower 48 states.

The five main roles of the OFC are: (1) coordinate the expeditious discharge of all activities by all Federal agencies with respect to an Alaska natural gas transportation project; (2) ensure compliance of a project with either ANGPA or ANGTA; (3) ensure that implementation or enforcement actions do not exceed the limitations established in ANGPA; (4) provide a liaison function to ensure adequate communication with Congress, State of Alaska, Federal and Canadian agencies; and (5) enter into a joint surveillance and monitoring agreement with the State of Alaska for the purpose of monitoring the construction of the Project.

The 2010 Budget proposes $4.5 million in appropriated funds and up to $4.7 million in fees, charges, and commissions to support the activities of this Office.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including nine Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Effective in 1986, the Postal Service Fund (Fund) was included in the congressional and executive budget process and taken into account in making calculations under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (Gramm-Rudman-Hollings). The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 amended title 39 of the U.S. Code by adding a new section, 2009a, which provides that, beginning in 1990, the receipts and disbursements of the Fund shall not be considered as part of the congressional and executive budget process and shall not be taken into account in making calculations under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

In December 2002, the President's Commission on the United States Postal Service was created to recommend legislative and administrative steps necessary to effect reforms needed to meet the challenges faced by the Postal Service and ensure the viability of postal services (Executive Order 13278, December 11, 2002). A series of public meetings were held and a wide range of postal stakeholders from postal unions and management associations, the mailing industry, competitors, academics and economists were heard. In July 2003, a final report was issued to the President containing recommendations for changes the Commission deems necessary to protect the nation's access to affordable, universal mail service long into the future.

The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act (P.L. 109-435), was signed on December 20, 2006. The Act made a number of changes affecting the operations and oversight of the Postal Service, many of which are consistent with the recommendations of the President's Commission. The Act provided for separate accounting and reporting for Postal Service activities related to: (1) products where the Postal Service dominates the market; and (2) products where the Postal Service is in a competitive market. The Act amended the process for determining rate increases for market-dominant products, in part by imposing a limitation on rate increases for at least the next 10 years linked to the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers (CPI-U). This will provide the Postal Service with pricing flexibility and ratepayers with a degree of rate predictability. The Act also replaced the Postal Rate Commission with a Postal Regulatory Commission with expanded authorities, including subpoena powers.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue; (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources; (3) proceeds from borrowing; (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments; and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Separate legislation also increased the Postal Service's statutory borrowing authority beginning in 1991. Section 2005 of title 39, United States Code, as amended, increased the Postal Service's borrowing authority by $2.5 billion in 1991 for a revised ceiling of $12.5 billion and an additional $2.5 billion in 1992 for a revised total ceiling of $15 billion. The total annual increase in net outstanding debt was also increased to annually grow by up to $2.0 billion in obligations issued for the purpose of capital improvements and by $1.0 billion for the purpose of paying operating expenses. P.L. 109-435 removed the separate limitations on borrowing for capital improvements and operating expenses so that under the $15 billion debt cap, the annual increase in outstanding debt cannot now exceed a combined total of $3.0 billion. According to USPS estimates, as of September 30, 2010, it is expected that the total debt instruments issued and outstanding pursuant to this authority will amount to $15.0 billion.

Operating.—According to USPS estimates, revenue will total approximately $74.2 billion in 2010. This includes $73.3 billion from mail and services revenue, $10 million from investment income, and $83 million for revenue foregone appropriations in 2010. Total expenses are estimated at approximately $78.9 billion in 2010.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 established the Postal Service as a fully self-sufficient, independent entity. Postal revenues were to cover the full costs of postal operations. When the Act was passed, the Postal Service received substantial taxpayer subsidies, both appropriated and unappropriated. Consistent with the intent of the 1970 Act, the Congress has taken steps over time to reduce these subsidies, particularly by requiring the Postal Service to assume greater portions of its personnel-related costs. At the end of 2008, the Postal Service employed 765,088 persons. Under the 1974 Civil Service Retirement Fund Postal Employee Benefits Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying unfunded retirement costs from wage schedule increases under postal labor contracts. These costs are not covered by normal employee/employer contributions to the retirement fund. The 1985 Reconciliation Act shifted responsibility for paying health benefit costs of Postal annuitants retiring after 1986 from the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) to the Postal Service. The 1987 Reconciliation Act had the Postal Service make one-time payments to defray annuitant health benefit costs in 1988 and 1989 and retirement COLA costs in 1988. (Retirement COLAs, like wage schedule increases, result in retirement liabilities not covered by normal retirement fund contributions.) Under the 1989 Reconciliation Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying health benefits of survivors of post-86 annuitants and unfunded retirement COLA liabilities for post-86 annuitants.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 superseded certain existing legislation and expanded the Postal Service's responsibility for benefit costs of postal annuitants. Effective October 1, 1990, the Postal Service was required to fund Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) COLAs and the employer's share of Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHBP) premiums for postal annuitants who retired after June 30, 1971, and their survivors. In addition, the Postal Service was required to fund the retroactive CSRS COLA and FEHBP premium costs for which the Postal Service would have been liable if the provisions of this new legislation had been in effect as of July 1, 1971.

Under the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1993, the Postal Service was required to make certain payments for past COLAs and health benefits, over and above any other payments required by law, of $693 million to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, and $348 million to the Employees Health Benefits Fund. These two amounts were made in three equal annual installments, beginning in fiscal year 1996.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 repealed the authorization for transitional appropriations to the Postal Service which had funded the liabilities of the former Post Office Department to the Employees' Compensation Fund. Effective October 1, 1997, these liabilities became liabilities of the Postal Service payable out of the Postal Service Fund.

Early in 2003, OPM determined that, at the then-current rate of funding, the Postal Service would pay substantially more than needed to fund the estimated future benefits of postal employees and retirees participating in the Civil Service Retirement System. This projected over-funding resulted from interest earned by the fund in excess of the assumed statutory rate of five percent. As a result, the Administration proposed and the Congress enacted CSRS reform legislation that was enacted on April 23, 2003 (P.L. 108-18). The provisions of P.L. 108-18 eliminated all future retirement liability payments related to general wage increases and the retirement COLA payments. In addition, the Postal Service funded CSRS retirement benefits at 17.4 percent of current CSRS employees' wages, beginning in May 2003. This was a dynamic funding requirement, not a static requirement, thus employer contributions can change based on interest earnings and amounts that are needed to fund the full cost of the future benefit. Annually, OPM was directed to calculate the amount of any potential supplemental retirement liability and the Postal Service was required to fund any such liability in annual payments through September 30, 2043.

P.L. 109-435 created the Postal Service Retiree Health Benefits Fund to put the Postal Service on a path that fully funds its substantial retiree (annuitant) health benefits liabilities. This new Fund receives from the Postal Service: 1) The pension savings provided to the Postal Service by the Postal Civil Service Retirement System Funding Reform Act of 2003 (P.L. 108-18) that were held in escrow during 2006; 2) A 10-year stream of payments defined within P.L. 109-435 to begin the liquidation of the Postal Services unfunded liability for post-retirement health benefits;

3) Beginning in 2017, payments for the actuarial cost of Postal Service contributions for the post-retirement health benefits for its current employees; and 4) The surplus resources of the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund that are not needed to finance future retirement benefits under CSRS to current or former employees of the Postal Service that are attributable to civilian employment with the Postal Service, including the savings from shifting the responsibility for retirement credit related to military service from the Postal Service to the Treasury (effectively eliminating the need for the dynamic CSRS funding payments and supplemental liability payments noted in the previous paragraph). As a result of this new health benefits financing system, the Postal Service will cease to pay annual premium costs for its post-1971 current annuitants directly to the Employees and Retired Employees Health Benefits Fund in 2017. Instead, these premium payments will be paid from amounts that the Postal Service remits to this new fund. Payments for a proportion of the premium costs of Postal Service annuitants pre-1971 service would continue to be paid by the General Fund of the Treasury through the Government Payment for Annuitants, Employees Health Benefits account.

The Postal Regulatory Commission is an independent agency that has exercised regulatory oversight over the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) since its creation by the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. That oversight consisted primarily of conducting public, on-the-record hearings concerning proposed rates, mail classification, and major service changes, and recommended decisions for action to the Postal Service Board of Governors.

The Postal Accountability and Enhancement Act (PAEA)(Public Law 109-435) assigned new responsibilities to the Commission, including providing regulatory oversight of the pricing of USPS products and services, ensuring USPS transparency and accountability, and serving as a forum to act on complaints with postal products and services. The Commission provides leadership and recommends policies that foster a robust and viable postal system.

Pursuant to Public Law 109-435, the 2010 appropriation request of the Postal Regulatory Commission is $14,333,000.

Section 603(a) of PAEA authorizes appropriations for the Commission out of the off-budget Postal Service Fund beginning in 2009. The authorization resulted in the reclassification of the Commission's spending from off-budget mandatory to off-budget discretionary. The Presidio Trust is a wholly owned Government corporation established by the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-333) to manage, improve, maintain and lease property in the Presidio of San Francisco. After this former military base was transferred to the National Park Service (NPS), the Trust was created to take over responsibility for managing the hundreds of houses, office buildings, and other facilities in an innovative manner that uses private-sector resources, but is consistent with surrounding NPS lands. This appropriation funds the operation and capital improvements of the Trust.

The Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 (IRTPA) created the Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board (PCLOB). This law required PCLOB to "ensure that concerns with respect to privacy and civil liberties are appropriately considered in the implementation of laws, regulations, and executive branch policies related to efforts to protect the Nation against terrorism." IRTPA placed the Board within the Executive Office of the President. The Implementing Recommendations of the 9/11 Commission Act of 2007 reconstituted the Board as a separate agency within the Executive Branch.

All five members of the reconstituted Board will be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate for staggered six-year terms. The Board has two main responsibilities: 1) advising the President and the heads of departments and agencies on issues that have privacy and civil liberties implications and 2) reviewing regulations and executive branch policies related to protecting the Nation from terrorism. The Congress receives annual reports from PCLOB detailing its activities during the year.

All railroad retirees receive the equivalent of a social security benefit, and they may also receive other add-ons including rail industry pension payments, windfall payments, and supplemental annuities. Social security benefits for former railroad employees are funded by the social security trust funds, and rail industry pension payments are the responsibility of the rail sector.

Under current law, a financial interchange occurs once each year between the social security trust funds and the social security equivalent benefit (SSEB) account. SSEB receives monthly advances from the general fund equal to an estimate of the transfer SSEB would have received for the previous month if the financial interchange transfers were on a monthly basis. Advances from the previous year are repaid annually to the general fund immediately after the financial interchange is received. In 2008, $3,386 million was advanced and $3,229 million was repaid.

The primary mission of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is to protect investors; maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets; and facilitate capital formation. The Commission's five major programs include the following:

Enforcement: The Division of Enforcement investigates and prosecutes violations of the federal securities laws and works closely with the Department of Justice and U.S. Attorneys offices to coordinate and assist in criminal prosecutions. The division's highest priority is responding to the current financial crisis and providing aid to harmed investors. In FY 2010, the division plans to focus on areas most at risk for fraud or other serious violations that could harm investors, such as market manipulation through the circulation of false rumors, subprime lending, auction rate securities, hedge funds, institutional insider trading, and ponzi schemes. The division plans to invest in enhanced technologies that are similar to those used by the law firms it faces during investigations and litigation. In particular, the division plans to focus an increased amount of resources on forensic analysis of data produced in the course of its investigations. The division also plans to continue improving its approaches to processing and pursuing leads from investor complaints, tips, and forwarded e-mail spam. In FY 2010, the division will continue to commit resources to protracted litigation and seek significantly more emergency relief to freeze assets and halt market manipulations.

Compliance Inspections and Examinations: The Office of Compliance Inspections and Examinations (OCIE) conducts the SEC's examination program to detect violations of the federal securities laws and evaluate internal compliance controls at securities firms registered with the SEC. OCIE uses risk-based methodologies to identify firms for examination and to focus resources on activities that could pose the greatest risk to investors and the integrity of the markets. In FY 2010, OCIE expects to further improve its risk-based approach by enhancing risk assessment and surveillance methodologies and improving training for examiners. The staff also will devote significant resources to detecting fraud and confirming the appropriate safeguarding of customer assets. In addition to regular examinations and monitoring of regulated entities, the staff will continue proactive efforts to encourage improved compliance practices through the Chief Compliance Officer Outreach (CCOutreach) program, publishing ComplianceAlerts and other initiatives.

Corporation Finance: The Division of Corporation Finance establishes disclosure requirements and monitors disclosure to provide investors with information necessary to make investment decisions and to help prevent fraud and misrepresentation in securities transactions. Continuing investor interest regarding the quality of financial reporting and corporate governance and significant changes in disclosure and other requirements applicable to reporting companies have contributed to a changing regulatory environment affecting the securities markets. In FY 2010, the division expects to maintain its review of reporting companies at the 33 percent level, which will help ensure that investors receive material information about emerging and novel issues and deter fraud in public securities transactions. This level also will satisfy the review requirement of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. The division will continue recommending changes to, and monitoring compliance with, the rules relating to corporate governance issues, such as proxy access. The division will continue to address issues, and recommend action to the Commission where needed, relating to disclosure of executive compensation. It also will continue its work on interactive data required to be filed with company disclosure documents. Additional rulemaking projects will be undertaken as necessary to protect investors, facilitate capital formation, improve and simplify disclosure, and eliminate duplicative regulations.

Trading and Markets: The Division of Trading and Markets mission is to maintain fair, honest, and efficient securities markets. As envisioned by the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Commission directly regulates market participants where Commission rulemaking is the most effective approach, and relies on the self-regulation of the securities industry in other instances to ensure fair dealing and investor protection. In FY 2010, the division will continue to work with the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority to consolidate and revise self-regulatory organization rules governing securities firms. The division will review applications by broker-dealers to use mathematical models to calculate capital requirements and continue to closely monitor the risk management function at those firms. Rulemaking efforts related to short sales of securities, manipulation, privacy, broker-dealer registration, and financial responsibility will continue, and the staff will address issues relating to foreign and domestic transfer agents. The division will continue to supervise trading in the U.S. exchange and over-the-counter securities markets. In the options markets, the division will continue to evaluate and respond to market structure changes as a result of quoting certain options in pennies and the new linkage proposed by these exchanges. The division also will examine appropriate ways to address the globalization of the securities markets, and continue to work with other regulators and industry personnel to devise and implement the most effective and efficient regulatory structure to address risk in the credit default swaps market.

Investment Management: The Division of Investment Management regulates investment companies and investment advisers under two companion statutes, the Investment Company Act of 1940 and the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. The division seeks to protect investors from fraud, mismanagement, self dealing, and inadequate disclosures by investment companies and investment advisers, without imposing unnecessary burdens on regulated entities. The divisions top strategic priority for FY 2010 is to determine whether rule 2a-7, the rule regulating money market funds, needs revision in light of recent market events. To protect investors and prevent abusive practices in the investment management industry, the staff plans to recommend that the Commission propose and adopt revisions to the custody rule for investment advisers. The staff also will focus on implementing new rules designed to provide mutual fund investors with more reader-friendly disclosure, to improve the delivery of mutual fund information through increased use of electronic means, including the Internet, and to require mutual funds to provide risk/return summary information in interactive data format. The division will review the disclosures, including financial statements, of one-third of investment company portfolios as required by the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. The staff also will review most new portfolios of open-end and closed-end funds, all new insurance contracts, most portfolios of new unit investment trusts, and almost all proxy statements and post-effective amendments that reflect material changes in disclosure or fund operations.

Several additional program offices directly support the major programs, including the Office of Risk Assessment, the Office of Investor Education and Advocacy, the Office of the Chief Accountant, and the Office of International Affairs. In FY 2010, these offices will focus their efforts on

- connecting the agency's risk identification and assessment function more effectively with the examination of regulated entities and the enforcement of the U.S. federal securities laws;

- increasing the efficiency of the investor advocacy program and using new resources in social networking and online technologies to increase interactions with individual investors;

- overseeing the Financial Accounting Standards Board's (FASB) standard setting activities, including ongoing major projects on revenue recognition, financial statement presentation, and lease accounting;

- participating in major international regulatory policy initiatives to strengthen financial markets and investor protection in light of the current market turmoil, as well as work with the Division of Enforcement on numerous cases with significant international components.

The SEC is funded through offsetting fees collected pursuant to section 6(b) of the Securities Act of 1933, and sections 13(e), 14(g) and 31 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The 2010 Budget assumes $1.5 billion in fees and proposes to allow the SEC to use $1.0 billion of the fee collections to finance its operations in FY 2010.

Note: Because PCAOB does not report budgetary data to Treasury, budget estimates were derived from PCAOB's financial data.

The Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (P.L. 107-204) established the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB) to oversee the audit of public companies that are subject to federal securities laws. PCAOB was created to protect the interests of investors by regulating the preparation of informative, accurate, and independent audit reports for companies whose securities are sold to, and held by and for, public investors. Funding for PCAOB comes from registration fees paid by public accounting firms and accounting support fees paid by public companies.

This standard setting body will set accounting principles that will be "generally accepted" for the purposes of federal securities laws. Funding for the standard setting body comes from Accounting Support Fees, paid by public companies. The private entity currently designated as the standard setting body is the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB).

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) was created in 1933 as a Government-owned corporation for the unified development of a river basin comprised of parts of seven States. The agency finances its program primarily from proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues. TVA's Non-Power Programs.—TVA operates a series of 49 dams and 47 reservoirs to reduce the risk of flooding, enable year-round navigation, supply affordable and reliable electricity, improve water quality and water supply, provide recreational opportunities, stimulate economic growth, and provide a wide range of other public benefits. TVA is responsible for critical stewardship activities within the Tennessee Valley which include: water release regulation; maintenance of dam machinery and spillway gates; modifications on nine main and four auxiliary navigation locks and associated mooring facilities; improvement of water quality and supply; management of shoreline erosion; regulation of shoreline development along the Tennessee River and its tributaries; planning and management of 293,000 acres of public land; and operation of public recreation areas. These services are funded entirely by TVA's power revenues and its user fees.

TVA's Power Program.—TVA supplies electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in parts of the seven Tennessee Valley States. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, and other operating expenses is estimated at $971 million in 2010. Power generating facilities are financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

TVA Policy Initiatives.—TVA's Board of Directors completed a comprehensive review of TVA's current and future operations, resulting in the adoption of a new long-term strategic plan. The strategic plan addresses such topics as growth in energy demand in the Valley, guiding financial principles, asset management, energy efficiency, conservation, and environmental stewardship. TVA recently filed its third Annual Report on Form 10-K with the Securities and Exchange Commission, which provides more transparency of its business operations.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available for TVA programs in 2010 are to be derived from power revenues and receipts of $13,567 million. The outstanding balance of TVA's bonds, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness is limited by statute and cannot exceed $30 billion. The budget assumes TVA will increase its debt and debt-like obligations by $32 million in 2010 primarily from new capital spending for the Watts Bar Unit 2 project ($681 million) and new generating capacity ($773 million). TVA's outstanding debt and debt-like obligations were $25.1 billion at the beginning of 2009 and are estimated to decrease to $24.9 billion by the end of 2010. At the beginning of 2009, TVA currently has $2.4 billion in debt-like obligations that are not counted against its statutory debt cap.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 2010 are estimated at $43 million: $23 million as a dividend-like return on the appropriation investment in the power program and $20 million as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Total capital spending for 2010 is budgeted at $2.2 billion, which in addition to new generation capacity includes $223 million for clean air projects and $531 million to maintain TVA's existing generation assets. Total Government equity at September 30, 2010, is estimated to be $928 million more than that at September 30, 2009. This change includes the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury.

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) is an independent organization charged with reporting to the TVA Board of Directors and the Congress on the overall efficiency, effectiveness, and economy of TVA programs and operations. The OIG meets this responsibility by conducting audits, investigations, inspections, and other reviews. The OIG focuses on the prevention, identification, and elimination of 1) waste, fraud, and abuse; 2) violations of laws, rules, or regulations; and 3) inefficiencies in TVA programs and operations. To increase its independence, TVA's Inspector General became a Presidentially-appointed position in 2000. Currently, TVA's OIG is funded directly from TVA revenues, subject to the TVA Board of Director's approval. The 2010 President's Budget proposes to appropriate funds for TVA's OIG out of TVA revenues beginning in 2010.

The Combined Benefit Fund was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992 to take over paying for medical care of retired miners and their dependents who were eligible for health care from the private 1950 and 1974 United Mine Workers of America Benefit Plans. The Fund's trustees represent the United Mine Workers of America and coal companies. The Fund is financed by assessments on current and former signatories to labor agreements with the United Mine Workers; past transfers from an over-funded United Mine Workers pension fund; transfers from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation fund; a Medicare prescription drug demonstration; and the General Fund of the Treasury.

The 1992 Benefit Plan was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992. It pays for health care for those miners who retired between July 21, 1992 and September 30, 1994, and their dependents, who are eligible for benefits under an employer plan and cease to be covered, usually because an employer is out of business. Plan trustees are appointed by the United Mine Workers of America and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, a coal industry bargaining group. The Plan is supported by signers of the 1988 labor agreement with the United Mine Workers of America; a Medicare prescription drug demonstration; transfers from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation fund; and General Fund of the Treasury.

The 1993 Benefit Plan provides health benefits to certain retired mine workers and disabled mine workers who are not eligible for benefits under the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992 and who are not receiving benefits from employer's benefit plans. The 1993 Benefit Plan was established through collective bargaining under the National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement of 1993. Plan trustees are appointed by the United Mine Workers of America and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, a coal industry bargaining group. The Plan is financed by signatories to the National Bituminous Coal Wage Agreement; transfers from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation fund; a Medicare prescription drug demonstration; and the General Fund of the Treasury.

The Veterans' Judicial Review Act, found in part at 38 U.S.C. §7251-7292 (1988), established the United States Court of Veterans Appeals (renamed United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims as of March 1, 1999, Public Law 105-368) under Article I of the United States Constitution. The Court is empowered to review decisions of the Board of Veterans Appeals and may affirm, modify, or reverse a decision of the Board or to remand the matter as appropriate. The type of review performed by the Court is similar to that performed in Article III courts under the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. §551 et seq. In actions before it, the Court has the authority to decide all relevant questions of law, to interpret constitutional, statutory, and regulatory provisions, and to determine the meaning or applicability of the terms of an action by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. The Court, being created by an act of the Congress, may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of its jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. §1651.

The Court is empowered to: compel actions of the Secretary that are found to have been unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed; and set aside decisions, findings, conclusions, rules, and regulations issued or adopted by the Secretary, the Board of Veterans Appeals, or the Chairman of the Board that are found to be arbitrary or capricious. The Court may also set aside decisions that are abuses of discretion or otherwise not in accordance with the law, contrary to constitutional right, in excess of statutory jurisdiction or authority, or without observance of the procedures required by law. In cases involving benefits under the laws administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Court may hold unlawful and set aside or reverse findings of material facts if the findings are clearly erroneous.

The Court's principal office location is Washington, D.C.; however, it is a national court, empowered to sit anywhere in the United States.

Pro bono program.—The Legal Services Corporation administers a grant program to provide pro bono representation and legal assistance to claimants who file appeals with the Court. The Congress funds the grant program through the Court's appropriation. To maintain impartiality, the Court does not administer the program or comment on the program's budget estimate.

Its goals are to help prevent and resolve violent international conflicts, promote post-conflict stability and democratic transformations, and increase peacebuilding capacity, tools, and intellectual capital worldwide. The Institute does this by empowering others with knowledge, skills, and resources, as well as by its direct involvement in peacebuilding efforts around the globe.

USIP thinks, acts, teaches, and trains, providing a unique combination of nonpartisan research, innovative programs, and hands-on support. USIP provides on-the-ground operational support in zones of conflict, most recently in Afghanistan, the Balkans, Colombia, Indonesia, Iraq, the Palestinian Territories, Liberia, Nigeria, Philippines, Rwanda, and Sudan. Specific work performed by the Institute includes: building leadership capacity through training and workshops; facilitating dialogue among parties in conflict; identifying and disseminating best practices in conflict management; sponsoring leadership summits and strategic conferences; promoting the rule of law; developing educational and teacher training materials; helping build civil society institutions; sponsoring a wide range of countrywide working groups (e.g., Afghanistan, Haiti, Iraq, Korea, Sudan); and educating the public through informative events, radio, and other outreach activities. USIP performs cutting edge research on the dynamics of conflict and analysis relevant to policymakers and practitioners. The Institute also identifies best practices and Funds would be available if existing appropriations will be imminently exhausted. This proposal would also provide the Secretary of Agriculture with the authority to transfer up to $50 million in funding to the Department of the Interior if the transfer improves the efficiency or effectiveness of Federal wildland fire suppression activities.

ACTIVE AND RESERVE FORCES

The proposals that follow cover incremental pay, allowances, subsistence, and other personnel costs for Active and Reserve component servicemembers activated for duty in Iraq, Afghanistan, and other areas around the world in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. The proposals include funding for special pays including imminent danger pay, family separation allowance, hardship duty pay, and other special and incentive pays.

The proposals also include funding to accelerate the growth of the Army and Marine Corps, which is fully offset with cancellations from 2009 baseline funds.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

The proposals that follow would fund operation and maintenance activities for the active and reserve components of all the Military Services and Defense Agencies in support of Operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom. These activities include ground combat operations; flying hours; steaming days; military intelligence activities; subsistence and logistics support; fuel and supply purchases; base and facility support; contract oversight; security and detainee operations; pre-deployment training; personal protective equipment; the Defense Health Program; communications; counter-drug activities; intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance; and all maintenance related to military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. In addition, the proposals include funding to support the Afghan security forces and a new proposal to build Pakistans counterinsurgency capabilities as well as reimbursements to coalition partners for support to US military operations; and the Commander's Emergency Response Program in Afghanistan and Iraq. Funding is also included for classified activities.

The proposals also include funding to support the training and other requirements associated with the accelerated growth of the Army and Marine Corps, and expanded support for military families. These costs are fully offset with cancellations from 2009 baseline funds.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

The proposals that follow would support technology demonstrations, and development and testing of prototypes or pre-production hardware that could provide significant new capabilities for combat forces engaged in support of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom. Specifically, funds will be used to provide new or improved countermeasures against Improvised Explosive Devices and other non-traditional threats. New intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance capabilities, including classified systems, will also be developed with these funds to produce significantly more effective systems for combating terrorists or insurgent forces.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The proposals that follow for military construction programs will be used to build facilities urgently needed to support Operation Enduring Freedom, including utilities systems, environmental facilities, logistics and support facilities, and roads to support operations and improve the force protection and safety of U.S. military forces. The funds will also be used to construct theater-located operations facilities needed to improve the capabilities of combat forces.

The proposals would also fund projects to support military families and to accelerate the opening of the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center, Maryland and the new Fort Belvoir Army Community Hospital, Virginia. These costs are fully offset with cancellations from 2009 baseline funds.

Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) facilities (buildings and equipment) in Louisiana and Texas sustained damages from Hurricanes Gustav and Ike. This funding will support the maintenance of the SPR and its strategic security mission.

The proposal would allow the Department of Energy (DOE) to transfer unobligated balances from the SPR Petroleum Account to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve account. These balances are from the sale of SPR oil in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Currently, unobligated balances can only be used for acquisition of SPR oil and related costs, and DOE has no acquisition plans for these balances. In order to be used for SPR facilities development, operations and maintenance and management activities they must be transferred to the Strategic Petroleum Reserve account.

In the aftermath of Hurricanes Ike and Gustav, DOE deferred key operations and maintenance activities in order to fund immediate cleanup and the highest priority safety and security hazards. However, this resulted in unfunded maintenance activities. Continued deferral of these projects would hinder DOE's ability to respond swiftly to an oil supply disruption and its national security consequences.

This proposal would provide $30 million to the Department of Justice (DOJ) to implement executive orders for the shut down of Guantanamo Bay and review of the U.S. detention and interrogation procedures. It would also provide funding for the incarceration and litigation of cases that may result from the Guantanamo detainee status review.

The funding would help DOJ implement several recently signed executive orders, including orders to shut down Guantanamo Bay, review detention policy options, and ensure lawful interrogations. Specifically, the DOJ has requested funding to support a task force to review the status of approximately 240 detainees currently held at Guantanamo Bay and funding to litigate any cases that result from this review.

This proposal would provide a total of $898.7 million for Embassy Security, Construction, and Maintenance. Of this amount, $893.2 million is provided to meet secure diplomatic facility and housing needs for U.S. Mission staff in Afghanistan and Pakistan, including $87.0 million to acquire additional property to support expanded diplomatic facilities in Kabul, Afghanistan; and $806.2 million to construct new secure and safe facilities in Pakistan, including construction of a new U.S. embassy building in Islamabad and other secure diplomatic facility needs in Pakistan.

Of the $806.2 million for Pakistan, $736.5 million would fund a major upgrade of facilities in Islamabad to meet security and building infrastructure needs. This includes: $111 million for the construction in Islamabad of a new annex to accommodate approximately 330 personnel; $405 million for the renovation or replacement of the existing chancery to accommodate approximately 645 personnel; $108 million for permanent New Embassy Compound (NEC) housing (156 units); $112.5 million for construction of U.S. Marine Corps security guard quarters, and general office facilities.

In addition, $29.6 million would support site acquisition for future construction of new consulate facilities in Lahore, and $40.1 million would support diplomatic facilities in Peshawar.

This proposal would also provide $5.5 million to deploy mobile mail screening units to protect U.S. Government employees at various high risk facilities. Approximately 73 mail screening units will be deployed to posts worldwide based on threat level (as determined by the Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security). This is an unanticipated need based upon security threats directed at many individual embassies and consulates worldwide.

AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR 2009

STATEMENT ON CHANGES

(Between the Transmittal of the 2009 and 2010 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to, or revisions in, budget authority requested between transmittal of the 2009 Budget and the 2010 Budget is presented below. This statement is included in the budget in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(d)).

The modifications to proposals for 2009 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took the form of Presidential amendments to the budget transmitted on February 4, 2008.

These modifications were printed in the documents of the House of Representatives that are identified on the following listing.

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS

An advance appropriation is one made to become available one year or more beyond the year for which the appropriations act is passed. Advance appropriations in 2010 appropriations acts will become available for programs in 2011 or beyond. Since these appropriations are not available until after 2010, the amounts will not be included in the 2010 totals, but will be reflected in the totals for the year for which they are requested.

The Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(a)(17)) requires inclusion in the budget of "information on estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year following the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted for grants, contracts, and other payments under each program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for that following fiscal year when the appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation law for the fiscal year before the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the accompanying table lists those accounts that have either received discretionary or mandatory advance appropriations since 2008 or will request, in 2010, advance appropriations for 2011 and beyond and cites the applicable authorizing statute. In addition to the accounts listed in the accompanying table, the Administration plans to work with the Congress to develop a specific advance appropriations proposal for the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Care program.

² The 2006 Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act (Public Law 109-149) mandated the establishment of the Office of Job Corps in the Office of the Secretary, but provided the 2007 advance appropriation in the Training and Employment Services account. The Revised Continuing Appropriations Resolution, 2007 (Public Law 110-5) continued this approach, providing the Job Corps appropriations in the Training and Employment Services account. The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 (Public Law 110-161) first appropriated Job Corps funding to the Office of Job Corps.

⁴ The 2011 total includes $3,690 million attributable to the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, 2009 (Public Law 111-5).

FINANCING VEHICLES AND THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE

This chapter contains descriptions of and data on financing vehicles and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve. The Financing Corporation functions as a financing vehicle for the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) Resolution Fund. The Resolution Funding Corporation provided financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and is subject to the general oversight and direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System's transactions are not included in the Budget because of its unique status in the conduct of monetary policy. The Board provides data on its administrative budget, which is included here for information. Its budget schedules and statements are not subject to review by the President.

Amounts are on a calendar year basis, with the exception of the 2008 balance sheets for the Financing Corporation and Resolution Funding Corporation, which are as of September 30, 2008.

FINANCING CORPORATION

The Financing Corporation (FICO) is a mixed-ownership Government corporation, chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board pursuant to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Recapitalization Act of 1987, as amended (Act). FICO's sole purpose is to function as a financing vehicle for FSLIC Resolution Fund, formerly the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Pursuant to the Act, FICO was authorized to issue debentures, bonds, and other obligations subject to limitations contained in the Act, the net proceeds of which were to be used solely to purchase capital certificates issued by FSLIC Resolution Fund, or to refund any previously issued obligations. The Resolution Trust Corporation Refinancing, Restructuring, and Improvement Act of 1991 terminated FICO's borrowing authority.

The Act provided formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks make capital contributions to FICO. FICO used the proceeds received from the sales of such capital stock to purchase non-interest bearing securities for deposit in a segregated account as required by the Act. The non-interest bearing securities held in the segregated account are the primary source of repayment of the principal of FICO obligations. Securities in the segregated account are kept separate from other FICO accounts and funds but are not specifically pledged as collateral for the payment of obligations. The primary source of payment of interest on the obligations is the receipt of assessments imposed on and collected from institutions' accounts which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's Deposit Insurance Fund.

RESOLUTION FUNDING CORPORATION

The Resolution Funding Corporation (REFCORP) is a mixed-ownership Government corporation established by Title V of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA). The sole purpose of REFCORP was to provide financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC). Pursuant to FIRREA, REFCORP was authorized to issue debentures, bonds, and other obligations, subject to limitations contained in the Act and regulations established by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. The proceeds of the debt (less any discount, plus any premium, net of issuance cost) were used solely to purchase nonredeemable capital certificates of RTC or to refund any previously issued obligations.

Until October 29, 1998, REFCORP was subject to the general oversight and direction of the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. At that time, the Oversight Board was abolished and its authority and duties were transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury. The day-to-day operations of REFCORP are under the management of a three-member Directorate comprised of the Director of the Office of Finance of the Federal Home Loan Banks and two members selected from among the presidents of the twelve Federal Home Loan Banks (FHLBanks). Members of the Directorate serve without compensation, and REFCORP is not permitted to have any paid employees.

FIRREA, as amended, and the regulations adopted by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board and the Secretary of the Treasury provide formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks made capital contributions to REFCORP's Principal Fund and continue to make interest payments on outstanding REFCORP obligations. FIRREA also provides that the U.S. Treasury cover any interest shortfall. Funds designated for the Principal Funds were used to purchase zero-coupon bonds. The zero-coupon bonds are held in the Principal Fund and are the primary source of repayment of the principal of the obligations at maturity.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of the Congress.

To carry out its responsibilities under this Act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under this Act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and this Act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The information presented pertains to Board operations only. Expenditures made on behalf of the Federal Reserve banks for production, issuance, retirement, and shipment of Federal Reserve notes are not included, since they are reimbursed in full by the Federal Reserve banks.

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

This chapter contains descriptions of the data on the Government-sponsored enterprises listed below. These enterprises were established and chartered by the Federal Government for public policy purposes. They are not included in the Federal Budget because they are private companies, and their securities are not backed by the full faith and credit of the Federal Government. However, because of their public purpose, detailed statements of financial condition are presented, to the extent such information is available, on a basis that is as consistent as practicable with the basis for the budget data of Government agencies. These statements are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises.

—The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation provide assistance to the secondary market for residential mortgages.

—The Federal Home Loan Banks assist thrift institutions, banks, insurance companies, and credit unions in providing financing for housing and community development.

—Institutions of the Farm Credit System, which include the Agricultural Credit Bank and Farm Credit Banks, provide financial assistance to agriculture. They are regulated by the Farm Credit Administration.

—The Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation, under the regulation of the Farm Credit Administration, provides a secondary mortgage market for agricultural real estate and rural housing loans as well as for farm and business loans guaranteed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) is a Government-sponsored enterprise (GSE) in the housing finance market. As a housing GSE, Fannie Mae is a Federally chartered, privately owned company with a public mission to provide stability and to increase the liquidity of the residential mortgage market and to help increase the availability of mortgage credit to low- and moderate-income families and in underserved areas. Fannie Mae engages primarily in two forms of business: guaranteeing residential mortgage securities and investing in portfolios of residential mortgages.

Fannie Mae was established in 1938 to assist private markets in providing a steady supply of funds for housing. Fannie Mae was originally a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and was permitted to purchase only loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). In 1954, Fannie Mae was restructured as a mixed ownership (part government, part private) corporation. Legislation directed the sale of the Government's remaining interest in Fannie Mae in 1968 and completed the transformation to private shareholder ownership in 1970. Using the proceeds from the sale of subordinated debentures, Fannie Mae paid the Treasury $216 million for the Government's preferred stock, which was retired, and for the Treasury's interest in the corporation's earned surplus. As a result, the corporation was taken off the Federal Budget.

Growing stress in the mortgage markets over the last two years has reduced Fannie Mae's capital, demonstrated by a dramatic decline in stockholder equity. Responsive legislation enacted last summer, the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (HERA), strengthened housing GSE regulation by creating the Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA), a new independent regulator, and provided temporary authority for the U.S. Department of Treasury to purchase obligations of the housing GSEs. In September 2008, FHFA put Fannie Mae under Federal conservatorship and the U.S. Department of Treasury entered into a Preferred Stock Purchase Agreement (PSPA) with Fannie Mae to make investments of up to $100 billion in senior preferred stock as required to maintain positive equity. On February 18, 2009, Treasury announced that the funding commitments for the PSPA would be increased to $200 billion. As of April 16, 2009 Fannie Mae has received $15.2 billion under the PSPA. The Budget continues to reflect the GSEs as non-budgetary entities, though their status will continue to be reviewed. All of the current federal assistance being provided to Fannie Mae, including the PSPA, is shown on-budget. For additional discussion and analyses of Fannie Mae, please see the Analytical Perspectives volume of the Budget documents.

According to accounting practices for private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting the mortgage-backed securities are considered to be owned by the holders of these securities. Consequently, on the books of Fannie Mae, these mortgages are not considered assets and the securities outstanding are not considered liabilities. However, under federal budget concepts these mortgages and mortgage-backed securities are considered to be assets and liabilities, respectively, of Fannie Mae. For the purposes of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the schedule of Status of Direct Loans for mortgage-backed securities, the items labeled "Disbursements" and "Repayments" are budgetary terms. However, from Fannie Mae's perspective, these items are "Amounts issued" and "Amounts passed through to the holders of securities", respectively.

Freddie Mac engages primarily in two forms of business: guaranteeing residential mortgage securities and investing in portfolios of residential mortgages.

Freddie Mac was established in 1970 under the Emergency Home Finance Act. The Congress chartered Freddie Mac to provide mortgage lenders with an organized national secondary market enabling them to manage their conventional mortgage portfolio more effectively and gain indirect access to a ready source of additional funds to meet new demands for mortgages. Freddie Mac serves as a conduit facilitating the flow of investment dollars from the capital markets to mortgage lenders, and ultimately, to homebuyers.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) significantly changed the corporate governance of Freddie Mac. The company's three member Board of Directors, which had corresponded with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was replaced with an eighteen member Board of Directors. In addition, FIRREA converted Freddie Mac's 60 million shares of non-voting, senior participating preferred stock into voting common stock.

Growing stress in the mortgage markets over the last two years has reduced Freddie Mac's capital, demonstrated by a dramatic decline in stockholder equity. Responsive legislation enacted last summer, the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (HERA), strengthened housing GSE regulation by creating the Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA), a new independent regulator, and provided temporary authority for the U.S. Department of Treasury to purchase obligations of the housing GSEs. In September 2008, FHFA put Freddie Mac under Federal conservatorship and the U.S. Department of Treasury entered into a Preferred Stock Purchase Agreement (PSPA) with Freddie Mac to make investments of up to $100 billion in senior preferred stock as required to maintain positive equity. On February 18, 2009, Treasury announced that the funding commitments for the PSPA would be increased to $200 billion. As of April 16, 2009 Freddie Mac has received $44.6 billion under the PSPA. The Budget continues to reflect the GSEs as non-budgetary entities, though their status will continue to be reviewed. All of the current federal assistance being provided to Freddie Mac, including the PSPA, is shown on-budget. For additional discussion and analyses of Freddie Mac, please see the Analytical Perspectives volume of the Budget documents.

According to accounting practices for private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting the mortgage-backed securities are considered to be owned by the holders of these securities. Consequently, on the books of Freddie Mac, these mortgages are not considered assets and the securities outstanding are not considered liabilities. However, under federal budget concepts these mortgages and mortgage-backed securities are considered to be assets and liabilities, respectively, of Freddie Mac. For the purposes of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the schedule of Status of Direct Loans for mortgage-backed securities, the items labeled "Disbursements" and "Repayments" are budgetary terms. However, from Freddie Mac's perspective, these items are "Amounts issued" and "Amounts passed through to the holders of securities", respectively.

The Federal Home Loan Bank System is a Government-sponsored enterprise (GSE) in the housing finance market. The Federal Home Loan Banks were chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932 (Act). The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks (FHLBanks) are under the supervision of the Federal Housing Finance Agency (FHFA), established by Congress in 2008. The common mission of FHLBanks is to facilitate the extension of credit through their members. To accomplish this mission, FHLBanks make loans, called advances, and provide other credit products and services to their 8,132 member commercial banks, savings associations, insurance companies, and credit unions. Advances and letters of credit must be fully secured by eligible collateral and long-term advances may be made only for the purpose of providing funds for residential housing finance. However, "community financial institutions" may also use long-term advances to finance small businesses, small farms, and small agribusinesses. Additionally, specialized advance programs provide funds for community reinvestment and affordable housing programs. All regulated financial depositories and insurance companies engaged in residential housing finance are eligible for membership. Each FHLBank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together FHLBanks cover all of the United States, as well as the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands. The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations to the public. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include members' deposits and capital. Funds not immediately needed for advances to members are invested. The capital stock of the Federal Home Loan Banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951. The Act, as amended in 1989, requires each FHLBank to operate an Affordable Housing Program (AHP). Each FHLBank provides subsidies in the form of direct grants or below-market rate advances for members that use the funds for qualifying affordable housing projects. Each of the FHLBanks must set aside annually the greater of $100 million or 10 percent of its previous year's net earnings for the AHP. The Act, as amended in 1999, also requires that FHLBanks contribute 20 percent of net earnings annually to assist in the payment of interest on bonds issued by the Resolution Funding Corporation. In 2002, the Administration requested all GSEs, including FHLBanks, to voluntarily register their equity securities with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). This voluntary registration is part of the Administration's efforts to have GSEs undergo the same scrutiny process as other corporate enterprises. A rule issued on June 23, 2004 required each FHLBank to register a class of its stock. All of the Federal Home Loan Banks complied by 2006. For additional discussion and analyses of the FHLBanks, please see the Analytical Perspectives volume of the Budget.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM

The Farm Credit System (System) is a Government-sponsored enterprise that provides privately financed credit to agricultural and rural communities. The major functional entities of the system are: 1) Agricultural Credit Bank (ACB); 2) Farm Credit Banks (FCB); and 3) direct lender associations. The Farmer Mac, which is also an institution of the System, is discussed separately below. The history and specific functions of the bank entities are discussed after the presentation of financial schedules for each bank entity. As part of the System, these entities are regulated and examined by the Farm Credit Administration (FCA), an independent Federal agency. The administrative costs of FCA are financed by assessments of System institutions and the Farmer Mac. System banks finance loans from sales of bonds to the public and their own capital funds. The System bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. The bonds are backed by an insurance fund, administered by the Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation (FCSIC), an independent Federal agency that collects insurance premiums from member banks to pay its administrative expenses and fund insurance reserves. All of the banks' current operating expenses are paid from their own income and do not require budgetary resources from the Federal Government.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT BANK

CoBank, ACB is headquartered in Denver, Colorado, and serves eligible cooperatives nationwide, and provides funding to Agricultural Credit Associations (ACAs) in two of its regions. CoBank, ACB is the only Agricultural Credit Bank (ACB) in the Farm Credit System. An ACB operates under statutory authority that combines the authorities of a Farm Credit Bank (FCB) and a Bank for Cooperatives (BC). In exercising its FCB authority, CoBank, ACB's charter limits its lending to ACAs located in the northeast and northwest regions of the country. As an entity lending to cooperatives, CoBank is independently chartered to provide credit and related services nationwide to eligible cooperatives primarily engaged in farm supply, grain, marketing, and processing (including sugar, dairy, and corn into ethanol). CoBank also makes loans to rural utilities, including telecommunications companies, and it provides international loans for the financing of agricultural exports.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (1987 Act) required the Federal Land Banks (FLBs) and Federal Intermediate Credit Banks (FICBs) to merge into a Farm Credit Bank (FCB) in each of the 12 Farm Credit districts. FCBs operate under statutory authority that combines the prior authorities of a FLB and of a FICB. No merger occurred in the Jackson district in 1988 because the FLB of Jackson was in receivership. Pursuant to section 410(e) of the 1987 Act, as amended by the Farm Credit Banks Safety and Soundness Act of 1992, FICB of Jackson merged with FCB of Columbia on October 1, 1993. Mergers and consolidations of FCBs across district lines that began in 1992 have continued to date. As a result of this restructuring activity, 4 FCBs, headquartered in the following cities, remain: AgFirst Farm Credit Bank, Columbia, South Carolina; AgriBank FCB, St. Paul, Minnesota; U.S. AgBank, FCB, Wichita, Kansas; and FCB of Texas, Austin, Texas.

FCBs serve as discount banks and as of October 1, 2008 provided funds to 9 Federal Land Credit Associations (FLCA) and 83 Agricultural Credit Associations (ACAs). These direct lender associations, in turn, primarily make short and intermediate-term production loans and long-term real estate loans to eligible farmers and ranchers; farm-related businesses; and rural homeowners. FCBs can also lend to other financing institutions, including commercial banks, as authorized by the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

All the capital stock of FICBs, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The Farm Credit Act of 1956 provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the FICBs by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968. The last of the Government capital that had been invested in FLBs was repaid in 1947.

FEDERAL AGRICULTURAL MORTGAGE CORPORATION
(FARMER MAC)

Farmer Mac is authorized under the Farm Credit Act of 1971 (Act), as amended by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987, to create a secondary market for agricultural real estate and rural home mortgages. The Farmer Mac title of the Act was amended by the 1990 farm bill to authorize Farmer Mac to purchase, pool, and securitize the guaranteed portions of farmer program, rural business, and community development loans guaranteed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The Farmer Mac title was amended in 1991 to clarify Farmer Mac's authority to issue debt obligations, provide for the establishment of minimum capital standards, establish the Office of Secondary Market Oversight at the Farm Credit Administration (FCA), and expand the agency's rulemaking authority. The Farm Credit System Reform Act of 1996 (1996 Act) amended the Farmer Mac title to allow Farmer Mac to purchase loans directly from lenders and to issue and guarantee mortgage-backed securities without requiring that a minimum cash reserve or subordinated (first loss) interest be maintained by poolers as had been required under its original authority. The 1996 Act expanded FCA's regulatory authority to include provisions for establishing a conservatorship or receivership, if necessary, and provided for increased core capital requirements at Farmer Mac phased in over three years. Most recently, the 2008 Farm Bill, the Food, Conservation and Energy Act of 2008, amended the Farmer Mac title to authorize the financing of rural electric and telephone cooperatives.

Farmer Mac operates through several programs "Farmer Mac I" involves mortgage loans secured by first liens on agricultural real estate, rural utility cooperative real estate, or rural housing (qualified loans), and "Farmer Mac II," which involves the guaranteed portions of USDA guaranteed loans. Farmer Mac operates by: i) purchasing, or committing to purchase, newly originated or existing qualified loans or guaranteed portions from lenders; ii) purchasing or guaranteeing "AgVantage" bonds backed by qualified loans or guaranteed portions from lenders; and iii) exchanging qualified loans or guaranteed portions for guaranteed securities. Loans purchased by Farmer Mac are aggregated into pools that back Farmer Mac guaranteed securities, which are held by Farmer Mac or sold into the capital markets. Farmer Mac is intended to attract new capital for financing qualified loans and guaranteed portions, foster increased long-term, fixed-rate lending, and provide greater liquidity to agricultural and rural lenders.

Farmer Mac is governed by a 15-member Board of Directors. Ten Board members are elected by stockholders, including five by the Farm Credit System and five by commercial lenders. Five are appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation.

FINANCING

Financial support and funding for Farmer Mac's operations come from several sources: sale of common and preferred stock; issuance of debt obligations; and net income. Under procedures specified in the Act, Farmer Mac may issue obligations to the U.S. Treasury in a cumulative amount not to exceed $1.5 billion to fulfill its guarantee obligations.

As of September 30, 2008, Farmer Mac's core capital exceeded statutory requirements. Additionally, Farmer Mac's regulatory capital (core capital plus the allowance for loan losses) exceeded the amount of required regulatory capital as determined by the risk-based capital rule.

GUARANTEES

Farmer Mac provides a guarantee of timely payment of principal and interest on securities backed by qualified loans or pools of qualified loans. These securities are not guaranteed by the United States, and are not "government securities".

Farmer Mac is subject to reporting requirements under securities laws, and its guaranteed mortgage-backed securities are subject to registration with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the 1933 and 1934 Securities Acts.

REGULATION

Farmer Mac is federally regulated by FCA, acting through its Office of Secondary Market Oversight (OSMO). FCA is responsible for the supervision of, examination of, and rule-making for Farmer Mac.
