"(A) IN GENERAL.—After the completion of the Russian HEU Agreement, the importation into the United States of low-enriched uranium, including low-enriched uranium obtained under contracts for separative work units, that is produced in the Russian Federation, whether or not such low-enriched uranium is derived from highly enriched uranium of weapons origin, may not exceed—

- "(i) in calendar year 2014, 485,279 kilograms;
- "(ii) in calendar year 2015, 455,142 kilograms;
- "(iii) in calendar year 2016, 480,146 kilograms;

- "(v) in calendar year 2018, 492,731 kilograms;
- "(vi) in calendar year 2019, 509,058 kilograms; and
- "(vii) in calendar year 2020, 514,754 kilograms.

"(B) ADDITIONAL IMPORTS IN EXCHANGE FOR A COMMITMENT TO DOWNBLEND AN ADDITIONAL 300 METRIC TONS OF HIGHLY ENRICHED URANIUM.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—In addition to the amount authorized to be imported under subparagraph (A) and except as provided in clause (ii), if the Russian Federation enters into a bilateral agreement with the United States under which the Russian Federation agrees to downblend an additional 300 metric tons of highly enriched uranium after the completion of the Russian HEU Agreement, 4 kilograms of low-enriched uranium, whether or not such low-enriched uranium is derived from highly enriched uranium of weapons origin and including low-enriched uranium obtained under contracts for separative work units, may be imported in a calendar year for every 1 kilogram of Russian highly enriched uranium of weapons origin that was downblended in the preceding calendar year, subject to the verification of the Secretary of Energy under paragraph (10).

"(ii) MAXIMUM ANNUAL IMPORTS.—Not more than 120,000 kilograms of low-enriched uranium may be imported in a calendar year under clause (i).

"(3) EXCEPTIONS.—The import limitations described in paragraphs (1) and (2) shall not apply to low-enriched uranium produced in the Russian Federation that is imported into the United States—

"(A) for use in the initial core of a new nuclear reactor;

"(B) for processing and to be certified for reexportation and not for consumption in the United States; or

"(C) to be added to the inventory of the Department of Energy.

"(4) LIMITED WAIVER AUTHORITY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1)(C), if the completion of the Russian HEU Agreement does not occur before December 31, 2013, the import limitations under paragraph (1)(C) shall be waived, and low-enriched uranium may be imported into the United States in the quantities specified in paragraph (2) in a calendar year after 2013, if—

"(i) the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of State jointly determine that—

"(I) the failure of the completion of the Russian HEU Agreement arises from causes beyond the control and without the fault or negligence of the Government of the Russian Federation; and

"(II) the Government of the Russian Federation has made reasonable efforts to avoid and mitigate the effects of the failure of the completion of the Russian HEU Agreement; and

"(ii) the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of State jointly notify Congress of, and publish in the Federal Register, the determination under clause (i) and the reasons for the determination.

"(B) NOTICE AND WAIT.—A waiver under subparagraph (A) may not take effect until the date that is 180 days after the date on which Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of State notify Congress under subparagraph (A)(ii).

"(C) TERMINATION.—A waiver under subparagraph (A) shall terminate on December 31 of the calendar year with respect to which the Secretary makes the determination under subparagraph (A)(i).

"(5) ADJUSTMENTS TO IMPORT LIMITATIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The import limitations described in paragraph (2)(A) are based on the reference data in the 2005 Market Report on the Global Nuclear Fuel Market Supply and Demand 2005-2030 of the World Nuclear Association. In each of calendar years 2016 and 2019, the Secretary of Commerce shall review the projected demand for uranium for nuclear reactors in the United States and adjust the import limitations described in paragraph (2)(A) to account for changes in such demand in years after the year in which that report or a subsequent report is published.

"(B) INCENTIVE ADJUSTMENT.—Beginning in the second calendar year after the calendar year of the completion of the Russian HEU

Agreement, the Secretary of Energy shall increase or decrease the amount of low-enriched uranium that may be imported in a calendar year under paragraph (2)(B) (including the amount of low-enriched uranium that may be imported for each kilogram of highly enriched uranium downblended under paragraph (2)(B)(i)) by a percentage equal to the percentage increase or decrease, as the case may be, in the average amount of uranium loaded into nuclear power reactors in the United States in the most recent 3-calendar-year period for which data are available, as reported by the Energy Information Administration of the Department of Energy, compared to the average amount of uranium loaded into such reactors during the 3-calendar-year period beginning on January 1, 2011, as reported by the Energy Information Administration.

"(C) PUBLICATION OF ADJUSTMENTS.—As soon as practicable, but not later than July 31 of each calendar year, the Secretary of Energy shall publish in the Federal Register the amount of low-enriched uranium that may be imported in the current calendar year after the adjustments under subparagraph (B).

"(6) AUTHORITY FOR ADDITIONAL ADJUSTMENT.—In addition to the adjustment under paragraph (5)(A), the Secretary of Commerce may adjust the import limitations under paragraph (2)(A) for a calendar year if the Secretary—

"(A) in consultation with the Secretary of Energy, determines that the available supply of low-enriched uranium and the available stockpiles of uranium of the Department of Energy are insufficient to meet demand in the United States in the following calendar year; and

"(B) notifies Congress of the adjustment not less than 45 days before making the adjustment.

"(7) EQUIVALENT QUANTITIES OF LOW-ENRICHED URANIUM IMPORTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The import limitations described in paragraphs (1) and (2) are expressed in terms of uranium containing 4.4 percent uranium-235 and a tails assay of 0.3 percent.

"(B) ADJUSTMENT FOR OTHER URANIUM.—Imports of low-enriched uranium under paragraphs (1) and (2), including low-enriched uranium obtained under contracts for separative work units, shall count against the import limitations described in such paragraphs in amounts calculated as the quantity of low-enriched uranium containing 4.4 percent uranium-235 necessary to equal the total amount of uranium-235 contained in such imports.

"(8) DOWNBLENDING OF OTHER HIGHLY ENRICHED URANIUM.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The downblending of highly enriched uranium not of weapons origin may be counted for purposes of paragraph (2)(B), subject to verification under paragraph (10), if the Secretary of Energy determines that the highly enriched uranium to be downblended poses a risk to the national security of the United States.

"(B) EQUIVALENT QUANTITIES OF HIGHLY ENRICHED URANIUM.—For purposes of determining the additional low-enriched uranium imports allowed under paragraph (2)(B), highly enriched uranium not of weapons origin downblended pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall count as downblended highly enriched uranium of weapons origin in amounts calculated as the quantity of highly enriched uranium containing 90 percent uranium-235 necessary to equal the total amount of uranium-235 contained in the highly enriched uranium not of weapons origin downblended pursuant to subparagraph (A).

"(9) TERMINATION OF IMPORT RESTRICTIONS.—The provisions of this subsection shall terminate on December 31, 2020.

"(10) TECHNICAL VERIFICATIONS BY SECRETARY OF ENERGY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Energy shall verify the origin, quantity, and uranium-235 content of the highly enriched uranium downblended for purposes of paragraphs (2)(B) and (8).

"(B) METHODS OF VERIFICATION.—In conducting the verification required under subparagraph (A), the Secretary of Energy shall employ the transparency measures and access provisions agreed to under the Russian HEU Agreement for monitoring the downblending of Russian highly enriched uranium of weapons origin and such other methods as the Secretary determines appropriate.

"(11) ENFORCEMENT OF IMPORT LIMITATIONS.—The Secretary of Commerce shall be responsible for enforcing the import limitations imposed under this subsection and shall enforce such import limitations in a manner that imposes a minimal burden on the commercial nuclear industry.

"(12) EFFECT ON OTHER AGREEMENTS.—

"(A)RUSSIAN HEU AGREEMENT.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to modify the terms of the Russian HEU Agreement, including the provisions of the Agreement relating to the amount of low-enriched uranium that may be imported into the United States.

"(B)OTHER AGREEMENTS.—If a provision of any agreement between the United States and the Russian Federation, other than the Russian HEU Agreement, relating to the importation of low-enriched uranium, including low-enriched uranium obtained under contracts for separative work units, into the United States conflicts with a provision of this section, the provision of this section shall supersede the provision of the agreement to the extent of the conflict."]

Grants to local educational agencies.—Funds are allocated through four formulas—Basic Grants, Concentration Grants, Targeted Grants, and Education Finance Incentive Grants—for local programs that provide extra academic support to help raise the achievement of eligible students in high-poverty schools or, in the case of schoolwide programs, help all students in high-poverty schools to meet challenging State academic standards. States must annually assess all students in certain grades in at least reading, mathematics, and science. School districts must identify for improvement, and provide assistance to, participating schools that for two consecutive years do not make adequate yearly progress toward ensuring that all students reach the proficient level on the State assessments in reading and mathematics by 2014. Districts must also develop improvement plans for such schools and provide students enrolled in them the opportunity to transfer to another public school that is not identified for improvement. After three or more years of a school not making adequate yearly progress, low-income students who remain in the school may obtain supplemental educational services from a public- or private-sector provider. Schools that do not improve are subject to progressively stronger interventions and, after six years of not making adequate yearly progress, reconstitution under a restructuring plan.

School improvement grants.—Funds support grants to States to assist schools identified as in need of improvement because they have not met their student achievement goals for at least two consecutive years. Activities may include the development and implementation of school improvement plans, professional development for teachers and staff, corrective actions such as instituting a new curriculum, and the provision of public school choice and supplemental educational services. For 2010, States would be required to use 40 percent of their funds for school improvement activities in middle and high schools. Additionally, up to $30 million would support competitive grants to improve education in certain Gulf Coast counties severely affected by Hurricanes Katrina, Ike, or Gustav.

Title I early childhood grants.—Funds would be used by States to provide matching grants to Title I LEAs that agree to invest Recovery Act funds in early childhood education. LEAs would use grants to expand existing pre-K programs or to develop and implement new ones serving economically disadvantaged pre-school students.

Early learning challenge fund.—Funds would provide grants to States for development of State plans and statewide infrastructure of integrated early learning supports and services for children from birth through age five in order to raise the quality of publicly funded early learning programs and improve the readiness of children for success upon school entry.

Early reading first.—Competitive grants provide assistance to support local efforts to enhance the school readiness of young children, particularly those from low-income families, through scientific, research-based strategies, and professional development that are designed to enhance the verbal skills, phonological awareness, letter knowledge, pre-reading skills, and early language development of children ages three through five.

Striving readers.—Funds support the development, implementation, and evaluation of scientifically based reading interventions for middle school or high school students reading significantly below grade level. Additionally, funds would support grants to local educational agencies to implement comprehensive evidence-based programs of reading instruction for children in the elementary grades with particular emphasis on reading comprehension and on instruction in vocabulary development, oral language fluency, and writing skills.

Literacy through school libraries.—Funds support competitive grants to local educational agencies to provide students with increased access to up-to-date school library materials and certified professional library media specialists.

State agency migrant program.—Funds support formula grants to States for educational services to children of migratory farmworkers and fishers, with resources and services focused on children who have moved within the past 36 months.

State agency neglected and delinquent program.—Funds support formula grants to States for educational services to children and youth in local and State-run institutions for neglected or delinquent youths, community day programs for neglected and delinquent youths, and adult correction facilities.

Evaluation.—Funds support a series of impact studies designed to identify effective reading interventions in Title I and studies of the implementation of key Elementary and Secondary Education Act requirements, including assessments, accountability systems, and school improvement requirements.

Special programs for migrant students.—Funds support grants to institutions of higher education and nonprofit organizations that assist migrant students in earning a high school equivalency certificate or in completing their first year of college.

High school graduation initiative.—Funds would support grants to local educational agencies to implement proven strategies for reducing the number of students who drop out before completing secondary school and for assisting youth to reenter school after they have dropped out.

Impact Aid helps to replace the lost local revenue that would otherwise be available to educate federally connected children. The presence of certain students living on Federal property, such as students who are military dependents or who reside on Indian lands, can place a financial burden on local educational agencies that educate them. The property on which the children live and their parents work is exempt from local property taxes, denying local educational agencies access to the primary source of revenue used by most communities to finance education.

Basic support payments.—Payments will be made on behalf of over 930,000 federally connected students enrolled in about 1,230 local educational agencies to assist them in meeting their operation and maintenance costs. Average per-student payments will be approximately $1,200.

Payments for children with disabilities.—Payments in addition to those provided under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act will be provided on behalf of approximately 55,000 federally connected students with disabilities in about 900 local educational agencies. Average per-student payments will be approximately $900.

Facilities maintenance.—Funds will be used to provide emergency repairs for school facilities that serve military dependents and are owned by the Department of Education. Funds will also be used to transfer the facilities to local educational agencies.

Construction.—Approximately 20 construction grants will be awarded competitively to the highest-need impact aid districts for emergency repairs and modernization of school facilities.

Payments for Federal property.—Payments will be made to approximately 200 local educational agencies in which real property owned by the Federal Government represents 10 percent or more of the assessed value of real property in the local educational agency.

Improving teacher quality:

Improving teacher quality State grants.—Funds support State and school district activities to prepare, train, and recruit high-quality teachers to improve student achievement.

Mathematics and science partnerships.—Funds support State and local efforts to improve students' academic achievement in mathematics and science by promoting strong teaching skills for elementary and secondary school teachers. These efforts may include the integration of teaching methods based on scientifically based research and technology into the curriculum.

Other activities:

Educational technology State grants.—Funds support formula grants to States to support the deployment and integration of educational technology into classroom instruction.

21st century community learning centers.—Funds support formula grants to States, which award subgrants to local educational agencies (LEAs), community-based organizations, or other public or private entities to establish or expand centers that provide extended learning opportunities for students.

Foreign language assistance.—Funds support competitive grants to States and school districts to increase the quality and quantity of foreign language instruction in the United States.

State assessments.—Funds support formula and competitive grants to States to develop and implement the assessments, and related accountability efforts, that States use to test children in reading, mathematics, and science. 2010 funds would also support activities to strengthen States' content and achievement standards and assessments, such as activities to develop college- and career-ready standards and assessments.

Education for homeless children and youths.—Funds support formula grants to States to provide educational and support services that enable homeless children and youths to attend and achieve success in school.

Education for Native Hawaiians.—Funds support competitive grants to public and private entities to develop or operate innovative projects that enhance the educational services provided to Native Hawaiian children and adults.

Alaska Native education equity.—Funds support competitive grants to school districts and other public and private organizations to develop or operate innovative projects that enhance the educational services provided to Alaska Native children and adults.

Training and advisory services.—Funds support grants to regional equity assistance centers that provide technical assistance to school districts in addressing educational equity related to issues of race, gender, and national origin.

Rural education.—Funds support formula grants under two programs: Small, Rural School Achievement and Rural and Low-Income Schools. The Small, Rural School Achievement program provides rural local educational agencies with small enrollments with additional formula funds and flexibility in the use of other Federal formula funds. Funds under the Rural and Low-Income Schools program, which targets rural local educational agencies that serve concentrations of poor students, are allocated by formula to States, which in turn allocate funds to eligible local educational agencies within the States.

Supplemental education grants.—Funds support grants to the Federated States of Micronesia and to the Republic of the Marshall Islands in place of grant programs discontinued by the Compact of Free Association Amendments Act of 2003.

Comprehensive centers.—Funds support at least 20 comprehensive centers that focus on building State capacity to help school districts and schools meet the requirements of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The Indian Education programs support the efforts of local educational agencies and tribal schools to improve teaching and learning for the Nation's American Indian and Alaska Native children.

Grants to local educational agencies.—Formula grants support local educational agencies in their efforts to reform elementary and secondary school programs that serve Indian students, with the goal of ensuring that such programs assist participating students in meeting the same academic standards as all other students. In 2008, the Department made 1,270 formula grants to local educational agencies and tribal schools serving more than 476,000 students.

Special programs for Indian children.—The Department makes competitive awards for demonstration projects in early childhood education and college preparation, as well as professional development grants for training Native American teachers and administrators for employment in school districts with concentrations of Indian students.

National activities.—Funds support research, evaluation, data collection, and related activities.

The what works and innovation fund.—The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act included funds to identify and replicate proven and innovative practices. Funds for this program continue those reform efforts. Specifically, funds support academic achievement awards to local educational agencies (LEAs), as well as partnerships between nonprofit organizations and LEAs or schools, that have made significant progress in closing educational achievement gaps, exceeded the States annual measurable objectives under ESEA Title I for two consecutive years (or demonstrated success in increasing the achievement of all the groups of students for whom schools and LEAs are held accountable under Title I), have made significant improvement in other areas (such as improving the graduation rate or recruiting high-quality teachers and school leaders), and established partnerships with private entities that will match, at some level, the funding provided through the grant.

State Grants:

Grants to States.—Formula grants are provided to States to assist them in providing special education and related services to children with disabilities ages 3 through 21.

Preschool grants.—Formula grants provide additional funds to States to further assist them in providing special education and related services to children with disabilities ages three through five served under the Grants to States program.

The goal of both of these programs is to improve results for children with disabilities by assisting State and local educational agencies to provide children with disabilities with access to high quality education that will help them meet challenging standards and prepare them for employment and independent living.

Grants for infants and families.—Formula grants are provided to assist States to implement statewide systems of coordinated, comprehensive, multi-disciplinary interagency programs to provide early intervention services to children with disabilities, birth through age two, and their families.

The goal of this program is to help States provide a comprehensive system of early intervention services that will enhance child and family outcomes.

National activities.—These activities include personnel preparation, technical assistance, and other activities to support State efforts to improve results for children with disabilities under the State Grants programs.

The goal of National Activities is to link States, school systems, and families to best practices to improve results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Performance data related to program goals include:

Note—Percentages may not add to 100% due to rounding.

Note—Previous versions of this table did not contain the categories "Transferred to regular education" and "Moved, but known to have continued in education." The Department of Education recently revised its data collection forms to include these additional items, which track additional students with disabilities ages 14 and older who leave special education, and are mutually exclusive with other categories included in this table. Because this is the case, the percentages reported in this table are not comparable with percentages reported in the same table in previous years.

Vocational Rehabilitation State grants.—The basic State grants program provides Federal matching funds to State vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies to assist individuals with physical or mental impairments to become gainfully employed. Services are tailored to the specific needs of the individual. Priority is given to serving those with the most significant disabilities. Current law requires that between 1.0 percent and 1.5 percent of the funds appropriated for the VR State grants program be set aside for Grants for Indians.

The program performance measures for this program are based on State VR agency performance indicators developed pursuant to Section 106 of the Rehabilitation Act. One of these indicators measures the percentage of general and combined State VR agencies that assist at least 55.8 percent of individuals receiving services to achieve an employment outcome. In 2007, 82 percent of the agencies met this performance criterion. Another indicator measures the percentage of general and combined State VR agencies that assist at least 85 percent of individuals with employment outcomes to achieve competitive employment. In 2007, 96 percent of general and combined agencies met this performance criterion. These outcome data are based on the approximately 344,510 individuals whose service records were closed in 2007 after receiving services.

Client assistance State grants.—Formula grants are made to States to provide assistance in informing and advising clients and applicants about benefits available under the Rehabilitation Act and, if requested, to pursue legal or administrative remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of individuals with disabilities.

Training.—Grants are made to States and public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, including institutions of higher education, to increase the number of skilled personnel available for employment in the field of rehabilitation and to upgrade the skills of those already employed.

Demonstration and training programs.—Grants are made for programs that expand and improve the provision of rehabilitation services or that further the purposes of the Rehabilitation Act.

Migrant and seasonal farmworkers.—Grants are made to State VR agencies and other nonprofit or local agencies to provide comprehensive vocational rehabilitation services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers with disabilities.

Recreational programs.—Grants are made to provide individuals with disabilities with recreational and related activities to aid in their employment, mobility, independence, socialization, and community integration.

Protection and advocacy of individual rights.—Formula grants are made to State protection and advocacy systems to protect the legal and human rights of individuals with disabilities.

Projects with industry (PWI).—Grants are made to a variety of agencies and organizations to assist individuals with disabilities to obtain or advance in employment in the competitive labor market by engaging the participation of business and industry. PWI projects provide job development, job placement, and career development services, and if needed, job training services.

Supported Employment (SE) State grants.—Formula grants are made to State VR agencies to provide supported employment services for individuals with the most significant disabilities. States use these supplemental funds in combination with the funds they receive under the VR State grants program to assist VR consumers with the most significant disabilities in achieving supported employment outcomes in integrated settings. Extended services needed to support and maintain employment after the individual has transitioned from the SE program are provided by other public or nonprofit agencies or organizations.

Independent living.—Grants are awarded to States and nonprofit agencies to assist individuals with significant disabilities in their achievement of self-determined independent living goals. Grants are also awarded to provide support services to older blind individuals to increase their ability to care for their own needs.

Program improvement.—Funds are used to promote broad-based planning and coordination, improve accountability, and enhance the Department's ability to address critical areas of national significance in achieving the goals of the Rehabilitation Act. Examples of program improvement activities include technical assistance, dissemination, and performance measurement activities.

Evaluation.—Studies are conducted to evaluate the impact and effectiveness of various programs authorized under the Rehabilitation Act.

Helen Keller National Center for Deaf-Blind Youths and Adults.—The Center provides services to deaf-blind youths and adults and provides training and technical assistance to professional and allied personnel at its national headquarters center and through its regional representatives and affiliate agencies.

National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research.—The Institute carries out a comprehensive and coordinated program of rehabilitation research and related activities. Through grants and contracts, it supports the conduct and dissemination of research and development aimed at improving the lives of individuals with disabilities. The Institute also promotes the development and utilization of new technologies to assist these individuals in achieving greater independence and integration into society.

Assistive technology.—Assistive Technology (AT) programs support AT State grants to implement comprehensive Statewide programs designed to maximize the ability of individuals with disabilities of all ages to obtain assistive technology. States conduct activities that include alternative financing programs, device reutilization programs, device loan programs, and device demonstrations. Formula grants are also provided under the AT Protection and Advocacy program to systems established under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act for protection and advocacy services to assist individuals with disabilities of all ages. Funds also support national technical assistance activities for these formula grant programs.

This institution provides undergraduate and continuing education programs for persons who are deaf, and graduate programs related to deafness for students who are deaf and students who are hearing. The University also conducts basic and applied research and provides public service programs for persons who are deaf and persons who work with them.

Gallaudet operates two elementary and secondary education programs on the main campus of the University. The Kendall Demonstration Elementary School serves students who are deaf from infancy through age 15, and the Model Secondary School for the Deaf (MSSD) serves high school age students who are deaf. Both schools also develop and disseminate information on effective educational techniques and strategies for teachers and professionals working with students who are deaf or hard of hearing.

In 2008, the appropriation for Gallaudet represented 56 percent of the total revenue for university-level programs and 99 percent of the revenue related to the elementary and secondary schools. In addition, the University receives other Federal funds such as student financial aid, vocational rehabilitation, Endowment Grant program income, and competitive grants and contracts. The request includes $2,000,000 for the demolition of two MSSD dormitories and the renovation of the remaining MSSD dormitories. The request also includes funds for the Endowment Grant program.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as any administrative expenses for the College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program and the Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis. These programs are administered separately but consolidated in the President's budget for presentation purposes.

College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program.—Funds for this activity pay the Federal costs for administering the College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans (CHAFL), College Housing Loans (CHL), and Higher Education Facilities Loans (HEFL) programs. Prior to 1994, these programs provided financing for the construction, reconstruction, and renovation of housing, academic, and other educational facilities. Although no new loans have been awarded since 1993, costs for administering the outstanding loans will remain through 2030.

Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program.—The Historically Black College and University (HBCU) Capital Financing Program provides HBCUs with access to capital financing for the repair, renovation, and construction of classrooms, libraries, laboratories, dormitories, instructional equipment, and research instrumentation. The authorizing statute gives the Department authority to enter into insurance agreements with a private for-profit Designated Bonding Authority. The bonding authority issues the loans and maintains an escrow account in which five percent of each institution's principal is deposited. The Administration's proposal would include $20.228 million in loan subsidy, allowing the program to guarantee an estimated $178 million in new loans in 2010. In addition, the Administration's proposal provides funds for Federal administrative activities. These funds will allow the Department to provide technical assistance activities that improve the financial stability of HBCUs.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Federal Government resulting from direct loans obligated in fiscal year 1996 and beyond. The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) purchases bonds issued by the HBCU Designated Bonding Authority. Under the policies governing Federal credit programs, bonds purchased by the FFB and supported by the Department of Education with a letter of credit create the equivalent of a Federal direct loan. HBCU bonds are also available for purchase by the private sector, and these will be treated as loan guarantees. However, the Department anticipates that all HBCU loans will be financed by the FFB. The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals.

Notes.—Figures include, in all years, institutional matching share of defaulted notes assigned from institutions to the Education Department.

Funding from the Student Financial Assistance account and related matching funds would provide nearly 9.8 million awards totaling over $30.9 billion in available aid in award year 2010-2011 when combined with the new Federal Pell Grants account below.

Federal Pell Grants.—Pell Grants are the single largest source of grant aid for postsecondary education. More detail on this program is provided in the new Federal Pell Grants account below.

Federal supplemental educational opportunity grants (SEOG).—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which use these funds to award grants to undergraduate students. While institutions have discretion in awarding these funds, they are required to give priority to Pell Grant recipients and other students with exceptional need. The Federal share of these grants cannot exceed 75 percent of the total grant. The 2010 Budget includes $757 million for SEOG, which would generate $959 million in new aid to 1.3 million students.

Federal Work-Study.—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which provide part-time jobs to eligible undergraduate and graduate students. Hourly earnings under this program must be at least equal to the Federal minimum wage. Federal funding in most cases pays 75 percent of a student's hourly wages, with the remaining 25 percent paid by the employer. The Federal Work-Study program also requires participating institutions to use at least 7 percent of the total funds granted to compensate students employed in community service jobs. The 2010 Budget includes $980 million for Work-Study, which would generate $1.2 million in new aid to nearly 800,000 students.

Federal Perkins Loans.—Institutions award low-interest loans from institutional revolving funds, which are comprised of Federal Capital Contributions, institutional matching funds, and student repayments on outstanding loans. No new Federal Capital Contributions have been appropriated since 2004. Under the Perkins Loan cancellation program, institutional revolving funds are reimbursed for indebtedness cancelled as a result of borrowers engaging in certain statutorily designated public service activities.

The 2010 Budget proposes to modernize and expand the Perkins Loan program so more colleges can participate and more students receive access to greater aid. Under this proposal, annual loans to students would increase to $6 billion from the current $1 billion. Rather than operating through institutional revolving funds, under the proposal Perkins Loans would be delivered using the same method as Pell Grants and Direct Loans, and would be serviced by the same private-sector companies servicing Direct Loans and FFEL loans acquired by the Department. Loan volume would be allocated among degree-granting institutions using a method to be determined in consultation with Congress. The Administration intends for this new formula to encourage colleges to control costs and offer need-based aid to prevent excessive indebtedness. It may also reward schools that enroll and graduate students from low- and middle-income families.

Schools would have discretion with regard to student eligibility. Perkins Loan borrowers would continue to be charged the current 5 percent interest rate; interest would accrue while students are in school. Other terms and conditions and loan maximums would be the same as the current Unsubsidized Stafford Loan program. As current Perkins Loan borrowers repay their loans, schools would remit the Federal share of those payments to the Department of Education. Schools would retain their own share of the revolving funds, as well as amounts sufficient to cover the costs of the various Perkins Loan forgiveness provisions. Schools would be free to use their returned share for any purpose. Mandatory loan subsidy costs associated with this proposal are shown in the Federal Perkins Loan program account.

Leveraging educational assistance partnerships (LEAP).—Under this program Federal matching funds are awarded to assist States in providing programs of grants and work-study assistance to needy students attending qualifying institutions. When appropriations are $30 million or less, States must match these Federal funds on a dollar-for-dollar basis and comply with statutory maintenance of effort requirements. State awards to students may not exceed $12,500 per academic year.

Appropriations in excess of $30 million are reserved for Grants for Access and Persistence (GAP), a new program created by the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008 (HEOA). (GAP replaces the Special LEAP program, which was eliminated by the HEOA.) Under GAP, States may expand partnerships with institutions, private and philanthropic organizations, and community groups to encourage low-income students to attend and complete a higher education; provide need-based grants to encourage access and persistence; provide early notification to low-income students of their eligibility for need-based aid; and encourage participation in early intervention, mentoring, and outreach programs. The Federal share of these new activities cannot exceed 66.66 percent.

The 2010 Budget includes $64 million for LEAP, which would generate $162 million in aid to 162,000 students.

College access and completion fund.—The Budget includes $500 million in 2010 and $2.5 billion over five years to fund national and State efforts to improve degree attainment rates in higher education and identify and promote what works in helping needy students get a degree. States would have considerable flexibility in the types of programs that can be funded. The proposed Fund would emphasize programs with strong evaluation components. States could also set aside a portion of their funding to continue college outreach and information activities now undertaken by guaranty agencies in the Federal Family Education Loan program. The method of allocating funds to States and national activities will be developed in consultation with Congress.

Funding tables.—The following tables display student aid funds available, the number of aid awards, average awards, and the unduplicated count of recipients from any Federal student aid program. The tables include aid from programs in the Student Financial Assistance account, as well as aid from the Academic Competitiveness/SMART Grant, TEACH Grant, Federal Family Education Loan, and William D. Ford Direct Student Loan programs. Loan amounts reflect the capital actually loaned, not the Federal cost of these loans. The data in these tables include matching funds wherever appropriate. The 2010 data in these tables reflect the Administration's legislative proposals. Therefore, all the following tables include 2010 FFEL data only for the first three quarters of 2010, based on the budget proposal to transfer all loan activity to the Direct Loan program beginning with Academic Year 2010-2011 (July 2010).

The baseline reflects the reclassification of Pell Grants from discretionary to mandatory. The mandatory baseline equals the amounts that would be shown as discretionary using the BEA rules for projecting the cost of discretionary programs. The policy estimates presented in this account and the Federal Pell Grants account reflect the baseline costs plus the expansion in benefits that is proposed by the Administration. If the budget had instead shown Pell grants as discretionary in the baseline, it would have been harder to understand the proposal for Pell grants. Chapter 15 of the Analytical Perspectives volume discusses this change in more detail.

FEDERAL PELL GRANTS

(Legislative proposal, not subject to PAYGO)

Contingent upon the enactment of legislation amending section 401 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (including subsection (b) (8) of that section), that will make the Federal Pell Grant Program an entitlement for eligible students, will set the maximum Federal Pell Grant for award year 2010-2011 to $5,550 and thereafter, and, for subsequent award years, will increase the maximum award amount annually by the Consumer Price Index plus one percentage point, $28,654,059,000, to remain available until expended.

In the case of unanticipated increases in program costs, there are appropriated such sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary of Education to fund fully Federal Pell Grants for award year 2010-2011 for students who meet the requirements of such section: Provided, That the maximum Pell Grant for which a student shall be eligible during award year 2010-2011 shall be $5,550.

The Budget proposes to change the language authorizing the Pell Grant program by making it an entitlement that will be funded through appropriations language each year, beginning in 2010. This account displays the mandatory funding related to this proposal.

Pell Grants are the single largest source of grant aid for post-secondary education. Funding for this program has been provided from two sources: discretionary appropriations and, beginning in 2008, mandatory funding authorized under the College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007. In addition, for 2009 the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act provided $15.6 billion in discretionary funds and $1.5 billion in mandatory funds to support the Pell Grant program.

In 2009, more than 7 million undergraduates will receive up to $4,860 from discretionary funding and an additional $490 from mandatory funds to help pay for postsecondary education. Undergraduate students establish eligibility for these grants under award and need determination rules set out in the authorizing statute and the annual appropriations act.

The 2010 Budget proposes to provide Pell Grants as an appropriated entitlement, with the maximum award inflated annually based on the consumer price index plus 1 percentage point. To implement this, the Budget proposes to amend the HEA to clarify that Federal Pell grants are an entitlement to the individual and remove the eligibility limits created by the College Cost Reduction and Access Act. The Budget request includes $28.7 billion for Pell Grants in 2010, supporting a maximum award of $5,550. However, the actual cost of this policy over the adjusted baseline is reduced by the $7.523 billion of remaining budget authority provided by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, as well as the funds previously provided in the College Cost Reduction and Access Act. After the HEA is amended to create the appropriated entitlement, the only costs applied to subsequent appropriations bills providing the budget authority would be for any changes from the award levels established in the HEA.

The Department of Education manages Federal student aid programs that will provide over $129 billion in new Federal student aid grants and loans to more than 14 million students and parents in 2010. Primary responsibility for administering these programs lies with the Office of Postsecondary Education and the performance-based Federal Student Aid (FSA), which are both overseen by the Office of the Under Secretary. FSA was created by Congress in 1998 with a mandate to improve service to students and other student aid program participants, reduce student aid administration costs, and improve accountability and program integrity.

The 2010 Budget includes $870 million for student aid administration. Most of these funds support systems maintained by private contractors to process student aid applications; provide and track aid awards to students, parents, and schools; and efforts aimed at reaching out to key student populations and simplifying the aid application experience. Additional funds are also requested in anticipation of originating and servicing 100 percent of all Federal student loans beginning in July 2010 and servicing the over-$215 billion outstanding portfolio of student loans managed by the Department.

The Ensuring Continued Access to Student Loans Act of 2008 provides the Department of Education the authority to purchase Federal student loans from lenders to ensure ongoing liquidity and availability of funds for student loans. In 2010, the Department of Education will also continue to implement system changes to accommodate increased servicing volume associated with purchased loans.

These need-based programs provide grants to full- and part-time students who are eligible to receive a Pell Grant and, for second-, third-, and fourth-year students, maintain at least a 3.0 grade point average. The Ensuring Continued Access to Student Loans Act (ECASLA) expanded the grants to non-citizens, part-time students, and students pursuing certificate programs.

Academic Competitiveness Grants (ACG). These grants are awarded to first-year and second-year students who have completed a rigorous course of study in high school. Grant levels are $750 for first-year students and $1,300 for second-year students.

Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent (SMART) Grants. These grants are awarded to third-year and fourth-year students pursuing a major in mathematics, science, or a foreign language deemed critical to national security. Grant levels are $4,000 for both third- and fourth-year students.

Taken together with other Federal student aid, grants cannot exceed a student's cost of attendance. Program funding in excess of the amount needed to fund grants in a given year can be carried over for use in subsequent years; if the mandatory funding level is insufficient to fund program grants, grant levels are reduced.

In 2010, the Administration proposes to cancel $511 million in unobligated balances. Remaining balances are sufficient to meet estimated demand in these programs through the 2010-2011 academic year, when the authorizing statute specifies the program will sunset.

The TEACH grant program, authorized by the College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007, awards annual grants of up to $4,000 to full- or part-time undergraduate and graduate students who agree to teach mathematics, science, foreign languages, bilingual education, special education, or reading at a high-poverty school for not less than 4 years within 8 years of graduating. The program began awarding grants in the 2008-2009 award year. Students must have a grade point average of 3.25 or higher to be eligible to receive a grant. Students who fail to fulfill the service requirements must repay the grants, including interest accrued from the time of award.

Because TEACH grants turn into loans in cases where the service requirements are not fulfilled, for budget and accounting purposes the program is operated consistent with the requirements of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990. This program account records subsidy costs reflecting the net present value of the estimated lifetime Federal program costs for grants awarded in a given fiscal year. Under this approach the subsidy cost reflects the cost of grant awards net of expected future repayments for grants that are converted to loans.

The 2010 Budget proposes to shift the Perkins Loan program to a mandatory direct loan program beginning July 1, 2010 and account for costs as required by the Federal Credit Reform Act. Details of this proposal are provided under the Student Financial Assistance account; subsidy costs associated with this change are shown in the Perkins Loan program account. Amounts recalled are net of institutional contributions and loan cancellation costs. The Higher Education Amendments of 1998 clarified that reserve funds held by public and non-profit guaranty agencies participating in the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program are Federal property. These reserves are used to pay default claims from FFEL lenders and fees to support agency efforts to avert defaults. The Federal Government reimburses these reserves for default claim payments.

The following schedule reflects the balances in these guaranty agency funds. During 2009, OMB, Treasury, and the Department are continuing an ongoing review of the budgetary and financial presentation of these funds in the context of relevant laws and guidance.

The Federal Government operates two major student loan programs: the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan (Direct Loan) program. The Budget proposes to end entitlement subsidies to FFEL lenders on all new Federal student loans starting July 1, 2010. In preparation for the transition, the Department is in the process of hiring some of the companies already participating in the FFEL program to serve as additional private-sector loan servicers. Hiring additional servicers will create competition among Direct Loan contractors and cover increases in Direct Loan volume and servicing related to FFEL loans sold to the Government. A consolidated student loan program would be more efficient and less expensive, saving more than $20 billion over 2010-2014 to help finance substantially larger Pell Grant scholarships for low-income students. This summary section outlines the structure of these two programs, highlights their differences and similarities, and provides text tables displaying program cost data; loan volume, subsidy, default, and interest rates; and other descriptive information.

From its inception in 1965 through 2008, the FFEL program has provided over $800 billion in loans to postsecondary students and their parents. Since July 1, 1994, the Direct Loan program has provided $218 billion in new and consolidation loans to students and parents. Taken together, the FFEL and Direct Loan programs will make nearly $86 billion in new loans available in 2009.

Loan capital in the FFEL program is provided by private lenders, facilitated by the Federal guarantee on the loans. In addition, State and private nonprofit guaranty agencies act as agents of the Federal Government, providing a variety of services including collection of some defaulted loans, default avoidance activities, and counseling to schools, students, and lenders. The Government provides substantial payments to these guaranty agencies. The Government also promises interest subsidies to lenders for certain situations, as well as most costs associated with loan defaults and other write-offs.

Under the Direct Loan program, loan capital is provided by the Federal Government while loan origination and servicing is handled by private-sector companies under performance-based contracts with the Department. The Direct Loan program began operation in academic year 1994-1995 with 7 percent of overall loan volume and is expected to account for 25 percent in academic year 2009-2010. All eligible institutions are free to participate in either or both programs.

The Direct Loan and FFEL programs share many basic elements. Interest rates, terms, and conditions are very similar or the same. Each program offers four types of loans: Stafford, Unsubsidized Stafford, PLUS, and Consolidation. Evidence of financial need is required for a student to receive a subsidized Stafford loan. The other three loan programs are available to borrowers at all income levels. Loans can be used only to meet qualified educational expenses.

For undergraduate Stafford Loans made on or after July 1, 2008, and before July 1, 2009, the borrower interest rate is fixed at 6.0 percent. The College Cost Reduction and Access Act of 2007 (CCRAA) included a phased interest rate reduction for new undergraduate Stafford Loans, with fixed rates dropping to 5.6 percent on July 1, 2009, 4.5 percent on July 1, 2010, and 3.4 percent on July 1, 2011. Rates for Stafford Loans to graduate and professional students and for all new loans originated on or after July 1, 2012, are 6.8 percent. Interest payments for these loans are fully subsidized by the Government while a student is in school and during grace and deferment periods. Borrower interest rates on new Unsubsidized Stafford loans are fixed at 6.8 percent. The fixed borrower interest rate on PLUS loans made on or after July 1, 2006, is 7.9 percent for Direct Loans and 8.5 percent for FFEL.

In the FFEL program, lenders may receive an interest subsidy, called a special allowance, from the Government to ensure a guaranteed rate of return on their loans. Special allowance payments vary by loan type, are determined quarterly, and are based on current borrower interest rates and market-yield formulas. For periods when the borrower interest rate exceeds the special allowance rate on loans made on or after April 1, 2006, lenders remit the difference to the government. Special allowance rates differ for-profit and not-for-profit loan holders. For Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans made on or after October 1, 2007, for example, the Federal Government must pay lenders a special allowance if the average 3-month commercial paper rate for a given quarter plus 1.79 percent for for-profit holders or 1.94 percent for not-for-profit holders is higher than the current interest rate charged to borrowers. The guarantee percentage paid to lenders on most defaults is 95 percent of unpaid loan principal (including any accrued interest on the full loan principal).

Consolidation loans allow borrowers to combine loans made under Title IV of the Higher Education Act—FFEL, Direct Loans, and Perkins Loans as well as some loans made under the Public Health Service Act. The interest rate for new FFEL and Direct Consolidation loans equals the weighted average of the interest rate on the loans consolidated, rounded up to the nearest one-eighth of one percent. Lenders may choose to offer a lower rate. Interest rates for all new FFEL and Direct Consolidation Loans are capped at 8.25 percent.

FFEL borrowers pay an origination fee to the Government equal to 2 percent of principal, and are also liable for a guaranty agency insurance premium of up to 1 percent of principal. Guaranty agencies and lenders have the option of paying some or all of a student borrower's insurance premium and origination fee. Direct Loan borrowers are charged an origination fee equal to 3 percent of principal. The Higher Education Reconciliation Act of 2005 included phased reductions that eliminate FFEL origination fees by July 1, 2010, and lower Direct Loan fees to 1 percent by the same date; the Act also required guaranty agencies to collect the insurance premium. Borrowers in both programs may be offered financial incentives to encourage prompt repayment.

Loan limits are also identical across the two programs. Loans made under both programs are discharged when borrowers die, are totally and permanently disabled, or, under some circumstances, declare bankruptcy.

Under both programs, new borrowers after October 1, 1998, who are employed as teachers in schools serving low-income populations for five consecutive, complete school years, qualify for up to $5,000 in loan forgiveness; this benefit is increased to $17,500 for mathematics, science, and special education teachers considered highly qualified under criteria established in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001.

In addition, under a new loan forgiveness program for public-sector employees qualifying borrowers who have worked for 10 years while making payments on their student loan will have any remaining loan balance forgiven. This new benefit is only available in the Direct Loan program, though FFEL borrowers may access the benefit by taking out a Direct Consolidation Loan. It is available for all borrowers, regardless of when they took out their loans.

FFEL borrowers may choose from among four repayment plans. Repayment periods under standard, graduated, and income-sensitive repayment may not exceed 10 years. An extended repayment plan of up to 25 years is available for new borrowers with outstanding loans totaling more than $30,000. FFEL borrowers may change repayment plans annually. In addition, beginning July 1, 2009, qualifying student borrowers may choose an income-based repayment plan under which FFEL loans (except Parent PLUS) are paid according to the borrower's income and outstanding balances, if any, are forgiven after 25 years in repayment. (In the first three years, an interest subsidy is available for Stafford Loans and the Stafford portion of Consolidation Loans.) Borrowers under Direct Loans may choose from the same repayment plans available in FFEL, except that instead of the income-sensitive repayment plan an income-contingent repayment is available (with terms similar to the new income-based repayment plan). Direct Loan borrowers may switch between repayment plans at any time.

Due to significant disruptions in the credit markets, in early 2008 FFEL lenders expressed concerns that there would be insufficient capital to make FFEL loans to all eligible recipients for the 2008-2009 academic year. In response, Congress enacted the Ensuring Continued Access to Student Loans Act (ECASLA), which provided the Department of Education with authority to purchase student loans. Using this authority, the Department established several programs intended to ensure the availability of student loans. Through the Loan Participation Interest program, the Department purchased a 100-percent interest in any eligible Federal student loan originated during the academic year by a FFEL lender—in other words, the Department provided all of the funds for the loan. On or before September 30, 2009, the lender can either purchase back from the Department its interest in a loan (paying the Department a yield of the Commercial Paper rate plus 50 basis points) or sell the entire loan to the Department in return for a fixed amount to cover the lender's expenses (such as origination and servicing). Between this program and the Direct Loan program, over 75 percent of Federal student loan volume in the 2008-2009 academic year will be financed through capital provided by the Department of Education. The Department also established a Loan Purchase program committing to purchase any eligible loans originated by a FFEL lender during the academic year for face value plus a fixed amount to cover expenses. A short-term version of this program also was created to include a small segment of 2007-2008 academic year loans.

Given the continued concerns around capital liquidity, Congress extended the ECASLA authority for the 2009-2010 academic year. The Department has announced it will replicate the Loan Participation and Loan Purchase programs. In addition, the Department will support an Asset-Backed Commercial Paper Conduit. A conduit facilitates financial transactions similar to those involved in a typical securitization: investors purchase commercial paper (backed by student loan assets) which mature and are re-issued. Interest on the commercial paper is paid from student loan repayments and any net gain on the reissuance. Though the hope is the conduit will provide liquidity to FFEL lenders without Federal intervention, the Department, using its ECASLA authority, will serve as a buyer-of-last-resort in cases when the conduit is unable to refinance maturing commercial paper.

The following tables display performance indicators and program data; including projected overall Direct Loan and FFEL costs; loan volume, number of loans, and average loan amount; descriptive data, and program activity assuming passage of the President's Budget and legislative request. The Budget proposes transferring all loan activity to the Direct Loan program beginning with Academic Year 2010-2011 (July 2010). All the following tables include 2010 FFEL data only for the first three quarters of 2010 prior to the proposed change.

¹Default rates displayed in this table, which reflect projected defaults over the life of a loan cohort, are used in developing program cost estimates. The Department uses other rates based on defaults occurring in the first two years of repayment to determine institutional eligibility to participate in Federal loan programs. (The Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008 changed this requirement to a three-year rate.) These two- and three-year rates tend to be lower than those included in this table.

²FFEL data represents activity for the first 9 months. Under the budget proposal all activity in the final 3 months would be in Direct Loans.

FFEL program payments are made to lenders (interest subsidies, loan defaults, and discharges) and guaranty agencies (default collection costs, administrative services). These payments are partially offset by borrower origination fees and lender fees for originations and an annual consolidation loan holder fee. In Direct Loans, cash outflows are primarily payments to Treasury. Cash inflows include principal and interest payments on outstanding Direct Loans.

The following table shows Government payments to and from lenders, guaranty agencies, and borrowers for specific years, regardless of when loans were originated. These flows do not reflect long-term costs to the Government, nor the value of outstanding loan assets: these are reflected in credit reform subsidy estimates. For example, defaulted FFEL loans that are repaid through consolidation produce cash revenue in the current year as the underlying loans are paid off, which is included in the table. But these consolidations also incur estimated future costs — such as subsequent re-defaults, loan discharges, and lender interest subsidy payments — that are not reflected.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 accounts for differences in the amount and timing of cash flows among direct and guaranteed loan programs to make cost estimates for these programs comparable with each other and other Federal programs.

The chart above compares total FFEL and Direct Loan costs on a subsidy rate basis: program costs calculated under the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 and comparably projected estimates of Federal administrative costs, including expenses related to FFEL program oversight and servicing the Direct Loan portfolio. As with any long-term projection, the comparison is based on assumed future interest rates, borrower characteristics, administrative costs, and other factors over the life of the loan cohort. To the degree actual conditions differ from projections, estimated subsidy rates will change.

¹FFEL data represents activity for the first 9 months. Under the budget proposal all activity in the final 3 months would be in Direct Loans.

²Fees primarily reflect borrower origination fees and, in FFEL, lender origination and consolidation loan holder fees. Other primarily reflects loan discharges due to death, disability, or bankruptcy; contract collection costs, loan forgiveness, and Direct Loan interest rate rebates.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 requires the cost of existing loan cohorts to be reestimated to reflect changes in actual and assumed borrower behavior, interest rates, and other factors. The following table shows the impact of these reestimates in FFEL and Direct Loans.

Loan Disbursement and Subsidy Costs

	FFEL	Direct Loans
Original Subsidy Costs	+$79.2 bil	+$0.6 bil
Cumulative Reestimates	-$12.5 bil	+$11.1 bil
Net Subsidy Costs	+$66.7 bil	+$11.7 bil
Total Disbursements	$811.7 bil	$249.8 bil

Changes in interest rate projections are a significant factor in FFEL and Direct Loan reestimates; recent declines in interest rates below historical averages have accordingly been a major driver in changes to program costs. Changes in borrower behavior (notably, prepayment of loans through consolidation and reduction in defaults) have also contributed to these reestimates.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this program account records the subsidy costs associated with Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL), formerly guaranteed student loans (GSL), committed in 1992 and beyond. Beginning with the 1993 cohort, mandatory administrative costs, specifically contract collection costs, are included in the FFEL subsidy estimates of each year's cohort. Subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

A description of the FFEL program and accompanying tables are included under the Federal Direct Student Loan program account.

Research and Statistics:

Research, development, and dissemination.—Funds support a diverse portfolio of directed research, evaluation studies, research and development centers, and dissemination activities that provide parents, teachers, and schools with scientifically based information on effective educational practice. Funds requested in 2010 would be used to support a new research initiative on Reading for Understanding and to study, improve, and scale up promising educational innovations that focus on improving student learning and achievement.

Statistics.—Funds support the Department's statistical data collection activities, which are conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES). NCES collects, analyzes, and disseminates statistics on education at all levels, from preschool through postsecondary and adult education, including statistics on international education activities. The requested increase for 2010 would support a new teacher longitudinal study, State-level estimates for a small number of States in a new early childhood longitudinal study, preparation for an international assessment of adult competencies, a survey to examine parent and family involvement in education and the participation of preschool children in nonparental education and care arrangements, and technical assistance to States developing longitudinal data systems.

Regional educational laboratories.—Funds support a network of 10 regional laboratories that provide expert advice, including training and technical assistance, to help States and school districts apply proven research findings in their school improvement efforts. Funds requested in 2010 would be used to complete the program evaluation and to cover the costs of the laboratory contracts awarded in early 2006.

INSTITUTE OF EDUCATION SCIENCES—Continued

Assessment.—Funds support the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP). NAEP administers assessments to samples of students in order to gather reliable information about educational attainment in important academic areas. Funds support collection and reporting of national, State, and long-term trend information, including the conduct of biennial State NAEP in reading and mathematics at grades four and eight. In 2010, funds will support the costs of the 2010 national U.S. history, civics, and geography assessments; a writing pilot test; preparation for 2011 and 2012 assessments; analysis of the 2009 high school transcript study; and continued analysis and reporting of assessments conducted prior to 2010.

Research in special education.—Funds support research to address gaps in scientific knowledge in order to improve special education and early intervention services and results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Statewide data systems.—Funds support competitive awards to State educational agencies to foster the design, development, and implementation of longitudinal data systems. In 2010, funding would support systems that include postsecondary and workforce information and information on children of all ages and also would support awards to improve data coordination, quality, and use.

Special education studies and evaluations.—Funds support studies, evaluations, and assessments related to the implementation of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act in order to improve special education and early intervention services and results for infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Naval Reactors.—Responsible for all naval nuclear propulsion work, beginning with reactor technology development, continuing through reactor operation, and ending with reactor plant disposal. The Program ensures the safe and reliable operation of reactor plants in nuclear-powered submarines and aircraft carriers (constituting 40 percent of the Navy's combatants), and fulfills the Navy's requirements for new nuclear propulsion plants that meet current and future national defense requirements.

Due to the crucial nature of nuclear reactor work, Naval Reactors is a centrally managed organization. Federal employees oversee and set policies/procedures for developing new reactor plants and operating existing nuclear plants and the facilities that support these plants.

Weapons Activities provides for the maintenance and refurbishment of nuclear weapons to sustain confidence in their safety, reliability, and performance; expansion of scientific, engineering, and manufacturing capabilities to enable certification of the enduring nuclear weapons stockpile; and manufacture of nuclear weapon components under a comprehensive test ban. Weapons Activities also provides for continued maintenance and investment in the Department's enterprise of nuclear stewardship, including the evolution of the Nuclear Weapons Complex, to be more responsive and cost effective. Complex transformation will be realized through a combination of ongoing activities that will lead to the elimination of expensive and unneeded redundancies and ensure improvements in efficiency. The Department also supports the capability to return to underground testing, if so directed by the President. The major elements of the program include the following:

Directed Stockpile Work.—Encompasses all activities that directly support specific weapons in the stockpile. These activities include: maintenance and day-to-day care; planned refurbishment; reliability assessment; weapon dismantlement and disposal; and research, development, and certification technology efforts to meet stockpile requirements.

Campaigns.—Focuses on scientific, technical, and engineering efforts to develop and maintain critical capabilities and tools needed to support stockpile refurbishment and continued assessment and certification of the stockpile for the long-term in the absence of underground nuclear testing.

Readiness in Technical Base and Facilities.—Provides the underlying physical infrastructure and operational readiness for the Directed Stockpile Work and Campaign activities. These activities include ensuring that facilities are operational, safe, secure, and compliant with regulatory requirements, and that a defined level of readiness is sustained at facilities funded by the Office of Defense Programs.

Secure Transportation Asset.—Provides for the safe, secure movement of nuclear weapons, special nuclear material, and weapon components to meet projected DOE and DoD requirements. The Program Direction in this account provides for the Federal agents and the transportation workforce.

Nuclear Counterterrorism Incident Response.—Formerly the Nuclear Weapons Incident Response, manages strategically placed people and equipment to provide a technically trained response to nuclear or radiological incidents worldwide, mitigates nuclear or radiological threats, and has a lead role in defending the Nation from the threat of nuclear terrorism.

Facilities and Infrastructure Recapitalization.—Continues its mission to restore the physical infrastructure of the national security enterprise. The program funding is utilized to address an integrated, prioritized series of repair and infrastructure projects focusing on elimination of legacy deferred maintenance that significantly increase the operational efficiency and effectiveness of the NNSA national security enterprise sites. The program is scheduled to conclude in 2013.

Site Stewardship.—Ensures environmentally compliant and energy efficient operations throughout the nuclear weapons complex, while modernizing, streamlining and sustaining the stewardship and vitality of the sites as they are transitioned within NNSA's plans for Complex Transformation. This program includes Environmental Projects & Operations, Long-Term Stewardship (LTS), Nuclear Materials Integration, Stewardship Planning and Site Stewardship Line Item Construction Projects.

Defense Nuclear Security.—Provides protection for NNSA personnel, facilities, and nuclear weapons and information from a full spectrum of threats, most notably terrorism. Provides for all safeguards and security requirements including protective forces and systems (except for personnel security investigations) at NNSA landlord sites, specifically the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Los Alamos National Laboratory, Sandia National Laboratories, the Nevada Test Site, Kansas City Plant, Pantex Plant, Y-12 National Security Complex, and the Savannah River Site Tritium Facilities.

Cyber Security.—Provides the requisite guidance needed to ensure that sufficient information technology and information management security safeguards are implemented throughout the NNSA complex. The vision of the NNSA Cyber Security Program is to transform the NNSA security posture by making strategic investments in people, operations, and technology.

The mission of this program is to: 1) prevent the spread of materials, technology, and expertise relating to weapons of mass destruction; 2) advance the technologies to detect the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction (WMD) worldwide; 3) and eliminate or secure inventories of surplus materials and infrastructure usable for nuclear weapons. The program addresses the danger that hostile nations or terrorist groups may acquire WMD or weapons-usable material, dual-use production technology or weapons of mass destruction expertise. The major elements of the program include the following:

Nonproliferation and Verification Research and Development.—This program reduces the threat to national security posed by nuclear weapons proliferation/detonation or the illicit trafficking of nuclear materials through the long-term development of new and novel technology. Using the unique facilities and scientific skills of NNSA and Department of Energy (DOE) national laboratories and plants, in partnership with industry and academia the program conducts long-term research and development leading to prototype demonstrations and detection systems for nonproliferation mission requirements strengthening U.S. capabilities to respond to current and projected threats to national and homeland security posed by the proliferation of nuclear weapons and diversion of special nuclear material. The program interfaces directly with NNSA and other DOE programs, as well as other U.S. Government agencies, to provide innovative tools, techniques, technologies, and capabilities to meet their nonproliferation, counter-proliferation, and counter-terrorism mission requirements.

Nonproliferation and International Security.—The Nonproliferation and International Security (NIS) mission is to prevent and counter weapons of mass destruction (WMD) proliferation by states and non-state actors. The program provides policy and technical support to address the entire proliferation spectrum to deny countries the opportunities to overtly acquire the materials, technology, and expertise necessary to develop WMD programs. The program works to strengthen nonproliferation treaties, regimes, and international institutions; expand the reach of the nonproliferation regime by enhancing foreign compliance with nonproliferation norms and obligations; and eliminate proliferation programs and stockpiles of WMD materials thereby reducing the threat of WMD terrorism. Specific activities include implementing and monitoring transparent WMD reductions; strengthening indigenous international safeguards and export controls systems in other countries; transitioning WMD expertise and infrastructure to peaceful purposes; realizing the nonproliferation opportunities associated with the global expansion of nuclear energy; improving associated international safeguards, export control, and interdiction regimes; serving as the technical edge within the interagency for various interdiction activities; and developing and implementing transparency measures to ensure that nuclear materials are secure.

International Nuclear Materials Protection and Cooperation.—Prevents nuclear terrorism by working in Russia and other regions of concern to 1) secure and eliminate vulnerable nuclear weapons and weapons-usable materials, and 2) install detection equipment at international crossing points and Megaports to prevent and detect the illicit transfer of nuclear material. The program continues to improve the security of nuclear material and nuclear warheads in Russia and other countries of proliferation concern by installing Material, Protection, Control and Accounting (MPC&A) upgrades and providing sustainability support to sites with previously installed MPC&A upgrades. Reducing the potential for diversion of nuclear warheads and nuclear materials has been a critical priority for the United States. The United States, through DOE/NNSA's Second Line of Defense Program, will continue to work with international partners to enhance their capabilities to detect, deter, and interdict illicit trafficking in nuclear and other radioactive materials, including the screening of containerized cargo at strategic international seaports.

Elimination of Weapons-Grade Plutonium Production.—Enhances nuclear nonproliferation by assisting Russia in ceasing its production of weapons-grade plutonium by providing replacement power production capacity. This will result in the shutdown of the world's last three plutonium producing reactors, and eliminate the production of 1.2 metric tons of plutonium per year.

Fissile Materials Disposition.—The program goal is to eliminate the surplus Russian plutonium and surplus United States (U.S.) plutonium and highly enriched uranium. The program conducts activities in both the U.S. and Russia to dispose of fissile materials that would pose a threat to the U.S. if acquired by hostile nations or terrorist groups. The program focuses U.S. efforts to accomplish the Plutonium Management and Disposition Agreement between the United States and Russia, which commits both countries to dispose of 34 metric tons of surplus weapons-grade plutonium and separate efforts to down blend surplus U.S. highly enriched uranium.

Global Threat Reduction Initiative (GTRI).—The Global Threat Reduction Initiative (GTRI) mission is to reduce and protect vulnerable nuclear and radiological materials located at civilian sites worldwide. Through the GTRI, the Department works with Russia and works or plans to work in over 100 other countries worldwide to reduce and protect vulnerable nuclear and radiological material located at civilian sites worldwide that could be used to make a crude nuclear bomb or radiological "dirty bomb." GTRI has three goals - convert, remove, protect - that provide a comprehensive approach to achieving its mission and denying terrorist access to nuclear and radiological materials:

Convert.—Convert research reactors from the use of highly enriched uranium (HEU) to low enriched uranium; this results in permanent threat reduction because the minimization, and to the extent possible, the elimination of HEU in civilian applications means one less source of bomb material.

Remove.—Remove or dispose of excess nuclear and radiological material; this results in permanent threat reduction because each kilogram or curie of this dangerous material that is removed reduces the risk that a terrorist bomb will go off.

Protect.—Protect at-risk nuclear and radiological materials from theft and sabotage; this results in threat reduction by rapidly upgrading the physical security at vulnerable sites until a permanent threat reduction solution can be implemented.

The Defense Environmental Cleanup program is responsible for identifying and reducing risks and managing waste at sites where the Department carried out defense-related nuclear research and production activities that resulted in radioactive, hazardous, and mixed waste contamination requiring remediation, stabilization, or some other type of cleanup action. The budget displays the cleanup program by site.

Closure Sites.—Funds the Miamisburg (Mound) site nearing cleanup completion and transfer to a private sector entity. Also, funds post-closure administration costs after physical completion.

Hanford Site.—Funds the Hanford site cleanup and environmental restoration to protect the Columbia River. The Hanford site cleanup is managed by two Environmental Management (EM) site offices: the Richland Operations Office and the Office of River Protection.

The Hanford site (Richland) is responsible for cleanup of most of the geographic area on the Hanford site, and its projects are displayed in two accounts: projects to be completed by 2012 and projects to be completed before 2035. The primary cleanup focus is the safe storage, treatment and disposal of Hanford's legacy wastes and environmental restoration. Risk to the public, workers, and the environment will be reduced by removing contamination before it migrates to the Columbia River.

The Office of River Protection at the Hanford site is responsible for the storage, retrieval, treatment, immobilization, and disposal of tank waste and the operation, maintenance, engineering, and construction activities in the 200 Area Tank Farms. Its budget has two components, the operation and maintenance of radioactive liquid waste tank farms and construction of the Waste Treatment and Immobilization Plant.

Idaho.—Funds the Idaho Cleanup Project, which is aimed at reducing the risk of contamination reaching the Snake River Plain Aquifer from nuclear and hazardous waste buried or stored on-site. It also funds efforts to eliminate infrastructure costs by aggressively conducting cleanup operations to reduce the site "footprint"; stabilize legacy spent nuclear fuel through 2012; and treat and dispose of the sodium bearing tank wastes, close tank farms, perform initial tank soils remediation work as well as preparation of the stored high-level waste calcine for final disposition.

NNSA Sites.—Funds the safe and efficient cleanup of the environmental legacy at National Nuclear Security Administration sites including Los Alamos National Laboratory, Nevada Site, and the Separations Process Research Unit, as well as non-defense activities at Los Alamos and Idaho. The cleanup strategy is a risk-based approach that focuses first on those contaminant plumes and sources that are the greatest contributors to risk. The overall goal is to ensure that risks to the public and workers are controlled, followed by work to clean up soil and groundwater using a risk-based methodology. NNSA is responsible for long-term stewardship of its sites after physical cleanup is completed.

Oak Ridge.—Funds defense-related cleanup of the three facilities that make up the Oak Ridge Reservation: the East Tennessee Technology Park, the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, and the Y-12 Plant. The overall cleanup strategy is based on surface water considerations, encompassing five distinct watersheds that feed the Clinch River. Cleanup actions will ensure that waste is contained; on-site surface water quality is improved to meet required standards; and off-site users of the Clinch River remain protected.

Savannah River Site.—Funds the safe stabilization, treatment, and disposition of legacy nuclear materials, spent nuclear fuel, and waste at the Savannah River site. The cleanup funding is displayed in three accounts: projects to be completed before 2035, projects related to Nuclear Material Stabilization and Disposition, and projects related to the Radioactive Liquid Waste Tank Farms, including Defense Waste Processing Facility operations. The Savannah River cleanup strategy has four primary objectives: 1) eliminate the highest risks first through safe stabilization, treatment, and disposition of EM-owned nuclear materials, spent nuclear fuel, and waste; 2) significantly reduce costs of continuing operations and surveillance and maintenance; 3) decommission all EM-owned facilities; and 4) remediate groundwater and contaminated soils, using an area closure approach.

Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.—Funds the world's first permitted deep geologic repository for the permanent disposal of radioactive waste, and the Nation's only disposal site for defense-generated transuranic waste. The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, managed by the Carlsbad Field Office, is an operating facility, supporting the cleanup of transuranic waste from waste generator and storage sites. The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is crucial to DOE completing its cleanup and closure mission.

Program Direction.—Funds the Federal workforce responsible for the overall direction and administrative support of the EM program, including both Headquarters and field personnel.

Program Support.—Funds EM Headquarters policy and oversight activities. This includes management and direction for various crosscutting EM and Department of Energy initiatives; establishment and implementation of national and departmental policy; and analyses and integration activities across the Department of Energy complex in a consistent, responsible and efficient manner.

Safeguards and Security.—Funds activities to ensure protection against unauthorized access, theft, diversion, loss of custody or destruction of Department of Energy assets and hostile acts that may cause adverse impacts on fundamental national security or the health and safety of Department of Energy and contractor employees, the public or the environment.

Technology Development and Deployment.—Funds projects to address the immediate, near- and long-term technology needs identified by the EM sites, enabling them to accelerate their cleanup schedules, treat orphaned wastes, improve worker safety, and provide technical foundations for the sites' end state visions.

Health, Safety and Security.—The Office of Health, Safety and Security (HSS) provides corporate-level leadership and management to protect the health, safety, and security of the Department's workers, the public, and the environment. HSS functions include: policy and guidance development and technical assistance; analysis of environment, safety, health, and security performance; domestic and international health studies; medical screening programs for former workers; employee compensation support; quality assurance programs; safety and security professional development and training; interface with the Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board; deployment of advanced security technologies; national security information programs; provide security for the Department's facilities and personnel in the National Capital Area; independent oversight of security, cyber security, emergency management, environment, safety and health performance; and implementation of safety and security enforcement programs.

Office of Legacy Management.—The programs support long-term stewardship activities (e.g., groundwater monitoring, disposal cell maintenance, records management, and management of natural resources) at sites where active remediation has been completed. In addition, Legacy Management is responsible for the management and administration of pension and benefit continuity for contractor retirees at these sites.

The Defense Nuclear Waste Disposal appropriation was established by the Congress as part of the 1993 Energy and Water Development Appropriation (P.L. 102-377), in lieu of payment from the Department of Energy (DOE) into the Nuclear Waste Fund for activities related to the disposal of defense high-level waste from DOE's atomic energy defense activities. The program's cost estimates reflect DOE's best projections, given the scope of work identified and planned schedule of required activities.

High Energy Physics.—The high energy physics (HEP) program aims to understand how our universe works at its most fundamental level, by discovering the most elementary constituents of matter and energy, probing the interactions between them, and exploring the basic nature of space and time itself. The program encompasses both experimental and theoretical particle physics research and related advanced accelerator and detector technology research and development (R&D). The primary mode of experimental research involves the study of collisions of energetic particles using large particle accelerators or colliding beam facilities.

In addition to contributing to breakthrough scientific discoveries, HEP research also makes major contributions to accelerator technology and provides the expertise necessary for the expansion of such technology into medicine, industry, and homeland security, as well as materials, biology, and chemistry research using light sources. One notable recent example is the Linac Coherent Light Source, currently under construction at the SLAC National Accelerator Laboratory: the concept and proof-of-principle for this state-of-the-art basic energy sciences facility grew out of particle accelerator technology developed for the HEP program.

The HEP budget request supports a world leadership program at Fermilab (the Tevatron Collider and Neutrinos at the Main Injector [NuMI]) and phase-out activities at the SLAC B-factory, which has completed its scientific mission. Funding is provided for the Large Hadron Collider (LHC) research program, including support for software and computing, pre-operations and maintenance of the U.S. built systems that are part of the LHC detectors; and accelerator commissioning and accelerator physics studies using the LHC. The first beam collisions at LHC are anticipated in the fall of 2009, and HEP is contributing to the first phase of planned upgrades of the accelerator.

While the future trajectory of the worldwide HEP program has an emphasis on the energy frontier, the proposed long-range program will provide the U.S. with a balanced and diverse array of world-leading efforts, including new facilities to ensure continued U.S. leadership at the intensity and cosmic frontiers of exploration, such as intense particle beams to probe rare and subtle particle interactions, or ground and space-based observatories for understanding dark energy and dark matter. Accelerator technology R&D is focused on developing infrastructure and expertise to fabricate and test superconducting radio frequency structures, in view of their potential applicability to many scientific disciplines, and HEP is beginning fabrication of new advanced accelerator R&D facilities to develop new particle acceleration technologies for the future.

Nuclear Physics.—The nuclear physics (NP) program provides new insights and advances knowledge on the evolution and structure of nuclear matter. The program focuses on three broad but highly related research frontiers: strong interactions among quarks and gluons (quantum chromodynamics) and how they assemble into the various forms of matter; the structure of atomic nuclei at their limits of existence, and nuclear astrophysics to address the origin of the elements and the evolution of the cosmos; and development of a new Standard Model of fundamental interactions and understanding of its implications for the origin of matter and the properties of neutrinos and nuclei.

NP develops the scientific knowledge, technologies, and trained workforce needed to underpin DOE's applied missions and is inherently relevant to a broad suite of applications that are important to the Nation. The advancement of knowledge of nuclear matter and its properties is intertwined with nuclear power, nuclear medicine, national security, environmental and geological sciences, and isotope production.

The NP request continues support of the Relativistic Heavy Ion Collider at Brookhaven National Laboratory to characterize new states of matter and phenomena that occur in hot, dense nuclear matter; the Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility (CEBAF) at Thomas Jefferson National Facility to understand the substructure of the nucleon; the Holifield Radioactive Ion Beam Facility at Oak Ridge National Laboratory and the Argonne Tandem Linear Accelerator System at Argonne National Laboratory for the study of nuclear structure and nuclear astrophysics. Construction continues on the 12 GeV CEBAF Upgrade project to double the electron beam energy at CEBAF to 12 giga-electron volts (GeV), which will open the opportunity for new discoveries and an understanding of quark confinement. Research, development, and conceptual design continue for the Facility for Rare Isotope Beams, which will enable a comprehensive description of nuclei, elucidate the origin of the elements in the cosmos and the behavior, of neutron stars, and establish the scientific foundation for innovative applications of nuclear science. The Isotope Development and Production for Research and Applications program develops and produces commercial and research radioisotopes that are provided to medical institutions, universities, research organizations, and industry for a wide array of uses and applications.

Biological and Environmental Research.—This program funds research in global climate change, environmental remediation, systemic studies on the biological effects of radiation, structural biology, radiochemistry and instrumentation. The program also supports science related to carbon sequestration. In conjunction with the advanced scientific computing research program, an earth systems modeling application is continued to accelerate progress in coupled general circulation model development through use of enhanced computer simulation and modeling. Genomics science activities will develop the science, technology, and knowledge base to harness microbial and plant systems for cost effective renewable energy production, carbon sequestration, and environmental remediation. The budget continues support for Bioenergy Research Centers, where research focuses on developing the science underpinning biofuel production.

Basic Energy Sciences.—The basic energy sciences (BES) program funds basic research in material sciences, chemistry, geosciences, and aspects of biosciences that support the Department's nuclear and non-nuclear technology programs. In many basic research areas, such as materials science, funding provided by the BES program represents a large percentage, or even the sole source, of Federal funding. The request supports hydrogen and fuel cell research as well as basic research for electrical energy storage and an advanced nuclear fuel cycle. The request initiates support for Energy Systems Institutes: large multidisciplinary research group working at the interface between discovery science and time-critical DOE mission requirements in the areas of energy, environment, and climate.

The BES program operates large national user research facilities, including synchrotron light and neutron sources and smaller user facilities such as materials preparation and electron microscopy centers. The request includes continued support to maintain utilization of and provide instrumentation for the Department's large state-of-the-art national user facilities. Funding will maintain the quality of service and availability of facility resources to users, including university and government scientists, as well as private companies who rely on unique BES facilities for their basic research needs. Research areas that will benefit from the facilities funding include structural biology, materials science, superconductor technology, and biomedical research and technology development.

Reflecting the high priority given to nanoscale research, BES funding for the multi-agency national nanotechnology program includes funding for the operation of the Nanoscale Science Research Centers (NSRCs) at the Oak Ridge, Lawrence Berkeley, Brookhaven, and Argonne national laboratories, and for one NSRC collocated at Sandia and Los Alamos national laboratories. The request also includes construction of the Linac Coherent Light Source at the SLAC National Accelerator Facility and the National Synchrotron Light Source II at Brookhaven National Laboratory.

Fusion Energy Sciences.—The fusion energy sciences (FES) program is working to develop a predictive scientific understanding needed to create a sustainable fusion energy source, and expanding the fundamental understanding of matter at very high temperatures and densities to better understand our universe and to enhance national security and economic competitiveness. This is accomplished by studying plasmas under a wide range of temperatures and densities, developing advanced diagnostics to make detailed measurements of their properties, and creating theoretical/computational models to resolve the essential physics.

FES is now moving into the burning plasma regime through its participation in ITER, an international fusion research facility under construction in Cadarache, France, which is designed to achieve and investigate the characteristics of a burning plasma. FES funds the U.S. contributions to the ITER Project in collaboration with the European Union (EU), Japan, Russia, Korea, China, and India. The EU is providing approximately 45% of the cost of building the facility, while the remaining parties will each provide approximately 9%. ITER is an essential next step toward eventually developing fusion as a commercially viable energy source.

The budget also provides for support of basic research in plasma science in partnership with the National Science Foundation, a joint program with the National Nuclear Security Administration on the study of high energy density laboratory plasmas, investigation of innovative confinement concepts, and continued operation of the DIII-D, Alcator C-Mod, and the National Spherical Torus Experiment facilities to develop a fuller understanding of the physics of magnetically confined plasma and to identify approaches that may improve the economical and environmental attractiveness of fusion in the long run. Theory, modeling, and evolving computational methods using high performance computing and enabling technologies research will also be conducted in support of the science experiments.

Advanced Scientific Computing Research.—This program supports advanced computational research, applied mathematics, computer science, and networking. The program also supports the operation of large high performance computing and network facilities including leadership computing facilities at the Oak Ridge and Argonne national laboratories, the National Energy Research Scientific Computing Facility at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, and the Energy Science Network. The request includes research, integrated with other science programs, on application of computer simulation and modeling to science problems.

Science Laboratories Infrastructure.—The goal of this program is to revitalize and repair the general purpose infrastructure at Office of Science laboratories. The request continues support for the Infrastructure Modernization Initiative to ensure the mission readiness of the Laboratories. Stewardship responsibilities for over 24,000 acres of the Oak Ridge Reservation are also funded here.

Safeguards and Security.—The mission of this program is to ensure appropriate levels of protection against: unauthorized access; theft; diversion loss of custody or destruction of DOE assets or hostile acts that may cause adverse impacts on fundamental science, national security, the health and safety of DOE and contractor employees, the public, or the environment. The request provides funding for protective forces, physical security, information security, cyber security, personnel security, material control and accountability, and program management activities.

Workforce Development for Teachers and Scientists.—This program trains young scientists, engineers, and technicians in the scientifically and technically advanced environment of the Office of Science national laboratories to meet the demand for a well-trained scientific and technical workforce, including the teachers that educate the workforce in areas of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics.

Program Direction.—Funds the Office of Science federal headquarters and field workforce, which is responsible for overseeing, managing, directing, administering, and supporting basic energy and science-related research disciplines. Federal staff are responsible for SC-wide oversight, management, operational policy, and technical/administrative support activities in budget and planning; information technology; infrastructure management; construction management; safeguards and security; environment, safety, and health; and general administration.

The Energy Transformation Acceleration Fund provides funding to implement the Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E) within the Department of Energy, as established by the America COMPETES Act of 2007 (P.L. 110-69). The mission of ARPA-E is to overcome the long-term and high-risk technological barriers to the development of energy technologies.

ARPA-E will facilitate initiatives to enhance the economic security of the United States through the development of energy technologies that reduce energy imports, improve energy efficiency, and reduce energy-related emissions including greenhouse gases. ARPA-E will identify and promote revolutionary advances in the fundamental sciences, translating scientific discoveries and cutting edge inventions into technological innovations. It will also accelerate transformational technological advances in areas that industry by itself is not likely to undertake because of technical and financial uncertainty. The role of ARPA-E is not to duplicate DOE's basic research and applied programs, but to focus on novel early-stage energy research with possible technology applications.

ARPA-E received its first funding for projects in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5) and also received funding in the Omnibus Appropriations Act, 2009 (P.L. 111-8, Division C) under the Science appropriation, to help establish ARPA-E.

The Office of Nuclear Energy funds a range of research and development activities and supports the Department's nuclear facilities. The 2010 budget provides funding to conclude the Nuclear Power 2010 program, which is a partnership with private industry to demonstrate key regulatory approval processes. The Budget also supports the Generation IV Nuclear Energy Systems program, through which the United States will participate in multinational research and development projects in support of next generation nuclear reactors. The Budget supports important materials research and modeling activities as well as fuel cycle R&D that will include a range of work on waste storage and management. Funding is also provided to support the Department's nuclear energy infrastructure to enable research and development and ensure operation in a safe, environmentally compliant, and cost-effective manner. It is important to note that the Safeguards and Security for Idaho National Laboratory is funded under the Other Defense Activities appropriation. The Budget also includes funding to start preliminary design and engineering for a domestic capability to produce plutonium-238 for use in radioisotope power systems required for certain Nation-

The mission of the Office of Electricity Delivery and Energy Reliability (OE) is to lead national efforts to modernize the electric grid, enhance security and reliability of the Nation's energy infrastructure, and facilitate recovery from disruptions to the energy supply. This effort is accomplished through research, development, demonstration and technology transfer; implementation of the electricity grid modernization requirements contained in the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (including the congestion study and analysis of potential National Interest Electric Transmission corridors as authorized by Section 1221); technical assistance and analytical support to States and regions for policies, market mechanisms, and activities that facilitate competitive, reliable, environmentally sensitive, and customer-friendly electric markets; authorization for electricity exports and Presidential permits for cross-border transmission lines; energy power systems analysis; and coordinating and carrying out DOE Lead Sector Specific Agency responsibilities for protecting the Nation's critical energy infrastructure. Partnerships to engage industry, utilities, States, other Federal programs and agencies, universities, national laboratories, and other stakeholders in OE's efforts to ensure a more secure, reliable, efficient, and affordable national electricity supply will continue to be a key element of the program.

This program supports non-defense related long-term stewardship activities (e.g., groundwater monitoring, disposal cell maintenance, and management of natural resources) at sites where active remediation has been completed. In addition, Legacy Management is responsible for the management and administration of pension and benefit continuity for contractor retirees at these sites. These activities are funded within the Other Defense Activities appropriation beginning in FY 2009.

Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy (EERE) programs undertake research, development, demonstration and deployment activities to advance technologies and related practices to help meet the growing global demand for clean, reliable, sustainable, and affordable energy services and to reduce energy consumption. EERE programs include:

Hydrogen Technology.—This program aims to reduce petroleum use, greenhouse gas emissions, and criteria air pollutants, and to contribute to a more diverse and efficient energy infrastructure by enabling the widespread commercialization of hydrogen and fuel cell technologies.

Biomass.—This program funds research, development, and deployment to validate and assist in commercialization of integrated biorefinery technologies. The program's activities include the development of biomass conversion technologies and environmentally sustainable feedstock production systems. The program's long-term goal is to enable industry to develop commercial biorefineries that can sustainably and economically convert lignocellulosic biomass and algae to fuels, chemical, heat, and power. The program's near-term goal is to help make cellulosic ethanol cost competitive by 2012 using a wide array of regionally available biomass resources and biorefinery pathways.

Solar Energy.—The program's main objective is to achieve cost parity for solar electricity by 2015. To achieve this objective, the Photovoltaic subprogram collaborates with several industry-led consortia focusing on lowering costs through manufacturing and efficiency improvements. The Concentrating Solar Power subprogram is developing thermal storage to provide baseload power on demand. Additionally, the Systems Integration and Market Transformation subprograms support cost goals by addressing grid integration issues and accelerating the deployment of solar through city outreach and workforce development efforts.

Wind Energy.—This program develops technology in partnership with industry to improve the reliability and affordability of land-based wind energy systems. The program also supports activities that help reduce barriers to electric grid interconnection, as well as other issues related to technology acceptance in the market. The program supports offshore wind energy development through technology development and characterization as well as through resource assessment.

Water Power.—This program conducts research, development, validation testing and deployment of innovative water technologies to accelerate market penetration of cost-effective and environmentally responsible renewable power generation from water. Early priorities of this relatively new program include: cost and resource assessments of the suite of potential marine, hydrokinetic, and advanced hydropower technologies, and environmental studies.

Vehicle Technologies.—The program's R&D seeks technology breakthroughs that will enable the U.S. to greatly reduce highway transportation petroleum use and greenhouse gas emissions. Program activities encompass a suite of technologies for hybrid, plug-in hybrid, fuel cell, and advanced efficiency vehicles, including lightweight materials, electronic power controls and electric driven motors, and advanced energy storage devices. This program also supports research to improve the efficiency of advanced combustion engines, using fuels with formulations developed for advanced engines, and incorporating non-petroleum based fuels components. The program also funds community-based outreach via Clean Cities coalitions, competitive awards, and other activities to facilitate the market adoption of alternative fuels and highly efficient automotive technologies.

Building Technologies.—In partnership with the buildings industry, the program develops, promotes, and integrates energy technologies and practices to make buildings more efficient and affordable. The Building Technologies Program accelerates the availability of highly efficient building technologies and practices through research and development; increases the minimum efficiency of buildings and equipment through the promotion of model building efficiency codes and the promulgation of national lighting and appliance standards; and encourages the use of energy-efficient and renewable energy technologies and practices in residential and commercial buildings through activities such as the Solar Decathlon, ENERGY STAR partnership with EPA, and the Builders Challenge.

Industrial Technologies.—The Industrial Technologies Program supports cost-shared R&D of technologies to reduce industry's energy intensity and carbon emissions. Market transformation and technology development and deployment activities are pursued to accelerate industry's adoption of clean energy technologies that increase energy productivity.

Federal Energy Management Program.—This program enables the Federal Government to meet the relevant energy, water, and transportation goals of existing legislation and Executive Orders by providing interagency coordination, technical expertise, training, financing resources and contracting support.

Facilities and Infrastructure.—This activity provides funding for the National Renewable Energy Laboratory for general plant projects, maintenance, upgrades, and new facilities in support of EERE's R&D mission.

Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities.—The Weatherization and Intergovernmental Activities program supports clean energy deployment in partnership with State, local, U.S. Territory, and Tribal governments. The State Energy Program provides technical and financial resources to States to help them address issues in utility, renewable energy, and building code policies. Funding also supports energy efficiency and renewable energy projects that meet local needs. The Tribal Energy Program supports feasibility assessments and development of implementation plans for clean energy projects on Tribal lands. The Weatherization Assistance Program lowers energy use and costs for low income families by supporting energy efficient home retrofits through state-managed networks of local weatherization providers.

The Non-Defense Environmental Cleanup program includes funds to manage and clean up sites used for civilian energy research, and non-defense related activities. Past activities related to nuclear energy research and development resulted in radioactive, hazardous, and mixed waste contamination that requires remediation, stabilization, or some other type of action. The budget displays the cleanup program by site.

West Valley Demonstration Project.—Funds waste disposition, building decontamination, removal of non-essential facilities in the near-term, and development of the Decommissioning Envir-

Gaseous Diffusion Plants.—Funds surveillance and maintenance of the former Uranium Program facilities and manages legacy polychlorinated biphenyl contamination. Also included are the operation of two depleted uranium hexafluoride conversion facilities at Paducah, Kentucky, and Portsmouth, Ohio, to convert the depleted uranium hexafluoride into a more stable form for reuse or disposition.

Fast Flux Test Facility.—Funds the long-term surveillance and maintenance and eventual decontamination and decommissioning of the Fast Flux Test Facility, operated from the 1960s through 1980s.

Small Sites.—Funds cleanup, closure, and post-closure environmental activities at a number of geographic sites across the Nation, including Brookhaven National Laboratory, Energy Technology Engineering Center, Moab, and the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center. Some sites are associated with other Department of Energy programs, particularly the Office of Science, and will have continuing missions after EM completes the cleanup. Others will transition to the Office of Legacy Management or private sector entities for post-closure activities.

The Fossil Energy Research and Development program supports high-priority, high-risk research that will improve the Nation's ability to use coal cleanly and efficiently. The program funds research and development with academia, national laboratories, and the private sector to advance the technology base used to develop new products and processes for clean and efficient coal use. Fossil Energy R&D supports activities ranging from early concept research in universities and national laboratories to applied R&D and proof-of-concept projects with private-sector firms.

Coal.—Research and Development activities focus on: 1) advanced coal-fueled power systems that support carbon capture and storage (CCS), including integrated gasification combined cycle (IGCC) technology, hydrogen turbine technology and fuel cells; 2) CO₂ capture technology applicable to both new and existing fossil-fueled facilities; 3) CO₂ storage, with emphasis on CO₂ monitoring, verification and accounting; and 4) advanced research to bridge fundamental science and engineering development. The Department will continue to work with the private sector and academia to conduct and direct research toward overcoming critical challenges to continued coal use for power generation in the United States.

Oil and Gas.—The Oil program will effect an orderly termination of activities. The Gas program will conduct methane hydrate research .

Program Direction and Management Support.—The program provides the funding for all headquarters and field personnel and overhead expenses in Fossil Energy R&D and Clean Coal Technology, including research by Federal employees. In addition, it provides support for day-to-day project management functions. No funding is proposed for the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Project Loan Guarantee program because existing balances are sufficient to address current project activity. Also included is the Import/Export Authorization program which will continue regulatory reviews and oversight of the transmission of natural gas across the U.S. borders.

Environmental Restoration.—DOE is managing the environmental cleanup of former and present Fossil Energy project sites. Activities include environmental protection, onsite cleanup, and cleanup at several former offsite research and development locations in Wyoming and Connecticut and environmental efforts at the National Energy Technology Laboratory Morgantown and Pittsburgh sites, and the Albany Research Center.

Following the sale of the Naval Petroleum Reserve 1 (NPR-1) (Elk Hills) site mandated by the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (P.L. 104-106), the most significant post-sale activity is the settlement of ownership equity shares with the former unit partner, Chevron USA Inc. Additional activities include environmental remediation and cultural resource activities.

The account also funds activities at the Naval Petroleum Reserve 3 in Wyoming (Teapot Dome field), a stripper well oil field that the Department is operating until it reaches its economic production limit.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

In 2005, congressional budget subcommittees implemented a number of structural changes, including the unification of energy efficiency and renewable energy programs under a single subcommittee. Consequently, programs formerly funded under Energy Conservation were funded through the Energy Supply and Conservation account.

The object of this program is to reduce the vulnerability of the United States to energy supply disruptions by maintaining a crude oil stockpile capable of rapid deployment at the direction of the President. This program enables the President to meet the Nation's membership commitments within the International Energy Agency's coordinated energy emergency response plans and programs to deter intentional energy supply disruptions and to take effective, coordinated action should an energy supply disruption occur.

This account provides for ongoing storage site operations and maintenance activities, planning studies and activities, drawdown testing/readiness of the Reserve, and program administration. The 2010 budget continues to provide further insurance against oil supply disruptions that could harm the U.S. economy by pursuing a Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) program that is environmentally responsible and fully responsive to the needs of the Nation and the public. In 2009, DOE will use $563 million in available balances for the purchase of additional SPR oil, and will continue to fill using Federal royalty oil until the existing 727 million barrel capacity is filled in early 2010. In 2010, DOE will replace an existing storage cavern at one SPR site that poses an environment risk for continued use.

The key measure of program performance is expressed as capability to comply with Level 1 Technical and Performance Criteria. These criteria are specifically engineered performance and reliability standards applied to critical inventory storage, drawdown, and distribution systems required for drawing down and distributing crude oil inventory.

The Energy Information Administration (EIA) provides timely, accurate and relevant energy information to meet the requirements of government, industry, and the public in a manner that promotes sound policymaking, efficient markets, and public understanding. In carrying out its legislative mandate, EIA conducts survey and data collection operations, produces energy analyses and forecasts, and publishes data and analyses primarily through the Internet and other electronic media. These programs require that the agency design, develop and maintain information systems on petroleum, natural gas, coal, nuclear, electricity, alternate fuel sources, and energy consumption. Activities include collecting data and ensuring its accuracy; preparing forecasts of alternative energy futures; and preparing reports on energy sources, end-uses, prices, supply and demand, and associated environmental, economic, international, and financial matters. In addition, through its National Energy Information Center, EIA ensures that all information and data products can be accessed through the agency's website, <http://www.eia.doe.gov> and responds to inquiries from the Congress, the Administration, State and local

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (Commission) regulates and oversees key interstate aspects of the electric power, natural gas, oil pipeline, and hydropower industries. The Commission supports competitive markets, assures access to abundant, reliable energy, promotes the development of a strong energy infrastructure, and prevents market manipulation. Regulated businesses pay fees and charges sufficient to recover the Commission's full cost of operations.

The Commission exercises authority granted by a number of major statutes: the Federal Power Act (FPA); the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act (PURPA); the Public Utility Holding Company Act (PUHCA); the Natural Gas Act (NGA); and the Natural Gas Policy Act (NGPA); and the Energy Policy Act of 2005 (EPA 2005).

Energy Infrastructure.—The Commission seeks to promote the development of a strong energy infrastructure to meet market and operational demands. The Commission has two primary objectives in this area: stimulate appropriate infrastructure development and maintain a reliable and safe infrastructure.

The Commission is responsible for licensing non-federal hydro-power projects, enforcing license terms and conditions, and performing dam safety inspections. It regulates over 1,600 projects (encompassing approximately 2,500 dams and impoundments and the associated lakes and reservoirs) which supply about 5 percent of the electric energy generated in the United States. In an effort to increase the efficiency of the hydroelectric licensing process, the Integrated Licensing Process was designed to enable Commission final action on the license application within a target timeframe of between 16 to 18 months from filing. Recently, Commission staff developed licensing procedures for pilot projects tailored to meet the needs of entities interested in testing new hydrokinetic technology, while minimizing the risk of adverse environmental impacts. In addition, the Commission's dam safety inspection program verifies the structural integrity of dams and compliance with license requirements, and identifies subsequent necessary investigations, remedial modifications, or required maintenance.

The Commission certifies interstate natural gas pipelines and storage projects, and authorizes LNG facilities to meet the demand for natural gas. The Commission has expedited the review process through Commission staff's active participation in the pre-filing process. The pre-filing process engages stakeholders in the identification and resolution of concerns prior to a company filing an application with the Commission. Also, public safety is among the Commission's highest priorities when it comes to regulating LNG terminals. The Commission's LNG program ensures the safety and reliability of proposed and operating LNG terminals in the United States, and that approved LNG terminals and associated LNG vessel traffic meet safety and environmental requirements during construction and operation.

The Commission has jurisdiction to issue permits to site electric transmission facilities under certain circumstances. The Commission's jurisdiction is limited to facilities located in National Interest Electric Transmission Corridors, as designated by the Secretary of Energy. The Commission reviews each transmission siting application to ensure that it: is consistent with the public interest and will protect or benefit consumers; will be used for transmission in interstate commerce; will significantly reduce transmission congestion; is consistent with sound National energy policy and will enhance energy independence; and will maximize the transmission capabilities of existing towers or structures to the extent reasonable and economical. The Commission will include in its public interest review an analysis of the impact the proposed facilities (or their absence) will have on the reliability of the bulk power system.

In addition, the Commission determines rates for the interstate transportation of natural gas and oil on jurisdictional pipelines and rates for the interstate transmission and wholesale sales of electric energy. The Commission authorizes tariff provisions, as appropriate, to allow the natural gas and oil pipelines and public utilities to adjust their services to meet their customers' needs. The Commission will continue to develop pricing policies and incentive mechanisms to encourage the development of the Nation's energy infrastructure, to promote capital investment, and to support competitive markets. For example, the Commission offers incentives, where appropriate, for potential investors to build electric transmission facilities. This policy seeks to ensure investment in the Nation's aging transmission infrastructure, promote electric power reliability and lower costs for consumers by reducing transmission congestion. In 2008, the Commission received 15 requests for incentive rate treatment for proposals to build over 5,356 miles of transmission lines at a total cost of approximately $22 billion.

As the need for new generating facilities continues to increase, the Commission has and will continue to adapt its policies on interconnection. The Commission faces the challenge of interconnecting diverse generating facilities, such as location-constrained renewable resources. There are currently over 1,300 requests to connect generation facilities to the grid pending in various regional interconnection queues. Many of these interconnection requests come from renewable energy facilities. The Commission will continue to work with RTOs and ISOs to manage their clogged interconnection queues and connect these resources to the grid, helping to ensure adequate supplies of energy.

Additionally, the Commission coordinates with several other agencies as a member of the Smart Grid Collaborative. Under the Energy Independence and Security Act (EISA) of 2007, the Commission is charged with the responsibility of reviewing and approving interoperability standards of smart grid technology.

The Commission's electric grid reliability efforts include federal oversight of mandatory and enforceable electric reliability standards for the Nation's bulk power system. The standards, developed by a Commission-certified Electric Reliability Organization (ERO), apply to the users, owners, and operators of the bulk power system of the United States, excluding Alaska and Hawaii. The Commission has approved and made mandatory 114 reliability standards submitted by the ERO for Commission approval. These standards address bulk power system planning and operations including emergency practices needed to protect and improve electric grid reliability.

The Commission's continued work to protect and improve electric grid reliability will focus on: 1) overseeing the development and enforcement of mandatory electric reliability standards to protect the bulk power system, including cyber security standards; 2) addressing and improving infrastructure security; and 3) coordinating efforts with Canada and Mexico to address reliability standards and other cross-border reliability issues.

Competitive Markets.—The Commission believes that competition, combined with effective regulation, is consistent with national policy for wholesale energy markets. To that end, the Commission develops rules that improve the operation of competitive markets and works to prevent the accumulation and exercise of market power, ensuring just and reasonable rates in wholesale energy markets.

The Commission continues to promote market transparency, promulgating and approving clear market rules. Order No. 888 set the foundation upon which to attain competitive electric markets ten years ago; however, the industry has changed considerably since then. With Order No. 890, the Commission reformed its open access transmission tariff in 2007, ensuring that it continues to remedy opportunities for undue discrimination in the provision of transmission services and increase competition in wholesale energy markets. In October 2008, the Commission issued Order No. 719 to further increase competition. This rule requires RTOs and ISOs to alter their market rules to remove barriers to the use of demand response resources and to allow prices to reflect supply and demand conditions.

The Commission works to prevent the accumulation and exercise of market power. To that end, the Commission addresses both vertical market power issues and horizontal market power. The Commission will use its strengthened merger and corporate review authority to continue to ensure that mergers and consolidations will not harm the public interest.

The Commission has adjusted policy to improve the opportunity for the integration of substantial levels of clean energy, including variable generation such as wind and solar. For example, the Commission approved the use of an anchor shipper in merchant transmission projects in February 2009. This policy change was aimed at reducing the financial risk associated with building transmission for wind generation facilities. The Commission's efforts to integrate clean energy are supported by the Commission's endeavors to incorporate advanced technologies to increase grid flexibility while maintaining security and reliability.

Enforcement.—The Commission has adjusted its regulatory policies to meet the dramatic changes that have occurred in both the natural gas and electric industries, in particular the change to greater reliance on competition to set prices. It is important that the Commission understands market dynamics in order to detect violations of statutory and regulatory requirements quickly. The Commission seeks to prevent violations of its rules, enforce compliance with its jurisdictional laws, publicize misconduct where appropriate, and take prompt action to prevent future misconduct. The Commission can identify violations by many methods, including review of market information required to be filed by market participants; investigations of significant price spikes or market anomalies; periodic audits of compliance with Commission tariffs, rules and regulations; referrals from RTO and independent system operator market monitors; tips and complaints from the public and market participants; and self-reports of violations by companies.

Perhaps most important, the Commission must ensure that jurisdictional utilities have effective internal monitoring and compliance programs in place to help assure that they are following established Commission rules and regulations.

To help market participants and regulated entities comply with the Commission's rules, the Commission works with stakeholders to explain the intent and requirements of its rules and the laws it administers. The Commission has adopted rules detailing prohibitions on energy market manipulation and has adopted procedures to allow companies to challenge the findings of operational audits before a final order is issued. The Commission also employs a "no action letter" process to permit market participants to seek advice on whether staff would recommend action against specific transactions in light of the relevant laws and policies. Such initiatives will provide greater transparency and regulatory certainty.

The Commission's enforcement tools include penalty authority for violations of the NGA and all of Part II of the FPA. Entities can be penalized up to $1 million each day for the duration of the violation. Penalties of this magnitude also are applicable to any entity (not just companies traditionally subject to the Commission's jurisdiction) that manipulates wholesale gas or electric markets by engaging in fraud or deceit in connection with jurisdictional transactions. Armed with this authority, the Commission has created an even stronger and more effective compliance and enforcement program to protect the public interest.

Management Initiatives.—The Commission has initiatives underway and processes in place to support its three strategic goals. These activities, including alternative dispute resolution and litigation, and the effective management of human capital, agency resources, and information technology, help the Commission work more efficiently, both within and across program areas. The Commission also understands that open lines of communication with affected parties and the public are critical for effective function of Commission operations. The Commission relies on various methods to communicate its policies and actions to the public which provides a transparent and open process.

The alternative fuels program was established in 1980 for the purpose of expediting the development and production of alternative fuels from coal. A loan guarantee was issued by the Department of Energy in 1982 for the construction and startup of the Great Plains Synthetic Fuels Plant to produce synthetic gas lignite coal.

Upon default of the borrower in 1985 under the terms of the loan guarantee, the Department acquired ownership of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project plant by foreclosure. On October 31, 1988, the Department completed the transfer of the Great Plains Plant to Dakota Gasification Company (DGC) under terms of an Asset Purchase Agreement.

Funds in this account are used to pay for expenses and responsibilities related to the Department's prior operation of the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project and the administration of the Asset Purchase Agreement and related contracts and agreements which transferred the facility to the private sector. Remaining outstanding obligations are for carrying out contractual obligations through the end of the contract term in December 2009.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-58) created a mandatory Ultra-Deepwater and Unconventional Natural Gas and Other Petroleum Research program beginning in 2007. The program is funded from Federal revenues from oil and gas leases. This Budget proposes to cancel the program through a legislative proposal.

ELK HILLS SCHOOL LANDS FUND

Title XXXIV, Subtitle B of Public Law 104-106 required the Department to sell the government's interest in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills) pursuant to the terms of the Act. The sale occurred in February 1998. Section 3415 of the Act required, among other things, that the Department make an offer of settlement based on the fair value of the State of California's longstanding claims to two parcels of land ("school lands") within the Reserve. Under the Act, nine percent of the net proceeds were reserved in a contingent fund in the Treasury for payment to the State. In compliance with the Act and in order to remove any cloud over title which could diminish the sales value of the Reserve, the Department entered into a settlement agreement with the State on October 11, 1996. That agreement calls for payment to the State, subject to appropriations, of nine percent of the net proceeds of sale, payable over a seven-year period (without interest), commencing in 1999. Under the settlement agreement and provided that funds are appropriated, the first five installments are for $36 million each year, and the remaining balance is to be paid in two equal installments in years six and seven unless the seventh payment needs to be deferred in whole or in part due to the equity finalization schedule. Under the settlement agreement, $300 million has been paid to the State of California. There is no request for funding in 2010. The timing and levels of any future budget request are dependent on the schedule and results of the equity finalization process.

The Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve assures a home heating oil supply for the Northeast States during times of very low inventories and significant threats to immediate supply. Two million barrels of heating oil will protect the Northeast against disruption for 10 days, the time required for ships to carry heating oil from the Gulf Coast to New York Harbor in the event of a supply disruption or shortage in the northeast region.

Contracts for the storage, operation and maintenance of the reserve were awarded on August 7, 2007. A sale of 35,000 barrels was conducted at the time to offset storage costs. The Department repurchased 19,253 barrels of the oil in FY2008. Purchase of the remainder, 15,427 barrels of oil, is scheduled for FY 2010. Contracts were awarded to Hess Corp (for 1,000,000 barrels in New York harbor) to Morgan Stanley (for 750,000 barrels in New Haven, CT), and to Hess Corp (for 250,000 barrels in Groton, CT).

NUCLEAR WASTE DISPOSAL—Continued

The Nuclear Waste Disposal Account was established as part of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (P.L. 97-425), as amended, to provide funding to implement Federal policy for disposal of commercial spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste. The Administration has determined that developing a repository at Yucca Mountain is not a workable option and that the Nation needs a better solution for nuclear waste disposal. The budget provides funding for the Administration to devise a new strategy for safe and secure management of the Nation's nuclear waste, and minimal funding to participate in the repository licensing proceeding underway by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) as the new strategy is developed. Repository development activities previously funded by the account that do not directly support the NRC licensing effort, such as site infrastructure development, design and engineering activities, and operational planning, are being terminated.

The charter of the DOE isotope production and distribution program covers the production and sale of radioactive and stable isotopes, associated byproducts, surplus materials such as lithium and helium, and related isotope services to the user community utilizing Government-owned facilities. Services include, but are not limited to, irradiation services, target preparation and processing, source encapsulation and other special preparations, analyses, chemical separations, and the lease of stable isotopes for research purposes. In FY 2008, research isotopes were priced based on direct production costs. The Isotope Program is in the process of developing new pricing policies for research isotopes to make them more affordable to the research community. DOE will continue to sell commercial isotopes at full-cost recovery.

Section 136 of the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007 established a direct loan program to support the development of advanced technology vehicles and associated components in the United States, known as the Advanced Technology Vehicles Manufacturing Loan Program (ATVM). The 2009 Continuing Resolution (CR), enacted on September 30, 2008, appropriated $7.5 billion to support a maximum of $25 billion in loans under the ATVM. The ATVM provides loans to automobile and automobile part manufacturers for the cost of re-equipping, expanding, or establishing manufacturing facilities in the United States to produce advanced technology vehicles or qualified components, and for associated engineering integration costs.

Because DOE has not yet evaluated the potential subsidy costs for any projects that might be eligible for the ATVM, the 2010 Budget reflects placeholder estimates for direct loan subsidy costs, based on an illustrative portfolio.

These estimates are not related to any specific project proposals. DOE will calculate the credit subsidy cost of any direct loan on a case-by-case basis in accordance with Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (FCRA) and OMB Circular A-11. For any project, the terms and conditions of the loan, the risks associated with the project, and any other factor that affects the amount and timing of such cash flows will affect the credit subsidy cost calculations.

As required by the FCRA, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Loan Guarantee Program Office will consider and coordinate Departmental action on all loan guarantee applications submitted to the Department of Energy in compliance with Title XVII of the Energy Policy Act of 2005. Section 1703 of that Act authorizes the Department to provide loan guarantees for renewable energy systems, advanced nuclear facilities, coal gasification, carbon sequestration, energy efficiency, and many other types of projects. These projects must avoid, reduce, or sequester air pollutants or anthropogenic emissions of greenhouse gases; employ new or significantly improved technologies compared to commercial technologies in service in the United States at the time the guarantee is issued; and offer a reasonable prospect of repayment of the principal and interest on the guaranteed obligation.

DOE is implementing this program under authorizing law that allows borrowers to pay the credit subsidy costs of these loan guarantees.

Section 406 of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, Pub. L. No. 111-5 (the "Recovery Act"), amended the LGPO's authorizing legislation, by establishing Section 1705 which is a temporary program for the rapid deployment of renewable energy and electric power transmission projects. Section 1705 provides $6 billion in appropriated credit subsidy which will allow the Secretary to make loan guarantees available for the following categories of projects that commence construction not later than September 30, 2011:

-Renewable energy systems, including incremental hydropower, that generate electricity or thermal energy, and facilities that manufacture related components.

-Electric power transmission systems, including upgrading and reconductoring projects.

-Leading edge biofuel projects that will use technologies performing at the pilot or demonstrations scale that the Secretary determines are likely to become commercial technologies and will produce transportation fuels that substantially reduce life-cycle greenhouse gas emissions compared to other transportation fuel. Funding for these projects shall not exceed $500,000,000.

The decision to issue loan guarantees will depend on the merits and benefits of particular project proposals and their compliance with statutory and regulatory requirements.

$51.0 billion is available to support eligible projects under Section 1703. Loan volume utilized may not be reused. DOE is not seeking additional appropriations for credit subsidy costs in 2010. The 2010 Budget reflects placeholder estimates based on illustrative examples, unrelated to any specific project.

The Loan Guarantee Program Office will centralize loan guarantee services for the Department to ensure all processes and criteria are applied uniformly in accordance with established requirements, procedures and guidelines. The Department requests $43.0 million in funding in 2010 to operate the Office and support personnel and associated costs. This request will be offset by collections authorized under EAct 2005. To ensure that the Department meets statutory requirements and implements effective management and oversight of its loan guarantee activities, program funding also will support the procurement of outside expertise in areas such as finance, project engineering, and commercial market assessment.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ALASKA POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Alaska Power Administration (APA) was created in 1967 by the Secretary of the Interior to assume the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation in Alaska. These functions include operations, maintenance, transmission, and power marketing of the two Federal hydroelectric projects (Eklutna and Snettisham), and the investigation of future water and power development programs. All Alaska activities of APA, including the Juneau headquarters office, were terminated on September 30, 1998. A fund is maintained to liquidate the remaining obligations of the APA.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, SOUTHEASTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

For necessary expenses of operation and maintenance of power transmission facilities and of marketing electric power and energy, including transmission wheeling and ancillary services pursuant to section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944 (16 U.S.C. 825s), as applied to the southeastern power area, [$7,420,000] $7,638,000, to remain available until expended: *Provided, That notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3302 and section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944, up to $7,638,000 collected by the Southeastern Power Administration from the sale of power and related services shall be credited to this account as discretionary offsetting collections, to remain available until expended for the sole purpose of funding the annual expenses of the Southeastern Power Administration: Provided further, That the sum herein appropriated for annual expenses shall be reduced as collections are received during the fiscal year so as to result in a final fiscal year 2010 appropriation estimated at not more than $0: Provided further, That, notwithstanding 31 U.S.C. 3302, up to [$49,520,000] $70,806,000 collected by the Southeastern Power Administration pursuant to the Flood Control Act of 1944 to recover purchase power and wheeling expenses shall be credited to this account as offsetting collections, to remain available until expended for the sole purpose of making purchase power and wheeling expenditures: *Provided further, That notwithstanding the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 3302 and section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944, all funds collected by the Southeastern Power Administration that are applicable to the repayment of the annual expenses of this account in this and subsequent fiscal years shall be credited to this account as discretionary offsetting collections for the sole purpose of funding such expenses, with such funds remaining available until expended: Provided further, That for purposes of this appropriation, annual expenses means expenditures that are generally recovered in the same year that they are incurred (excluding purchase power and wheeling expenses). The Southeastern Power Administration (Southeastern) markets power generated at 22 Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric generating plants in an eleven-State area of the Southeast. Power deliveries are made by means of contracting for use of transmission facilities owned by others.

Southeastern sells wholesale power primarily to publicly and cooperatively-owned electric distribution utilities. Southeastern does not own or operate any transmission facilities. Its long-term contracts provide for periodic electric rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers the costs of operations and the capital invested in power facilities, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements.

Program Direction.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of transmission and power contracts, collection of revenues, development of wholesale power rates, amortization of the Federal power investment, energy efficiency and competitiveness program, investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatch of power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administration of contractual operation requirements, and determination of methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of electricity in connection with the disposal of power under contracts with utility companies. Customers are encouraged to use alternative funding mechanisms, including customer advances and net billing to finance these activities. Offsetting collections to fund these ongoing operating services are also available up to $50 million. Estimates for these activities reflect average water levels over the past 20 years and prevailing electricity prices in 2007.

Reimbursable Program.—The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 (P.L. 110-161) provided Southeastern with authority to accept advance payment from customers for reimbursable work associated with operations and maintenance activities, consistent with those authorized in section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944. Funds received from any State, municipality, corporation, association, firm, district or individual as an advance payment for reimbursable work will be credited to Southeastern's account and remain available until expended.

Reclassification of Receipts.—The 2010 Budget allows for the reclassification as discretionary offsetting collections of power receipts that are currently classified as mandatory for Southeastern in the amount of annual expenses for 2010 and for subsequent years. Reclassification of these receipts would be achieved through this legislation with a 2010 impact of $7,638,000. This impact is reflected as a change in a mandatory program in the associated receipt account.

A continuing fund maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power in the Southeastern service area is available to defray emergency expenses necessary to ensure continuity of service (16 U.S.C. 825s-2). The fund was activated in fiscal year 2009 to finance power purchases associated with below normal hydro power generation due to severe drought. Consistent with sound business practices, the Southeastern Power Administration has implemented a policy to recover all emergency costs associated with purchased power and wheeling within one year from the time funds are expended, as proposed in the 2008 Budget.

The Southwestern Power Administration (Southwestern) operates in a six-state area as a marketing agent for renewable hydroelectric power produced at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' dams. It also operates and maintains 1,380 miles of high voltage transmission lines, 25 substations, and switching facilities, power system controls and communication sites, and is responsible for the construction and maintenance of these facilities.

Southwestern markets and delivers its power at wholesale rates primarily to publicly and cooperatively owned electric distribution utilities. In compliance with statutory requirements, Southwestern's power sales contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of operations, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investments in power facilities, with interest. Southwestern is also responsible for scheduling and dispatching power and negotiating power sales contracts to meet changing customer load requirements.

Program Direction.—Provides compensation and all related expenses for personnel who market, deliver, operate, and maintain Southwestern's high-voltage interconnected power system and associated facilities.

Operations and Maintenance.—Provides essential electrical and communications equipment replacements and upgrades, capitalized moveable equipment, technical services, and supplies and materials necessary for the safe, reliable, and cost effective operation and maintenance of the power system.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provides for the purchase and delivery of energy to meet limited peaking power contractual obligations and transmission line losses resulting from the delivery of power over the Federal system. Federal power receipts and alternative financing methods, including net billing, bill crediting, and customer advances are used to fund system-purchased power support and other contractual services. Customers will provide other power resources and/or purchases for the remainder of their firm loads.

Construction.—Provides for replacement, addition, and modification of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable delivery of power to customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall efficiency.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, SOUTHWESTERN POWER
ADMINISTRATION—Continued

Reimbursable Program.—This activity involves services provided by Southwestern to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Reclassification of Receipts.—The 2010 Budget allows for the reclassification as discretionary offsetting collections of power receipts that are currently classified as mandatory for Southwestern in the amount of annual expenses for 2010 and for subsequent years. Reclassification of these receipts would be achieved through this legislation with a 2010 impact of $31,868,000. This impact is reflected as a change in a mandatory program in the associated receipt account.

A continuing fund maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power in the Southwestern service area, is available permanently for emergency expenses necessary to ensure continuity of electric service and continuous operation of the facilities. The fund is also available on an ongoing basis for paying for purchase power and wheeling expenses when the Administrator determines that such expenses are necessary to meet contractual obligations for the sale and delivery of power during periods of below-average generation (16 U.S.C. 825s-1 as amended further by Public Law No. 101-101). Consistent with sound business practices, Southwestern has developed a policy to recover emergency costs associated with purchased power and wheeling within one year from the time funds are expended, as proposed in the 2008 Budget.

The Western Area Power Administration (Western) markets electric power in fifteen central and western states from federally-owned power plants operated primarily by the Bureau of Reclamation, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the International Boundary and Water Commission. Western operates and maintains about 17,000 circuit-miles of high-voltage transmission lines, more than 300 substations/switchyards and associated power system controls, and communication and electrical facilities for 15 separate power projects. Western also constructs additions and modifications to existing facilities.

In keeping with statutory requirements, Western's long-term power contracts allow for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operations, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investment in power facilities, with interest.

Power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. Receipts are deposited in the Reclamation Fund, the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund, the General Fund, the Colorado River Dam Fund and the Colorado River Basins Power Marketing Fund.

Systems Operation and Maintenance.—Provides essential electrical and communication equipment replacements and upgrades, capitalized moveable equipment, technical services, and supplies and materials necessary for safe reliable operation and cost-effective maintenance of the power systems.

Purchase Power and Wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of electricity in connection with the distribution of power under contracts with utility companies. Customers are encouraged to contract for power and wheeling on their own, or use alternative funding mechanisms, including customer advances, net billing and bill crediting to finance these activities. Ongoing operating services are also available on a reimbursable basis. As in past years, the budget continues to provide certain receipt financing for purchase power and wheeling expenses from the use of discretionary offsetting receipts collected to recover these expenses.

System Construction.—Western's construction and rehabilitation activity emphasizes replacement and upgrades of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable power delivery to its customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall operational efficiency. Western will continue to participate in joint construction projects with customers to encourage more widespread transmission access.

Program Direction.—Provides compensation and all related expenses for the workforce that operates and maintains Western's high-voltage interconnected transmission system (systems operation and maintenance program), and those that plan, design, and supervise the construction of replacements, upgrades and additions (system construction program) to the transmission facilities.

Utah Mitigation and Conservation.—This account is primarily for environmental mitigation expenditures covering fish and wildlife, and recreation resources impacted by the Central Utah Project and the Colorado River Storage Project (CRSP) in the State of Utah.

Reimbursable Program.—This program involves services provided by Western to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Western will continue to spend out of the Colorado River Dam Fund for operations and maintenance activities associated with the Boulder Canyon Project via a reimbursable arrangement with the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation. The Colorado River Dam Fund is a revolving fund operated by the Bureau of Reclamation. Authority for Western to obligate directly from the Colorado River Dam Fund comes from section 104(a) of the Hoover Power Plant Act of 1984.

Reclassification of Receipts.—The 2010 Budget allows for the reclassification as discretionary offsetting collections of power receipts that are currently classified as mandatory for Western in the amount of annual expenses for 2010 and for subsequent years. Reclassification of these receipts would be achieved through this legislation with a 2010 impact of $147,530,000. This impact is reflected as a change in a mandatory program in the associated receipt account.

For presentation of the 2010 Budget, this account includes $10 million enacted in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 for use by Western Area Power Administration to complete activities authorized in section 402 of the Act.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (the Act) provided Western Area Power Administration (Western) borrowing authority for the purpose of constructing, financing, facilitating, planning, operating, maintaining or studying construction of new or upgraded electric power transmission lines and related facilities with at least one terminus within the area served by Western, and for delivering or facilitating the delivery of power generated by renewable energy resources constructed or reasonably expected to be constructed after the date of enactment. This authority to borrow from the United States Treasury is available to Western on a permanent, indefinite basis, with the amount of borrowing outstanding not to exceed $3.25 billion at any one time. Western has established a separate program and office to administer the borrowing authority and to comply with the transparency and reporting requirements established under the Act. The new Transmission Infrastructure Program will support Western's and the Department of Energy's priorities by facilitating the delivery of renewable energy resources to market.

An emergency fund maintained from receipts from the sale and transmission of electric power is available to defray expenses necessary to ensure continuity of service. The fund was activated in 2008 for several emergency operation and maintenance requirements. These emergencies included the replacement of a shunt oil reactor at the Fort Thompson Substation, South Dakota; repair of lines and structures damaged by a tornado in Windsor, Colorado; replacement of a transformer in Lusk, Wyoming; and, con-

Continuation of funding for the replacement and repair of transmission lines damaged by storms in the Upper Great Plains Region.

Pursuant to section 2 of the Act of June 18, 1954, as amended, Western Area Power Administration is requesting funding from the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund to defray operations, maintenance, and emergency (O,M&E) expenses for the hydroelectric facilities at Falcon and Amistad Dams on the Rio Grande River. Most of these funds will be made available to the United States Section of the International Boundary and Water Commission through a reimbursable agreement. $200,000 in the fund is for an emergency reserve that will remain unobligated unless unanticipated expenses arise. Revenues in excess of O,M&E will be paid to the General Fund to repay the costs of replacements and the original investment with interest.

Reclassification of receipts.—The 2010 Budget allows for the reclassification as discretionary offsetting collections of power receipts that are currently classified as mandatory for Falcon and Amistad in the amount of annual expenses for 2010 and for subsequent years. Reclassification of these receipts would be achieved through this legislation with a 2010 impact of $2,348,000. This impact is reflected as a change in a mandatory program in the associated receipt account.

Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) is a Federal electric power marketing agency in the Pacific Northwest. BPA markets hydroelectric power from 21 multipurpose water resource projects of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and 10 projects of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, plus some energy from non-Federal generating projects in the region. These generating resources and BPA's transmission system, consisting of over 15,000 circuit miles of high-voltage transmission lines and 237 substations, are operated as an integrated power system with operating and financial results combined and reported as the Federal Columbia River Power System (FCRPS). BPA provides about thirty-five percent of the region's electric energy supply and about three-fourths of the region's high-voltage electric power transmission capacity.

BPA is responsible for meeting the net firm power requirements of its requesting customers through a variety of means, including energy conservation programs, acquisition of renewable and other resources, and power exchanges with utilities both in and outside the region.

BPA will finance its operations with a business-type budget under the Government Corporation Control Act, 31 USC 9101-10, on the basis of the self-financing authority provided by the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act of 1974 (Transmission Act) (Public Law 93-454) and the U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (Pacific Northwest Power Act) (Public Law 96-501) for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5), and other legislation. Authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury is available to the BPA on a permanent, indefinite basis. The amount of U.S. Treasury borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $7.70 billion. BPA finances its approximate $4.0 billion annual cost of operations and investments primarily using power and transmission revenues and loans from the U.S. Treasury.

Operating Expenses-Transmission Services.—Provides for operating about 15,000 miles of high-voltage transmissions line and 237 substations, and for maintaining the facilities and equipment of the Bonneville transmission system in 2010.

Power Services.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective resources. These resources are needed to serve BPA's portion of the region's forecasted net electric load requirements. This activity also includes protection, mitigation and enhancement of fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. This activity provides for payment of the operation and maintenance (O&M) costs allocated to power the 31 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation hydro projects, and amortization on the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation capital investment in power generating facilities and irrigation assistance at Bureau facilities. This activity also provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation. It also provides for extending the benefits of low cost Federal power to the residential and small farm customers of investor-owned and publicly-owned utilities, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act and for activities of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council required by the Pacific Northwest Power Act.

Interest.—Provides for payments to the U.S. Treasury for interest on U.S. Treasury borrowings to finance BPA's capital investments under $7.70 billion of U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Power Act for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, and other legislation. This interest category also includes interest on U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, BPA and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation appropriated debt.

Capital Investments-Transmission Services.—Provides for the planning, design and construction of transmission lines, substation and control system additions, replacements, and enhancements to the FCRPS transmission system for a reliable, efficient and cost-effective regional transmission system. Provides for planning, design, and construction work to repair or replace existing transmission lines, substations, control systems, and general facilities of the FCRPS transmission system.

Power Services.—Provides for direct funding of additions, improvements, and replacements at existing Federal hydroelectric projects in the Northwest. It also provides for capital investments to implement environmental activities, and protect, mitigate, and enhance fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. This activity provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation.

Capital Equipment / Capitalized Bond Premium.—Provides for capital information technologies, and office furniture and equipment, and software capital development in support of all BPA programs. It also provides for bond premiums incurred for refinancing of bonds. The 2010 capital obligations are estimated to be $846 million.

Contingencies.—Although contingencies are not specifically funded, the need may arise to provide for purchase of power in low-water years; for repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies, including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; for unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments, including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims and relocations; or for payment of a retrospective premium adjustment in excess nuclear property insurance.

Financing.—The Transmission Act provides for the use by BPA of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of BPA. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and transmission services. The Transmission Act also provides for authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. BPA has $7.70 billion of U.S. Treasury borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act, the Pacific Northwest Power Act for energy conservation, renewable energy resources, capital fish facilities, and other purposes, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, and other legislation. The amount of BPA's current outstanding bonds with the U.S. Treasury is $2.19 billion. BPA also currently has $6.47 billion of non-Federal debt outstanding, including Energy Northwest bonds. BPA will rely primarily on its U.S. Treasury borrowing authority to finance capital projects, but may also elect to use cash reserves generated by revenues from customers or seek third party financing sources when feasible to finance some of these investments.

In 2008, BPA made payments to the Treasury of $963 million and also expects to make payments of $654 million in 2009 and $824 million in 2010. The 2010 payment will be distributed as follows: interest on bonds and appropriations ($374 million), amortization ($419 million), and other ($31 million). BPA also received credits totaling $96 million applied against its Treasury payments in 2008 to reflect amounts diverted to fish mitigation efforts, but not allocable to power, in the Columbia and Snake River systems.

BPA, with input from its stakeholders, considers other strategies to sustain funding for its infrastructure investment requirements as well. BPA's recently updated Financial Plan defines strategies and policies for guiding how BPA will manage risk and variability of electricity markets and water years. It also describes how BPA will continue to manage to ensure it meets its Treasury repayment responsibilities.

Direct Loans.—During 2010, no new direct loan obligations may be made.

Operating Results.—Total revenues are forecast at approximately $3.9 billion in 2010.

It should be noted that BPA's revenue forecasts are based on several critical assumptions about both the supply of and demand for Federal energy. During the operating year, deviation from the conditions assumed in a rate case may result in a variation in actual revenues of several hundred million dollars from the forecast.

Consistent with Administration policy, BPA will continue to fully recover, from the sale of electric power and transmission, funds sufficient to cover the full cost of Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits for its employees. The entire cost of BPA employees working under the Federal Employees Retirement System is fully recovered in wholesale electric power and transmission rates.

Western Area Power Administration's (Western) operation and maintenance (O&M) and power marketing expenses for the Colorado River Storage Project, the Colorado River Basin Project, the Seedskadee Project, the Dolores Project and the Fort Peck Project are financed from power revenues.

Colorado River Storage Project.—Western markets power and operates and maintains the power transmission facilities of the Colorado River Storage Project consisting of four major storage units: Glen Canyon on the Colorado River, Flaming Gorge on the Green River in Utah, Navajo on the San Juan River in New Mexico, and the Wayne N. Aspinall unit on the Gunnison River in Colorado.

Colorado River Basin Project.—This project includes Western's expenses associated with the Central Arizona Project and the United States entitlement from the Navajo coal-fired powerplant. Revenues in excess of operating expenses are transferred to the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund.

Fort Peck Project.—Revenues collected by Western are used to defray operation and maintenance and power marketing expenses associated with the power generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck Project; and Western operates and maintains the transmission system and performs power marketing functions.

Seedskadee Project.—This project includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from the Fontenelle Dam power plant in southwestern Wyoming.

Dolores Project.—This project includes Western's expenses for O&M, power marketing, and transmission of hydroelectric power from power plants at McPhee Dam and Towaoc Canal in southwestern Colorado.

Equipment, Contracts and Related Expenses.—Western operates and maintains approximately 4,000 miles of transmission lines, substations, switchyards, communications and control equipment associated with this fund. Wholesale power is provided to utilities over interconnected high-voltage transmission systems. In keeping with statutory requirements, long-term power contracts provided for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of O&M, and all capital invested in power, with interest. This activity provides for the supplies, materials, services, capital equipment replacements and additions, including communications and control equipment, purchase power, transmission and wheeling services, and interest payments to the U.S. Treasury.

Program Direction.—The personnel compensation and related expenses for all these activities are quantified under Program Direction.

This appropriation provides Department-wide, including the National Nuclear Security Administration, audit, inspection, and investigative functions to identify and correct management and administrative deficiencies which create conditions for existing or potential instances of fraud, waste, abuse and violations of law. The audit function provides financial and performance audits of programs and operations. The inspection function provides independent inspections and analyses of the performance, on a system basis, of programs and operations. The investigative function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving programs, personnel, and operations. Through these efforts the OIG identifies opportunities for cost savings and operational efficiencies; identifies programs that are not meeting performance expectations; recovers monies to the Department and the Treasury as a result of civil and criminal prosecutions; and identifies ways to make Departmental programs safer and more secure.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

SEC. 301. CONTRACT COMPETITION.

(a) None of the funds in this or any other appropriations Act for fiscal year [2009] 2010 or any previous fiscal year may be used to make payments for a noncompetitive management and operating contract, or a contract for environmental remediation or waste management in excess of $100,000,000 in annual funding at a current or former management and operating contract site or facility, or to award a significant extension or expansion to an existing management and operating contract, or other contract covered by this section, unless such contract is awarded using competitive procedures or the Secretary of Energy grants, on a case-by-case basis, a waiver to allow for such a deviation. The Secretary may not delegate the authority to grant such a waiver.

(b) Within 30 days of formally notifying an incumbent contractor that the Secretary intends to grant such a waiver, the Secretary shall submit to the Subcommittees on Energy and Water Development of the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report notifying the Subcommittees of the waiver and setting forth, in specificity, the substantive reasons why the Secretary believes the requirement for competition should be waived for this particular award.

(c) In this section the term "competitive procedures" has the meaning provided in section 4 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403) and includes procedures described in section 303 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 253) other than a procedure that solicits a proposal from only one source.

SEC. 302. UNFUNDED REQUESTS FOR PROPOSALS. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to prepare or initiate Requests For Proposals (RFPs) for a program if the program has not been funded by Congress.

SEC. 303. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY DEFENSE NUCLEAR FACILITIES WORKFORCE RESTRUCTURING. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used—

(2) to provide enhanced severance payments or other benefits for employees of the Department of Energy under such section; or

(3) develop or implement a workforce restructuring plan that covers employees of the Department of Energy.

SEC. 304. UNEXPENDED BALANCES. When the Department of Energy considers the participation of a university or other potential user as a formal partner in the establishment or operation of a user facility, the Department shall employ full and open competition in selecting such a partner. For purposes of this section, the term "user facility" includes, but is not limited to: (1) a user facility as described in section 2203(a)(2) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 13503(a)(2)); (2) a National Nuclear Security Administration Defense Programs

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is responsible for protecting the public health by assuring the safety, efficacy, and security of human and veterinary drugs, biological products, medical devices, our Nation's food supply, cosmetics, and products that emit radiation. The FDA is also responsible for advancing the public health by helping to speed innovations that make medicines more effective, safer, and more affordable; and helping to provide the public accurate, science-based information about medicines and foods to improve their health. FDA decisions affect Americans on a daily basis. The Budget includes funding for counterterrorism activities that specifically relate to the protection of products or therapies regulated by the FDA (such as drugs, vaccines, foods, and animal feed), and the availability of medical products for public health preparedness in the event of an attack. Specifically, the Budget requests funding for food protection, drug safety, medical device review and safety, and headquarters consolidation in White Oak, Maryland.

The FY 2010 Budget includes a number of new and current user fees. The Budget proposes a food inspection and food facility registration user fee to support and improve inspections, surveillance, laboratory capacity and response to prevent and control foodborne illnesses. The Budget also proposes user fees to support activities related to generic human drug reviews, re-inspections of FDA-regulated facilities, and the issuance of export certificates for food and animal feeds.

The Budget further proposes new authorities to approve generic biologics.

Activities displayed here support categorical health resources and services grants, treatment and care for those living with HIV/AIDS, and the medical malpractice claims funds, which pay malpractice claims filed against employees of federally-supported health centers. Under current law, the authorization for the Ryan White HIV/AIDS program (Title XXVI of the Public Health Service Act) sunsets at the end of FY 2009. The Budget anticipates a timely reauthorization of Ryan White activities. In the case that additional time may be needed to enact reauthorization, the Administration has included a temporary extension within appropriations language for the Health Resources and Services Administration.

Medicaid assists States in providing medical care to their low-income populations by granting Federal matching payments under title XIX of the Social Security Act to States with approved plans.

Medicaid estimates assume budget authority for expenses that are incurred but not reported (IBNR).

Authorized as part of Title XIX, Vaccines for Children (VFC) finances the purchase of vaccines for low-income, eligible children. VFC is administered by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and is funded entirely by the Federal Government.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 established the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) under Title XXI of the Social Security Act. Title XXI provides Federal matching funds to States to enable them to extend coverage to uninsured children from low-income families. States are able to use Title XXI funds for obtaining health benefit coverage for uninsured children through a CHIP program, a CHIP Medicaid expansion program, or a combination of both. The Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-3) reauthorized the CHIP program through FY 2013 and made some modifications to the program including increased funding for States and territories, bonus payments for States that exceed enrollment targets, a contingency fund to assist States who spend above their available allocated CHIP funds, and support for child health quality and outreach activities.

The Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act (CHIPRA) of 2009 established the Child Enrollment Contingency Fund under Title XXI. This fund is established in the Treasury of the United States and is used to provide payments to States that exceed their allotments due to higher-than-expected child enrollment. Beginning in FY 2009, a State may qualify for a contingency fund payment if it projects a funding shortfall for the fiscal year and if its average monthly child enrollment exceeds its target average number of enrollees for the fiscal year.

The fund receives an initial appropriation equal to 20 percent of the FY 2009 national allotment ($2.1 billion). In FYs 2009-2013, the bill appropriates the amount necessary to make payments to eligible States, but not to exceed 20 percent of the total annual appropriation for CHIP. Any amounts in excess of this aggregate cap will be made available for CHIP performance bonus payments. Also, the contingency fund will be invested in interest bearing securities of the United States. The income derived from these investments constitutes a part of the fund.

P.L. 104-191 established the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control (HCFAC) account within the Federal hospital insurance trust fund and appropriated funds, to be available without further appropriation, from the trust fund to the HCFAC account for specified health care fraud and abuse control activities of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the Department of Justice, and other agencies.

This schedule reflects the estimated distribution of the account for 2010. As required by statute, actual 2010 agency distributions will be determined by the Secretary of HHS and the Attorney General consistent with the Administration's priorities.

Office of the Inspector General, HHS	170	177	177
Other specific HHS fraud and abuse projects	32	34	34
Total	255	266	266

* Numbers may not add due to rounding.

The 2010 Budget proposes the following structural changes to the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control Account: (1) splitting the current funding provided jointly to the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Justice into separate funding streams; (2) eliminating the annual negotiations process between the two Departments; and (3) changing the due date of the annual HCFAC report from January 1 to June 1.

The 2010 Budget also includes a discretionary request for efforts to safeguard Medicare Advantage, the Medicare prescription drug benefit, and Medicaid that will supplement the mandatory funds made available by P.L. 104-191. The 2010 discretionary investment represents the first year of a multi-year fraud and abuse strategy by the Administration.

It is important that these cost increases and new enforcement investments be fully funded. The Administration is proposing to fund them as contingent appropriations. To ensure full funding of the new enforcement investments, the Administration proposes to employ a budget enforcement mechanism that allows for an adjustment by the Budget Committees to the section 302(a) allocation to the Appropriations Committees found in the concurrent resolution on the budget. These adjustments would only be permissible if the use of these funds was clearly restricted to the specified purpose. The maximum allowable adjustment to the 302(a) allocation would be $311 million for 2010. See additional discussion on page 40-41 of the budget document A New Era of Responsibility.

The HCFAC entities will develop a comprehensive plan for Medicare, Medicaid and CHIP program integrity activities. The plan will indicate how program integrity appropriations from all sources (DRA, HIPAA and the discretionary allocation adjustment) will be allocated to address program integrity priorities. These priorities include identifying and recouping excessive payments, pinpointing potential weaknesses in program integrity oversight, and establishing new processes and safeguards to correct programmatic vulnerabilities.

The Administration believes that the current physician payment system, while it has served to limit spending to a degree, needs to be reformed to give physicians incentives to improve quality and efficiency. The baseline reflects the Administration's best estimate of what the Congress has done in recent years; although, we are not suggesting that it should be future policy. The baseline also includes the costs to Medicare of an extension of the QI program through the Budget window.

Note.—The reimbursable program (HCFAC) in the Administration on Aging (AoA) reflects the estimated distribution of the allocation account for 2010. Actual 2010 distributions will be determined by the Secretary of HHS and the Attorney General.

The proposed level will provide continued funding for core formula grant programs that provide nutrition, supportive services and caregiver support services through the aging network. These programs are part of a comprehensive system of home and community-based support for older people and their families.

The Budget will continue to provide funding for AoA's health and long-term care initiatives, including Aging and Disability Resource Centers (ADRCs), Evidence-Based Disease Prevention and Nursing Home Diversion which focus on giving older individuals and their caregivers the ability to improve and maintain their health, better direct their care, and conserve and extend their personal resources, all through the use of low-cost, community-based service alternatives.

This program supports coordination, leadership, and development of Federal health information technology activities and Federal initiatives for the nationwide advancement of interoperable health information technology, in cooperation with participants in the health sector. The Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology was established in the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act (P.L. 111-5, Title XIII), for the purpose of addressing strategic planning, coordination, and the analysis of key technical, economic and other issues related to the public and private adoption of health information technology.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (P.L. 111-5) included additional funding for ONC to implement the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act. Obligation and outlay amounts presented in this Appendix for these Recovery Act funds are estimates, and may change once spending plans are finalized.

Through this program, activities related to and supporting the President's Health Information Technology Initiative are coordinated across several HHS organizations, as shown in the following consolidated table.

The Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund (PHSSEF) provides resources to support a comprehensive program to prepare for the health and medical consequences of bioterrorism or other public health emergencies. This account includes funding for the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response (ASPR), as authorized by the Pandemic and All-Hazards Preparedness Act. Funds will be used for the advanced development of pandemic and biodefense countermeasures, hospital preparedness and other emergency preparedness activities including the National Disaster Medical System that was transferred to HHS from the Department of Homeland Security in January 2007. The PHSSEF also includes funding for activities to support the detection and control of pandemic influenza. The balance of the Special Reserve Fund will be transferred from the Department of Homeland Security to the HHS PHSSEF. The procurement of biodefense countermeasures will be administered under the same authorities of the Project BioShield Act of 2004 and a portion of the balance will support advanced research and development.

HHS Service and Supply Fund (SSF) provides a wide range of logistical and support services to components of the Department and other Federal agencies. The Program Support Center includes activities such as personnel and payroll support, information technology, financial management operations, and administrative services, including acquisitions management, building and property management, telecommunication services, medical supplies repackaging and distribution services, and the Federal Occupational Health Service. The Office of Secretary activities include the fund manager, departmental contracts, audit resolutions, Commissioned Corps force management, web management, claims, acquisition integration and modernization, small business, grants tracking, and competitive sourcing.

Most Commissioned Corps officers work for agencies in the Department of Health and Human Services and are reflected in the agencies' personnel summaries. However, some officers are assigned to other Federal agencies. The allocation account section in the following personnel summary shows officers assigned to other agencies, which are paid directly by that agency, either through an allocation account or by directly citing that agency's appropriation.

The Analysis and Operations appropriation provides resources for the support of the Office of Intelligence and Analysis (I&A) and the Office of Operations Coordination and Planning (OPS). This appropriation includes both National Intelligence Program (NIP) funds for I&A and non-NIP funds for OPS. Even though these two offices are different and distinct in their missions, they work closely together and collaborate with other Departmental components and related federal agencies, as well as State, local, tribal, foreign, and private sector partners, to improve intelligence analysis, information sharing, incident management support, and situational awareness.

Office of Intelligence and Analysis (I&A). I&A is responsible for the Department's intelligence and information gathering and sharing capabilities for and among all components of DHS, state, local, and private sector partners, and the Intelligence Community (IC). As a member of the IC, I&A's primary contribution to our national security is its ability to execute their homeland security intelligence analysis and warning mission while serving as a nexus for integration and coordination of actionable intelligence from both domestic and foreign sources. I&A serves as the primary federal interface with State and Local Fusion Centers, providing for reciprocal intelligence and information sharing in support of homeland security operations across all levels of government and the private sector. The blending of actionable intelligence, coupled with access to component and stakeholder source data, allows for unique analytical mission support and the subsequent development of high quality intelligence related products. The Under Secretary for Intelligence and Analysis (U/SIA) leads I&A, and is also the Department's Chief Intelligence Officer (CINT) responsible for managing the entire DHS Intelligence Enterprise, and the Department's Chief Information Sharing Officer, responsible for implementing the objectives of the Program Manager-Information Sharing Environment (PM-ISE) within DHS.

Office of Operations Coordination and Planning (OPS). The mission of OPS is to integrate DHS and interagency planning and operations coordination in order to prevent, protect, respond to and recover from terrorist threats/attacks or threats from other man-made or natural disasters. OPS plays a pivotal role in DHS' mission to lead the unified national effort to secure America by facilitating the Secretary's responsibilities across the full spectrum of incident management (prevention, protection, response and recovery). OPS provides situational awareness, assessments and operations coordination for the DHS Secretary and facilitates operational information sharing with all DHS components, as well as for Federal, state, local, tribal, private sector and international partners. In support of the Secretary's role as principal federal official for domestic incident management, OPS develops and coordinates Departmental and inter-agency strategic-level operations plans. Additionally, OPS supports the DHS mission to lead the national unified effort to secure America by maintaining the National Operations Center (NOC) and by providing 24/7 incident management capability to ensure a seamless integration of threat monitoring and information flow. The NOC is the primary national-level hub for domestic incident management, operations coordination and situational awareness standing as a 24/7 multi-agency organization, fusing law enforcement, national intelligence, emergency response and private sector reporting.

This account finances the cost of conducting and supervising audits, inspections, and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the Department to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness and to prevent and detect fraud, waste, and abuse in such programs and operations. The Budget includes adjustments-to-base increases for the annualization of prior year funding and the 2009 pay raise; the 2010 anticipated pay increase, Working Capital Fund, GSA rent, and program increases. The Budget reflects resources that will enable the Office of Inspector General to perform its oversight responsibilities, as well as assist DHS in achieving its goal of "organizational excellence." The resources requested will increase the number of reports that the OIG is able to produce and its ability to provide a greater number departmental managers with recommendations to ensure that their program/activities are operating in the most economical, efficient, and effective manner possible. In addition, the resources will enable the OIG to conduct new audits annually, including in-house grant audits of state grantees and local government sub-grantees; adequately staff existing investigative field offices; address major information technology issues facing the Department in the various stages of development and implementation; and continue the prominent operations of the OIG's Emergency Management Oversight office.

The mission of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) is to adjudicate and grant immigration and citizenship benefits and provide accurate and useful information to its customers. USCIS also promotes an awareness and understanding of citizenship, while ensuring the integrity of our immigration system. USCIS approves millions of immigration benefit applications each year, ranging from work authorization, lawful permanent residency, and asylum and refugee status. The Budget continues to invest in updated technology and a new business process platform to improve and automate business operations, eliminating paper-based processing and improving information sharing, along with enhancing USCIS ability to identify and prevent immigration benefit fraud.

The Budget assumes that USCIS will continue to be funded primarily through fees on the applications and petitions it adjudicates. However, the Budget proposes to reform the existing fee process by providing an appropriation to cover the cost of asylum and refugee operations, as well as the cost of military naturalizations. Currently, fees are not charged on beneficiaries of these services. Instead the cost burden is spread to applicants for other immigration benefits unrelated to those programs.

The United States Secret Service (USSS) performs two critical homeland security missions: protection and criminal investigations. The USSS protects the President and Vice President, their families, visiting heads-of-state/government, and other designated individuals, such as the Secretary of Homeland Security; investigates threats against these protectees; protects the White House, Vice Presidents Residence, Foreign Missions, and other designated buildings within the Washington, D.C. area; and designs, coordinates, and implements operational security plans for designated National Special Security Events. The USSS investigates violations of laws relating to: counterfeiting of obligations and securities of the United States; financial crimes, such as access device fraud, financial institution fraud, identity theft, and computer fraud; computer-based attacks on our nations financial, banking, and telecommunications infrastructure; and provides critical forensic support for associated investigations for the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC).

The Administration plans to submit authorizing legislation for later transmittal that includes a restructuring of the pay chart for the United States Secret Service Uniformed Division. This pay chart is part of a larger modernization of the Uniformed Divisions legal authorities which are currently derived from both District of Columbia and United States code. These dual authorities create many structural inefficiencies which hamper the Uniform Division's ability to perform at its full potential. Once the legislation has been enacted, the Secret Service Salaries and Expenses account will require an additional $4,040,000 appropriation to implement the pay chart restructuring.

The Budget proposes $5,580 million in discretionary and mandatory resources for the Transportation Security Administration's aviation security activities. Of this amount an estimated $2,249 million is financed by offsetting collections from passenger security fees, air carrier security fees, and user fees supporting civil aviation security services. Included in the offsetting collections amount is $20 million in user fees for air cargo, general aviation at the Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport, Secure Identification Display Area checks, Other Security Threat Assessments, and the Certified Cargo Screening and Large Aircraft Security programs. The $2,249 million amount does not include the first $250 million in fee collections, which are provided to the Aviation Security Capital Fund.

Overall funding in this account will be used to fund screening personnel, compensation and benefits, and related expenses for transportation security officers; screening technology; privatized passenger and baggage screener contracts; aviation regulation and enforcement activities, airport managerial and support activities; air cargo screening operations; and operational testing and activities to improve flight deck and air crew safety.

As the largest investigative arm of the Department of Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) brings a unified and coordinated focus to the enforcement of Federal immigration and customs laws.

The Budget supports enhanced border security and continued enforcement of immigration and customs laws. It funds all aspects of immigration and customs enforcement, including providing resources for Secure Communities, which support the identification and removal of criminal aliens; expanding the number and scope of independent inspections of ICE detention facilities; provides necessary permanent staffing and oversight by the Office of State and Local Coordination; builds upon current activities to counter international crime originating in Mexico; facilitating investigations of immigration and customs violators by developing a cadre of regional experts and assembling pre-operational reports; and improving medical care at ICE detention facilities. The Budget also takes steps towards improving management and operations at ICE by optimizing the effectiveness and efficiency of its workforce, and refining its business processes through expanded use of technology.

ICE works to protect the United States and its people by deterring, interdicting, and investigating threats arising from the movement of people and goods into and out of the United States; and by protecting Federal Government facilities across the Nation. Major programs funded by the Salaries and Expenses appropriation include:

Investigations.—Responsible for investigating a range of issues, including human smuggling; weapons, narcotics and all other contraband smuggling; export enforcement, such as investigating illegal arms exports and exports of dual-use equipment that may threaten national security; financial crimes, such as money laundering and bulk cash smuggling; customs fraud and intellectual property rights violations; cybercrime; immigration crimes; and human rights violations.

Intelligence.—Responsible for the collection, analysis, and dissemination of strategic and tactical intelligence data for use by the operational elements of ICE and DHS.

Detention and Removal.—Responsible for promoting the public safety and national security by ensuring the departure from the United States of all removable aliens through the fair enforcement of the nation's immigration laws.

International Affairs.—Responsible for investigating violations involving contraband smuggling, immigration violations, money laundering, arms/technology trafficking, child sexual exploitation and cyber crimes overseas.

Principal Legal Advisor.—Serves as the legal representative for the U.S. Government at immigration court hearings, and provides the legal advice, training, and services required to support the ICE mission while defending the immigration laws of the United States.

Secure Communities Comprehensive Identification and Removal of Criminal Aliens (SC/CIRCA).—Coordinates the planning and operational activities devoted to criminal alien enforcement within ICE. Through SC/CIRCA, ICE is leveraging technology to increase national security and community safety by identifying, processing, and removing removable criminal aliens, beginning with those who pose the greatest known risk to public safety.

Among the missions at the Department of Homeland Security, U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) is responsible for securing America's borders, while facilitating legitimate trade and travel. CBP is responsible for inspecting travelers at land, sea, and air ports-of-entry for immigration, customs, and agriculture compliance, as well as interdicting illegal crossers between ports-of-entry. CBP is responsible for enforcing the laws regarding admission of foreign-born persons into the United States; identifying and apprehending aliens; and ensuring that all goods and persons entering and exiting the United States do so legally.

The Department of Homeland Security is proposing to consolidate two existing fee accounts (Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA) and Immigration Inspection User Fees (IUF)) and establish a new CBP Inspection User Fees account. The proposed legislation will consolidate the authorities that govern the user fees that financially support CBP's inspection of passengers and conveyances entering the United States. This legislation will improve CBP's governance on user fees and produce benefits for the industries that are currently paying multiple fees for integrated inspection services.

The DHS Secure Border Initiative (SBI) is a comprehensive, multi-year plan to secure the borders of the United States and reduce illegal cross border activities such as smuggling of economic migrants, illegal drugs, and articles and people with terrorist intent. Within this broader SBI framework, the SBInet Program is responsible for acquisition, development, installation and integration of technologies to provide (1) surveillance and detection tools for situational awareness; (2) command, control, and intelligence tools; and, (3) a communications infrastructure needed to augment the DHS ONENET communications network to transport sensor information to/from field and headquarters elements. The initial focus of the SBInet Program is to mitigate or eliminate the clear and pressing vulnerabilities existing along the U.S. Southwest border between the ports of entry. Along the Southwest border, the threat is most grave in the Arizona sectors, and as such, SBInet's initial development and deployments will occur in this area. Over time, the SBInet Program will evolve a solution, when combined with tactical infrastructure and personnel, to enable DHS to gain and maintain effective control of the U.S. land borders.

The Automation Modernization account is divided into two program and project activities, the Automated Commercial Environment (ACE) and Critical Operations Protection and Processing Support (COPPS). The funding for information technology initiatives as well as maintenance of the existing information technology infrastructure at CBP resides in this account. ACE is being developed and deployed in increments and will replace the current trade management system, the Automated Commercial System (ACS). ACE will provide tools and enhance the business processes that are essential to securing U.S. borders while ensuring the efficient processing of legitimate goods. COPPS provides nearly all the CBP Information Technology (IT) infrastructure to operate and maintain mission-critical IT systems requisite to secure the borders while facilitating legitimate trade and travel.

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) consistently strives to improve the planning, execution, and management of its Real Property Program, and has restructured for 2010 accordingly. CBP has consolidated all facilities-related funding into a single account, so that the agency can consistently plan, finance, and manage its multifaceted facilities portfolio to best fulfill the driving mission needs. The 2010 request consolidates CBP construction, in addition to rent, operations, management, headquarters support, and tunnel remediation.

Funding requested in this account supports the operations of the Coast Guard as it carries out its duties as a maritime, military, multi-mission operating agency and one of the five armed forces. To fulfill its mission, the Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas. In 2010, the Coast Guard will start shutting down the Loran-C program, terminate signal transmission and commence reassigning site personnel to address other important Coast Guard needs.

The Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund is used to finance oil pollution prevention and cleanup activities by various Federal agencies. In accordance with the provisions of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, the Fund may finance annually up to $50 million of emergency resources and all valid claims from injured parties resulting from oil spills. For Coast Guard, this funds the Trust Fund Share of Expenses and Oil Spill Recovery accounts. The OSLTF is funded by an excise tax on each barrel of oil produced domestically or imported. The Energy Improvement and Extension Act of 2008 (P.L. 110-343) increased the tax rate to eight cents on each barrel of oil through December 31, 2016, and nine cents on each barrel of oil for the period January 1, 2017 through December 31, 2017. The tax currently will sunset December 31, 2017.

The Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) United States Visitor and Immigrant Status Indicator Technology (US-VISIT) project was established in May 2003 to continue the implementation of a series of statutory initiatives designed to enhance national security at our borders. Those initiatives collectively require DHS to create an automated entry and exit system; to integrate existing biometric databases; use available data to match alien arrival and departure records; and use biometrics to screen visa applicants and applicants for admission to the United States against watchlists.

UNITED STATES VISITOR AND IMMIGRANT STATUS INDICATOR
TECHNOLOGY—Continued

The US-VISIT receives, stores, and shares information, including biometric identifiers, on foreign nationals seeking to enter the United States. This information is collected to determine whether individuals should be prohibited from entering the United States; determine whether individuals can receive, extend, change, or adjust immigration status; determine whether individuals have overstayed or otherwise violated the terms of their admission; determine whether individuals should be apprehended or detained for law enforcement action; and determine whether individuals need special protection and/or attention (e.g., refugees).

US-VISIT's budget activities consist of Identity Management and Screening Services; Unique Identity; Comprehensive Biometric Exit; Operations and Maintenance; and Program Management Services.

The Infrastructure Protection and Information Security (IPIS) appropriation funds Infrastructure Protection and Cybersecurity and Communications activities.

The Office of Infrastructure Protection (IP) leads the coordinated national effort to reduce risk to our Critical Infrastructure and Key Resource (CIKR) posed by acts of terrorism and enables national preparedness, timely response, and rapid recovery in the event of an attack, natural disaster, or other emergency. There are three major mission areas within IP: Identification and Analysis; Coordination and Information Sharing; and Mitigation Programs.

Identification and Analysis.—The Identification and Analysis mission area includes IP projects and activities that support the capability to identify the nations CIKR, assess CIKR vulnerabilities and consequences, and analyze and reduce risk. Activities include developing an inventory of CIKR assets; risk analysis, modeling and simulation; and fusing information from field assessments to enable analysis of infrastructure interdependencies.

Coordination and Information Sharing.—The Coordination and Information Sharing mission area includes IP projects and activities that enhance situational awareness and maximize the ability of government and private sector security partners at all levels to assess risks, coordinate programs and processes, and execute risk-mitigation programs and activities. Coordination and Information Sharing leads and coordinates the execution of the National Infrastructure Protection Plan, acting as a central clearinghouse for information sharing and coordination activities of individual sectors as well as facilitating development and support of security partner governance models.

Mitigation Programs.—The Mitigation Programs mission area includes voluntary and regulatory projects and activities, which enable security partners to identify and mitigate vulnerabilities, implement protective measures, and increase preparedness for facilities, systems, and surrounding communities. They support public awareness efforts and facilitate the sharing of CIKR protection-related best practices and lessons learned as well as enabling IP planning, readiness and incident management.

Cyber Security and Communications (CS&C) collaborates with public, private, and international partners to ensure the security and continuity of the Nations cyber and communications infrastructures in the event of terrorist attacks, national disasters, and catastrophic incidents. Additionally, CS&C protects and strengthens the reliability, survivability and interoperability of the Nation's communications capabilities, including those utilized during emergencies, at the Federal, State, local, territorial, and tribal levels. The CS&C budget includes the National Cyber Security Division, National Communications System, and Office of Emergency Communications.

National Cyber Security Division (NCS).—NCS partners with the private sector, government, military, and intelligence stakeholders in risk assessments and mitigating vulnerabilities and threats to information technology assets and activities affecting the operation of the government and civilian critical cyber infrastructures. NCS provides cyber threat and vulnerability analysis, early warning, and incident response assistance for public and private sector constituents. In addition, NCS is the Federal executive agent for carrying out many of the mandates under the Comprehensive National Cybersecurity Initiative.

National Communications System (NCS).—The NCS provides mission-critical national security and emergency preparedness (NS/EP) telecommunications for Federal, State and local governments, and private industry through the following functions: 1) administering the National Coordinating Center for Telecommunications to facilitate the initiation, coordination, restoration and reconstitution of NS/EP telecommunications services or facilities under all circumstances; 2) developing and ensuring the implementation of plans and programs that support telecommunications infrastructure hardiness, redundancy, mobility, connectivity and security; and 3) serving as the focal point for industry and government NS/EP telecommunications planning and partnerships. The NCS budget includes the Priority Telecommunications System, Programs to Study and Enhance Telecommunications, Critical Infrastructure Protection, and Next Generation Networks programs.

The Office of Emergency Communications (OEC).—The OEC supports and promotes the ability of emergency responders and government officials to continue to communicate in the event of natural disasters, acts of terrorism, or other man-made disasters. OEC works to ensure, accelerate, and attain interoperable and operable emergency communications nationwide.

The Budget transfers the Federal Protective Service from Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) to the National Protection Programs Directorate (NPPD). FPS responsibilities, such as providing physical security and policing of Federal buildings, establishing building security policy, and ensuring compliance are outside the scope of ICE's immigration and customs enforcement mission and are better aligned to NPPD.

The 2004 Homeland Security Appropriations Act provided advance appropriations for Biodefense Countermeasures. This program, which the Departments of Homeland Security and Health and Human Services jointly manage, was designed to support the government's efforts to secure medical countermeasures to strengthen the Nation's preparedness against bioterror attacks by pre-purchasing critically needed vaccines and other countermeasures for biodefense. However, procurements have been less than expected than when the program was established. As such, the 2010 Budget proposes to transfer the Special Reserve Fund's unspent balances to HHS to support HHS' advanced development activities and future procurements of advanced medical countermeasures.

FEMA provides State and local governments with grants, training, exercises, and technical assistance to improve their readiness for terrorism incidents and catastrophic events. This assistance strengthens homeland security preparedness by supporting development of key capabilities in prevention, protection, response, and recovery. The approach outlined below provides rationalization for focusing efforts into three general stakeholder categories: the State and region, the major urban area, and the Federal complementary component that serves to unify the Homeland Security mission.

State and Regional Preparedness Programs.—Programs included in this overarching category seek to address preparedness concerns at the State and regional level. Major components of the 2010 request include:

State Homeland Security Grants ($950,000,000).—Grants to States to support the implementation of prevention and protection capabilities per each State's homeland security strategy. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk and effectiveness and then adjusted to ensure that each State receives a minimum allocation. At least 25% of all funds shall be directed to law enforcement terrorism prevention activities. In addition, $60,000,000 of the total amount for State Homeland Security Grants is slated for use in Operation Stonegarden to focus on the Nation's Southwest Border security issues.

Emergency Management Performance Grants ($315,000,000).—These grants support State and regional efforts to achieve target levels of capability in catastrophic planning and emergency management. This program provides funding by formula basis to all 56 States and territories.

Firefighter Assistance Grants ($590,000,000).—These grants provide direct assistance to local fire departments for investments to improve their ability to safeguard the lives of firefighting personnel and members of the public in the event of a terrorist attack. The $590 million request for 2010 is focused on grants for hiring and retaining firefighters, training, equipment, and personal protective gear. The Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) grant comprises $420 million of the total amount, while the remaining $170 million will go toward the Assistance to Firefighter Grant (AFG) and Fire Prevention and Safety programs. The competitive, peer-review grant process will give priority to applications that enhance capabilities for terrorism response and other major incidents.

The Citizen Corps Grant Program ($15,000,000).—These grants support Citizen Corps Councils with efforts to engage citizens in personal preparedness, exercises, ongoing volunteer programs, and surge capacity response. This program provides funding by formula basis to all 56 States and territories.

The Driver's License Security Grant Program ($50,000,000).—This program will provide support to State Motor Vehicle or Driver's License Issuing Authorities to improve the reliability and accuracy of personal identification documents in order to prevent terrorism and reduce fraud.

The Interoperable Emergency Communications Grant Program ($50,000,000).—These grants will provide governance, planning, training and exercise, and equipment funding to States, Territories, and local and tribal governments to carry out initiatives to improve interoperable emergency communications; including communications in collective response to natural disasters, acts of terrorism, and other man-made disasters. All proposed activities must be integral to interoperable emergency communications and must be aligned with the goals, objectives, and initiatives identified in the grantees' approved Statewide Communication Interoperability Plans (SCIP).

Regional Catastrophic Preparedness Grants Program ($35,000,000).—This program supports the coordination of regional all-hazard planning for catastrophic events, including the development of integrated planning communities, plans, protocols, and procedures to manage a catastrophic event.

STATE AND LOCAL PROGRAMS—Continued

Medical Surge Grants ($40,000,000).—These grants address the growing concern over a lack of staged medical commodities in preparation for a catastrophic incident. Regional collaboration of States will be prioritized, as the Medical Surge Grants program will be conducted in conjunction with planning achievements under the Regional Catastrophic Preparedness Grants Program.

Metropolitan Statistical Area Preparedness Programs.—Programs included in this overarching category seek to address preparedness concerns at the high threat urban area level. Major components of the 2010 request include:

Urban Area Security Initiative ($887,000,000).—Grants to address the unique homeland security needs of high-risk metropolitan areas and to assist those areas in building enhanced and sustainable capabilities to prevent, protect, and recover from acts of terrorism. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk and effectiveness. At least 25% of all funds shall be directed to law enforcement terrorism prevention activities.

Port Security Grant Program ($250,000,000).—As part of the transportation and infrastructure protection portfolio of programs, these grants support projects which enhance the layered protection of the Nation's seaports from terrorism. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk.

Public Transportation Security Grant Program ($250,000,000).—As part of the transportation and infrastructure protection portfolio of programs, these grants support security projects at bus, rail and ferry transit systems in high-risk urban areas. Final grant allocations will be determined by the Secretary on the basis of risk.

Buffer Zone Protection Program ($50,000,000).—These grants provide funding to increase the preparedness capabilities of jurisdictions responsible for the safety and security of communities surrounding high-priority pre-designated Tier 1 and Tier 2 critical infrastructure and key resource (CIKR) assets, including chemical facilities, financial institutions, nuclear and electric power plants, dams, stadiums, and other high-risk/high-consequence facilities, through allowable planning and equipment acquisition.

Training, Measurement, and Exercise Programs.—These programs are a complement to other major programs requested within FEMA and represent the Federal offering that binds together all of the State and local preparedness initiatives within the Department of Homeland Security. Major components of the 2010 request include:

National Exercise Program ($42,000,000).—Funds exercises for WMD events and other major incidents.

State and Local Training Programs ($114,000,000).—Supports the unique training facilities managed by the Center for Domestic Preparedness and competitive grants to the other members of the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium.

Technical assistance ($13,000,000).—Supports technical assistance for grantees in catastrophic planning and other key investment areas.

Evaluations and Assessments ($18,000,000).—Supports preparedness policy development, data collection, and program evaluation.

Continuing Training Grants Program ($23,000,000).—These grants award funds to competitively selected applicants to develop and deliver innovative training programs addressing high priority national homeland security training needs.

Management and Administration ($175,000,000).—These funds will provide the necessary resources for all management and administrative requirements of both the Grants Program Directorate and the National Preparedness Directorate within FEMA. This amount is provided in lieu of the traditional combination of a line item sum in FEMA's Operation, Management, and Administration account and a percentage of total grant dollars.

Funding requested through this account will provide technical assistance and risk-based grant funding to State, local, and tribal governments to reduce the risks associated with disasters. Resources support the development and enhancement of hazard mitigation plans, as well as the implementation of pre-disaster mitigation projects. Operating independently of the Disaster Relief Fund (DRF), which provides post-disaster mitigation funding, the Pre-Disaster Mitigation program provides a stable, year-to-year funding source for qualified projects that is not dependent upon Presidentially declared disaster activity.

The Flood Map Modernization Fund is used to ensure the Map Modernization investment is preserved and that FEMA makes progress toward addressing flood hazard data update needs for communities who rely heavily on structural flood control defenses as well as those communities at high risk of flooding along the Nations open coasts. Further, the requested 2010 funding will allow FEMA to smoothly transition to a multi-year mapping effort that meets the FEMA statutory requirement to review the flood hazard maps on a five-year cycle and address flood hazard data update needs.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate floodplain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within one year of the time they are identified as flood-prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes. In addition, Federally regulated funding institutions cannot provide loans to non-participating communities with an identified flood hazard.

In 2010, the Budget assumes collection of all of the administrative and program costs associated with flood insurance activities from policy holders. In addition, 80,000,000 from premium collections will be used to support repetitive and severe repetitive loss mitigation. Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $350,000 for residential and $1,000,000 for other types.

This account also supports National Flood Mitigation activities that reduce the risk of flood damage to structures insurable under the National Flood Insurance Program. These activities provide flood mitigation assistance planning support to States and communities through the Flood Mitigation Assistance grant program.

Disaster assistance loans authorized by the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.) are loans to States for the non-Federal portion of cost-sharing funds and community disaster loans to local governments incurring substantial loss of tax and other revenues as a result of a major disaster. The funds requested for this program include direct loans and a subsidy based on criteria including loan amount and interest charged. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis. Loan activity prior to 1992, which is budgeted for on a cash basis, totals less than $500,000 in every year and is not presented separately.

Funding is also provided for the operations, maintenance and construction of laboratory facilities.

The 2010 Budget provides for major technology and development efforts, including detection, destruction, disposal, and mitigation of chemical and biological agents and conventional explosives. Funding also is provided to develop technology to mitigate and prepare for natural disasters and to improve cyber security. Funding also is provided for the test and evaluation of technologies, systems, and processes developed to counter these threats and for the acquisition of equipment and operations needed to field those technologies, systems, and processes, as well as others that may be available without further development, as part of the counter-WMD, counter-terror, and preparation for/response to natural disaster activities of the Department.

Research and development and acquisition funds for each fiscal year will be available for obligation until expended.

This account supports the personnel and related administrative costs for the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office (DNDO). The DNDO is a jointly-staffed office established to improve the Nation's capability to detect and report unauthorized attempts to import, possess, store, develop, or transport nuclear or radiological material for use against the Nation, and to further enhance this capability over time.

The 2010 Budget provides for 130 positions, no change from 2009. As a jointly-staffed office, the DNDO staff is made up of approximately 28 detailees augmenting approximately 102 DNDO Federal staff members. Management and Administration request includes contributions to the DHS Working Capital Fund.

Management and Administration funds will be available for obligation until the end of the fiscal year.

This account supports the research and development programs of the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office (DNDO). DNDO is dedicated to both the development and enhancement of global nuclear detection architecture; deployment support for the domestic detection system; coordination of effective sharing of nuclear detection-related information; the coordination of nuclear detection research and development; technical nuclear forensics; and the establishment of procedures and training for end users of nuclear detection equipment.

The 2010 Budget provides for a systems development program aimed at providing near-term technical solutions addressing pressing operational requirements and a transformational research and development program to deliver long-term technology breakthroughs, which will provide significant improvement to overall systems performance, cost, and operability. Funding is also provided for the test and evaluation of all developed systems prior to acquisition decisions, ensuring that a full systems characterization has been conducted prior to any deployments. Additionally, funding is provided to expand operational support programs that provide information analysis and situational awareness, technical support, training curricula, and response protocols to field-users.

Research, development, and operations funds for each fiscal year will be available for obligation until expended.

Beginning in 2010, no additional funding is sought for this activity. In the past, DNDO acquired and deployed radiation detection technologies for DHS components, primarily the Coast Guard and the Customs and Border Patrol, or state and local users. Funding requests for radiation detection equipment will now be sought by the end users that will operate them so that they can better integrate technology deployments with their management of ports-of-entry and screening operations in future budgets.

In the past, funds this account have been used to acquire a full range of radiation detection technologies, including fixed and mobile systems. These technologies are deployed at the Nation's ports of entry as well as in urban areas. However, partially due in part to developmental delays, obligation rates for this account has been slower than expected. In 2010, unspent funds will be drawn down as DHS transitions to a different model to fund the purchases of radiation detection equipment within the Department in future budgets.

[(INCLUDING RESCISSIONS OF FUNDS)]

SEC. 501. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 502. Subject to the requirements of section 503 of this Act, the unexpended balances of prior appropriations provided for activities in this Act may be transferred to appropriation accounts for such activities established pursuant to this Act, may be merged with funds in the applicable established accounts, and thereafter may be accounted for as one fund for the same time period as originally enacted.

SEC. 503. (a) None of the funds provided by this Act, provided by previous appropriations Acts to the agencies in or transferred to the Department of Homeland Security that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year [2009] 2010, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure through a reprogramming of funds that: (1) creates a new program, project, or activity; (2) eliminates a program, project, office, or activity; or (3) increases funds for any program, project, or activity for which funds have been denied or restricted by the Congress; (4) proposes to use funds directed for a specific activity by either of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate or the House of Representatives for a different purpose; or (5) contracts out any function or activity for which funding levels were requested for Federal full-time equivalents in the object classification tables contained in the fiscal year 2009 [Budget Appendix for the Department of Homeland Security, as modified by the explanatory statement accompanying this Act], unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

(b) None of the funds provided by this Act, provided by previous appropriations Acts to the agencies in or transferred to the Department of Homeland Security that remain available for obligation or expenditure in fiscal year 2009 2010, or provided from any accounts in the Treasury of the United States derived by the collection of fees or proceeds available to the agencies funded by this Act, shall be available for obligation or expenditure for programs, projects, or activities through a reprogramming of funds in excess of $5,000,000 or 10 percent, whichever is less, that: (1) augments existing programs, projects, or activities; (2) reduces by 10 percent funding for any existing program, project, or activity, or numbers of personnel by 10 percent as approved by the Congress; or (3) results from any general savings from a reduction in personnel that would result in a change in existing programs, projects, or activities as approved by the Congress, unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such reprogramming of funds.

(c) Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available for the current fiscal year for the Department of Homeland Security by this Act or provided by previous appropriations Acts may be transferred between such appropriations, but no such appropriation, except as otherwise specifically provided, shall be increased by more than 10 percent by such transfers: Provided, That any transfer under this section shall be treated as a reprogramming of funds under subsection (b) and shall not be available for obligation unless the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives are notified 15 days in advance of such transfer.

[(d) Notwithstanding subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section, no funds shall be reprogrammed within or transferred between appropriations after June 30, except in extraordinary circumstances that imminently threaten the safety of human life or the protection of property.]

SEC. 505. Except as otherwise specifically provided by law, not to exceed 50 percent of unobligated balances remaining available at the end of fiscal year 2009 2010 from appropriations for salaries and expenses for fiscal year 2009 2010 in this Act shall remain available through September 30, 2010 2011, in the account and for the purposes for which the appropriations were provided: Provided, That prior to the obligation of such funds, [a request] notice thereof shall be submitted to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives [for approval] in accordance with section 503 of this Act.

SEC. 506. (b) The report required by subsection (a) shall be submitted within 90 days after the Secretary provides the requisite certification, and

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the 2010 Budget for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The Administration proposes a Budget that provides the resources necessary to support HUD's core mission to increase access to affordable housing, support homeownership, and strengthen communities. Further, the Budget enables HUD to respond to the economic and housing crisis, as well as provides funding for new initiatives that are necessary to modernize the Department and its programs to meet new challenges.

The Budget reflects the President's pledge to fully fund the Community Development Block Grant program at $4.5 billion. In addition to this funding level, the Administration will propose legislative reforms to adopt a formula that better targets resources to economically distressed areas; to implement a hold harmless provision to allow communities to adjust under the new formula; and to amend the CDBG statute to establish more rigorous performance measures and accountability standards for formula grantees.

New initiatives are also proposed within CDBG, including $150 million for the Sustainable Communities Initiative to stimulate more integrated and sophisticated regional planning to guide state, metropolitan, and local decisions and investments to link land use, transportation and housing policy. There is also $25 million for a Rural Innovation Fund and $25 million for the University Community Fund.

For the first time, the Budget provides $1 billion to capitalize a Housing Trust Fund that will help make significant advances in providing affordable housing options for targeted low-income families, thus addressing one of the most serious social and economic problems facing our society.

The 2010 Budget continues to support the greatly expanded efforts of a reformed Federal Housing Administration (FHA) as it continues its modernization efforts. The Department continues to help stabilize our mortgage markets, and new legislation and economic conditions have made the FHA a major source of mortgage financing. The Budget includes $100 million for the Housing Counseling Assistance program, which is the only dedicated source of Federal funding for the full spectrum of housing counseling services.

In addition, the Administration proposes $37 million in new funding for its Combating Abusive and Fraudulent Mortgage Practices Initiative. This effort will draw on agency-wide programs, resources, and accounts to combat mortgage fraud and predatory lending practices and provide increased enforcement of mortgage and home purchase settlement requirements. Specific funding increases linked to this Initiative include: (1) $20 million under the new Transformation Initiative, including information technology for fraud detection, (2) a $13 million increase for the Fair Housing Initiatives Program (FHIP) and Fair Housing Assistance Program (FHAP); and (3) $4 million for additional staff in the Offices of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, the General Counsel, and Housing to address abusive and fraudulent mortgage practices.

Funding for the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance Program is proposed at $17.8 billion. With this budget, the Department reaffirms its commitment to improving the Housing Choice Voucher program and enabling Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) to fund vouchers under lease as of the end of 2008, as well as all 2009 incremental vouchers. Legislative and regulatory reforms will be proposed to further improve the program by eliminating inefficiencies.

The Budget includes $8.1 billion for Project-Based Rental Assistance, of which $400 million is requested as an advance appropriation to become available in fiscal year 2011. This request is sufficient to renew all contracts for a full 12 months and preserve approximately 1.3 million affordable rental units.

The Budget requests $4.6 billion to fund 100 percent of PHAs' estimated eligibility for operating subsidies for the first time under the current Operating Fund formula. This request will ensure that PHAs can effectively operate and manage their public housing portfolios. The Capital Fund request, coupled with the program's $4 billion appropriation in the Recovery Act, is sufficient to cover newly accruing needs and significantly reduce the backlog of unmet needs.

The Administration also requests $250 million for a new Choice Neighborhoods Initiative, which aims to transform neighborhoods of extreme poverty into functioning, sustainable mixed-income neighborhoods by linking housing improvements with appropriate services, schools, public assets, transportation, and access to jobs. This Initiative will build on the success and lessons learned from the HOPE VI program. Competitive grants will be provided for the transformation and preservation of public and assisted housing, as well as affordable housing and community development in surrounding neighborhoods. The program will also implement rent and work incentives to help public and assisted housing residents access jobs and move to self-sufficiency. HUD will work with other Federal agencies, including the Departments of Education, Transportation, Health and Human Services, and the Environmental Protection Agency, to leverage additional resources.

The Budget proposes $100 million to create an Energy Innovation Fund that will stimulate and enhance private investment in cost-saving energy efficiency retrofits. The primary focus will be on existing housing, through improved use of Federal Housing Administration (FHA) single family and multifamily mortgage products, as well as providing support for promising local initiatives that can then be replicated across the Nation. Innovative strategies to improve the usefulness of existing HUD programs will lead to significant reductions of energy consumption, operating costs, and carbon footprints of affordable and market-rate housing supported through HUD's programs.

Another major initiative that will both reform and transform the Department as it modernizes is the creation of the Transformation Initiative Fund. Up to one percent of program funding will be transferred to this fund for four complementary purposes: (1) research, evaluation, and program metrics; (2) program demonstrations; (3) information technology, and (4) technical assistance and capacity building. Integrating cross-cutting knowledge and data will produce results while avoiding fraud, waste, and abuse.

The Budget also supports other core programs within HUD. The Budget provides $1.8 billion for the HOME Investment Partnerships Program. These funds are estimated to result in the production of almost 78,000 additional units of affordable housing through new construction, rehabilitation, and/or acquisition, as well as tenant-based rental assistance for more than 17,000 units.

The Budget provides approximately $1.8 billion for the Homeless Assistance Grant programs. The continued request for increased funding reflects the documented success in decreasing homelessness through these programs. Furthermore, this requested increase signals the Administration's intent to provide dedicated funding for new supportive housing. The Budget assumes enactment of streamlining legislation that will further improve the impact of the program.

The 2010 Budget continues to support reduction of housing over-crowding in Indian country with $645 million proposed for Native American Housing Block Grants. The Budget also continues support for Indian community and economic development.

Funding in the 2010 Budget for FHIP and FHAP will continue to strengthen the ability of public and private fair housing groups, and partnerships between them, to enforce the laws protecting all Americans against illegal housing discrimination.

The 2010 Budget includes $140 million for healthy homes grants and lead hazard reduction grants. The Healthy Homes program will continue to develop and promote integrated approaches to identify and address multiple residential health and safety hazards in a comprehensive, evidence-based, and cost-effective manner. Additionally, the Department will continue its efforts to eliminate lead hazards for children. The number of children who have elevated blood lead levels has been reduced from 890,000 between 1991 and 1994 to an estimated 215,000 in 2008.

To ensure the effective implementation of its programs, the Budget increases core research funding for the Office of Policy Development and Research to restore and enhance various national housing surveys, provide research and analysis of national housing and economic conditions, and evaluate the performance of programs.

In response to a series of national economic, social, environmental and energy challenges that require a firm and expansive housing role, there is a need for a strong and vital housing agency. This Budget begins to transform HUD into a stronger and more vital housing agency, including (i) preserving and improving FHA as a key component to addressing the nation's housing and economic crisis; (ii) restoring federal leadership in promoting affordable rental housing; (iii) investing strategically in metropolitan and rural communities; (iv) driving energy efficient housing and inclusive, sustainable growth; and (v) transforming the way that HUD does business.

Following Hurricane Katrina, approximately 36,799 displaced families were assisted through this account. HUD received $79 million in 2005 from a FEMA mission assignment to provide housing assistance to these families who were previously HUD-assisted or who were homeless. An additional supplemental appropriation of $390 million pursuant to P.L. 109-148 continues to provide assistance to these families. Over the past three and a half years, most of these families have transitioned to other HUD-funded permanent supportive housing programs. As of February 2009, only 1,145 families remained in this program. HUD expects these families to transition to the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance (Housing Choice Voucher) program.

The Tenant-Based Rental Assistance Program (also known as the Housing Choice Voucher program) provides housing assistance to approximately 2 million extremely low- to low-income families to rent in the neighborhoods of their choice. This is the Federal government's largest and most income-targeted program for assisting low-income families to rent decent, safe and sanitary housing in the private market. The program includes a set-aside for tenant-protection vouchers, which are provided when certain actions occur, such as public housing demolition or disposition, or when landlords opt out of Project-Based Section 8 contracts. About 2,400 state and local Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) administer the Voucher program.

With this Budget, the Department reaffirms its commitment to improving the Housing Choice Voucher program by enabling PHAs to maximize the number of families assisted. The level of funding requested in this Budget will allow PHAs to fund vouchers under lease as of the end of 2008, as well as new vouchers awarded in 2009. By the end of 2010, the Department expects to help over 2.1 million families through this program. This is over 100,000 more families than were assisted at the end of 2008, and represents the largest number of families ever assisted by this program.

In addition, the Administration proposes to: (1) Propose legislation that would reform the program to be less administratively burdensome, and provide the appropriate incentives and accountability measures to maximize assistance; (2) Revise the main regulations (24 CFR 982) that govern the Voucher program, including improving the Housing Quality Standards and develop a new methodology for evaluating the PHA inspection process; (3) Implement an improved Section 8 Management Assessment Program (24 CFR 985) that will ensure strengthened oversight, quality control, and performance metrics for the Voucher program; (4) Design a comprehensive development strategy to improve HUD IT systems to better manage and administer the Voucher program; (5) Continue the study to develop a formula to allocate administrative fees based on the cost of an efficiently managed PHA operating the Voucher program; and (6) Eliminate the unit cap restriction imposed by past Appropriations Acts on the number of families that each PHA may serve.

The Housing Certificate Fund, until 2005, provided funding to both the project-based and tenant-based components of the Section 8 program. Project-based Rental Assistance and Tenant-based Rental Assistance are now separately funded accounts. The Housing Certificate Fund retains and recovers balances from previous years' appropriations.

The Budget requests $8.1 billion for project-based rental assistance, of which $400 million is requested as an advance appropriation to become available in 2011. These funds are sufficient to renew all contracts for a full 12 months.

The Project-Based Rental Assistance program assists approximately 1.3 million low- and very low-income households in obtaining decent, safe, and sanitary housing in private accommodations. Project-based rental assistance serves families, elderly households and disabled households and provides transitional housing for the homeless. Through this funding, HUD supports approximately 18,000 contracts with private owners of multifamily rental housing to provide housing for low- and very low-income families. This funding pays the difference between what a household can afford, generally 30 percent of its eligible income, and the approved market-based rent for a housing unit. Program activities include the following:

Contract Renewals and Amendments. — This set-aside provides funding for HUD to renew expiring lease contracts. Currently, around 80 percent of the contracts are renewed annually; the other 20 percent are long-term contracts funded with previous appropriations. These funds go directly to the housing costs of low- and very low-income families in the program. Also, funding amendments to a Section 8 contract are required to maintain the project until its contract expiration date if actual costs incurred exceed the amount of budget authority originally obligated for the project. These additional costs are funded in part by utilizing recoveries of excess balances remaining on expired Section 8 contracts that utilized less than anticipated resources to complete the contract. The Budget requests up to $7.9 billion for contract renewals and amendments.

Contract Administrators. — This set-aside funds the local level administration of this program through HUD contracts with performance-based contract administrators. These entities, which are typically public housing authorities or state housing finance agencies, are responsible for conducting on-site management reviews of assisted properties; adjusting contract rents; reviewing, processing, and paying monthly vouchers submitted by owners; renewing contracts with property owners; and responding to health and safety issues at properties. For 2010, up to $258 million is requested for this set-aside.

Tenant Resources, Information and Outreach Activities. — The Department may transfer up to $10 million for tenant resources, information and outreach grants. These grants will provide financial assistance to tenant groups, nonprofit organizations, and public entities for building the capacity of tenant organizations and furthering the purposes of the Mark-to-Market program, including preservation of low-income housing and tenant services. The authority to transfer these funds is provided under Section 514(f) of the Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act (MAHRA) of 1997 (42 U.S.C. 1437f note).

The Public Housing Capital Fund, a formula-driven program based on estimated need, is designed to respond to the capital and management improvement requirements of public housing. The program protects and enhances a valuable affordable housing resource, which serves approximately 1.1 million families with limited income. Of those families, 31 percent are elderly and 27 percent are disabled.

Of the $2.24 billion requested for this program, approximately $2.19 billion will cover annual accrual needs. Other uses include up to $15 million for public housing financial and physical assessment support, up to $20 million for emergencies and disasters, and up to $9 million for administrative and judicial receiverships.

Since the last capital needs study in 1998, the backlog of capital needs for public housing is estimated to have been reduced through the demolition of more than 160,000 of the most distressed public housing units as well as the modernization and redevelopment of several hundred thousand units. A mandatory conversion rule has been implemented that will greatly accelerate the demolition of units beyond repair. In 2008, 84.5 percent of housing units met HUD's physical standards, compared to 82 percent in 2001.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5) provided $4 billion for the Public Housing Capital Fund. HUD has already awarded nearly $3 billion by formula that will help reduce the backlog of capital needs and will award the remaining $1 billion by competition this year for energy efficient, green communities and other priority investments.

The Budget request of $4.6 billion will for the first time fund 100 percent of Public Housing Authorities' (PHAs) estimated eligibility for operating subsidies under the current Operating Fund formula.

Operating subsidies are provided to PHAs to assist in funding the operation and maintenance expenses of public housing units in accordance with Section 9(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. The following tables display the sources of PHAs' revenue and expenditures by category and are based on 2007 and 2008 data reported by PHAs to HUD.

Sources of PHAs' Operating Revenue

(in millions of dollars)
Category	Annual income	Percent of total
Operating Subsidies	$3,461	54%
Dwelling Rental	2,436	38%
Investment	192	3%
Other Income	321	5%
Total, Operating Revenue	6,410	100%

Operating Subsidies.—Represent HUD's contributions to a PHA's operating budget. Under the current formula-based approach, HUD sets a formula-determined allowable expense level (AEL) for each PHA and separately computes utility and audit costs. The PHA's dwelling rental income is also projected and the subsidy is the difference between the projected AEL, utility, and audit expenses and projected dwelling rental income. AEL is not based on actual cost data from PHAs. HUD, after consultation with PHAs, adopted a new operating subsidy formula in 2007 based on the congressionally sanctioned cost study conducted by the Harvard Graduate School of Design.

Dwelling Rental.—Income derived from tenants' rents.

Investment Income.—Income from interest earned on general fund investments.

Other Income.—Includes income from other sources such as renting rooftop space for signs or broadcasting, and from operating services for tenants, such as laundromats or day care centers.

Operating Revenue.—Excludes $455 million of transfers into the program, as well as "Mortgage Interest Income," "Proceeds from Disposition of Assets Held for Sale," "Cost of Sale of Assets," "Other Government Grant Revenue," and "Gain or Loss on Sale of Fixed Assets," totaling approximately $62.3 million.

PHAs' Operating Expenditures

(in millions of dollars)
Category	Annual expenditures	Percent of total
Utilities	$1,509	24%
Administration	1,752	28%
General Operating Expenses	521	8%
Maintenance	2,130	34%
Tenant Services	210	3%
Protective Services	160	3%
Total, Operating Expenses	6,282	100%

Utilities.—Includes water, sewer, electricity, gas, and fuel.

Administration.—Includes administrative salaries, legal expenses, staff training, travel, accounting fees, auditing fees, sundry, and outside management costs.

General Operating Expenses.—Includes insurance, payments made to local governments in lieu of taxes, terminal leave payments, employees benefit contributions, collection losses, interest on administrative and sundry notes, and other general expenses.

Ordinary Maintenance and Operations.—Consists of expenses for labor, materials, contracts and garbage fees associated with the day-to-day operation of the public housing authority.

Tenant Services.—Covers salaries, recreation, publication, contract costs, training, and other expenses.

Protective Services.—Includes expenses for labor, materials, and contract costs.

The Choice Neighborhoods Initiative will provide $250 million in competitive grants to transform neighborhoods of extreme poverty into functioning, sustainable mixed-income neighborhoods with appropriate services, schools, public assets, transportation and access to jobs. The goal of the program is to demonstrate that concentrated and coordinated neighborhood investments from multiple sources can transform a distressed neighborhood and improve the quality of life of current and future residents.

Choice Neighborhoods grants will primarily fund the preservation, rehabilitation and transformation of public and HUD-assisted housing. The program builds on the successes of public housing transformation under HOPE VI with a broader approach to concentrated poverty. Grantees will include not only public housing authorities but also local governments, nonprofits and for-profit developers. Grant funds can be used for resident and community services, community development and affordable housing activities in surrounding communities, and multifamily or single family property disposition, including the conversion of these properties to affordable housing. The program will also implement rent and work incentives to help public and HUD-assisted housing residents access jobs and move to self-sufficiency.

Grantees will undertake comprehensive local planning with input from residents and the community. A strong emphasis will be placed on local community planning for school and educational improvements, including early childhood initiatives. Up to ten percent of the appropriation will be used for planning grants to assist local partnerships to develop strong proposals for future fiscal year grant competitions.

The Department will place a strong emphasis on coordination with other federal agencies, notably the Departments of Education, Labor, Transportation, Health and Human Services and the Environmental Protection Agency, to leverage additional resources. Where possible, the program will be coordinated with the Department of Education's Promise Neighborhoods proposal. The Administration will propose authorizing legislation to implement this initiative.

The HOPE VI program, in coordination with funding from the Public Housing Capital Fund, has accomplished its goal of contributing to the demolition of 100,000 severely distressed public housing units. The Budget proposes no additional funds. Instead, the Department proposes to build on the success of the HOPE VI program with its Choice Neighborhoods Initiative, which is intended to make a broad range of transformative investments in high-poverty neighborhoods where public and assisted housing is concentrated.

The remaining balance in this program of over $900 million at the end of 2008 will spend out over several years as the redevelopment projects are completed. Cumulative results of the HOPE VI program as of December 31, 2008 are as follows: 72,346 households relocated; 91,910 units demolished; 75,363 units (new and rehabilitated) completed; and 72,874 completed units occupied.

NATIVE AMERICAN HOUSING BLOCK GRANT—Continued

Title I of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act (NAHASDA) of 1996 (P.L. 104-330) authorized the Native American Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds on a formula basis to Indian tribes and their tribally designated housing entities to help them address housing needs within their communities. HUD has determined, using 2000 Census data, that 273,658 American Indian/Alaska Native households, out of 965,684 have "severe housing needs." This is defined as a lack of basic plumbing or kitchen facilities, having more than 1.01 persons per room, or having a cost burden of over 50 percent of income. According to the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, in 2002, 90,000 Indian families were homeless or underhoused. On tribal lands, 28 percent of Indian households were found to be overcrowded or to lack adequate plumbing and kitchen facilities, compared to 5.4 percent of national households. The Budget supports a program goal to reduce over-crowding on Native lands by 10 percent.

The Native American Housing Block Grant program includes a guaranteed loan provision (Title VI). A guarantee level of $18 million is proposed for this loan guarantee program for 2010. A primary goal of the Title VI program is to encourage private lenders to provide financing in Indian country. Therefore, the program provides for the federal guarantee of notes or other obligations issued by Indian tribes or tribally designated housing entities for the purpose of financing affordable housing activities described in section 202 of the Act.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1998 and beyond (including modifications of guarantees that resulted from obligations in any given year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

NATIVE HAWAIIAN HOUSING BLOCK GRANT

For the Native Hawaiian Housing Block Grant program, as authorized under title VIII of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (25 U.S.C. 4111 et seq.), $10,000,000, to remain available until expended; Provided, That of this amount, $299,211 shall be for training and technical assistance activities, including up to $100,000 for related travel by Hawaii-based HUD employees. (Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriations Act, 2009.)

The Hawaiian Homelands Homeownership Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-568) amended the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 by adding Title VIII, which authorized the Native Hawaiian Housing Block Grant program. This program provides an allocation of funds to assist and promote affordable housing activities to develop, maintain and operate affordable housing for eligible low-income Native Hawaiian families.

It authorizes annual grants to the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands (DHHL) for housing and housing-related assistance, pursuant to an annual housing plan, within the area in which DHHL is authorized to provide that assistance. DHHL uses performance measures and benchmarks that are based on the needs and priorities established in its five- and one-year housing plans. The Budget requests $10 million for this program, the same level enacted in 2009.

The Low-Rent Public Housing Loan Fund provides direct Federal loans to fund remaining Public Housing Agency and Indian Housing Authority construction, acquisition, and modernization activities reserved under the Annual Contributions appropriation through 1986. These loans are made by borrowing from the Treasury. Under legislation enacted during 1986 (Public Law 99-272), amounts borrowed from the Treasury are forgiven at the end of each fiscal year and the loans to PHAs/IHAs are forgiven as construction, acquisition, and modernization activities are completed. Under the provisions of this legislation, $1 million borrowed from the Treasury was forgiven in 2008, $1 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 2009, and an estimated $1 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 2010.

Since 1987, new reservations of capital funds for construction, acquisition, and modernization activities have been provided directly from the Public Housing Capital Fund appropriations.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of guarantees that resulted from obligations in any year). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis. The administrative expenses are shown on a cash basis.

This program provides access to sources of private financing for Indian families, Indian tribes, and their tribally designated housing entities who otherwise could not acquire housing financing because of the unique legal status of Indian trust land. The Budget proposes funding to support additional loan guarantee activity and to provide managerial and systems support. The latter is important given the significant growth in loan activity under this program. Loan commitments increased 148 percent from 2005 to 2008, supporting homeownership efforts on Indian lands. This increase in volume has provided sufficient data to support a comprehensive, program-specific credit subsidy analysis and this is included in the Budget for 2010 estimates. The analysis concludes that default rates are significantly lower than estimated in prior Budgets. As a result, this Budget funds a significant increase in loan volume—necessary to meet projected program demand—without an increase in appropriations.

The Housing Opportunities for Persons With AIDS (HOPWA) program provides States and localities with resources and incentives to devise long-term comprehensive strategies for meeting the housing needs of persons with HIV/AIDS and their families. HOPWA funds provide stable housing arrangements, help reduce risks of homelessness and improve access to care for program participants. HOPWA funding is used in an efficient manner, resulting in the program's achievement of performance goals at a very modest cost per person assisted. The $310 million requested for 2010 will support permanent housing outcome goals consistent with the Department's Annual Performance Plan that 90 percent of households will achieve housing stability in permanent housing by 2012.

States and metropolitan areas receive 90 percent of funds by formula based on the number of cases of AIDS. The final 10 percent is awarded competitively to States, local governments, and private nonprofit entities, including faith-based organizations, for projects of national significance. Awards are also made to States and local governments for projects in jurisdictions that do not qualify for a formula allocation. HUD provides priority renewal of expiring competitive projects that provide permanent supportive housing.

The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program provides flexible annual formula grants to State and local governments to benefit mainly low- to moderate-income persons. The funding is used for a wide-range of community and economic development activities, such as public infrastructure improvements, housing rehabilitation and construction, job creation and retention, and public services. Seventy percent of the CDBG formula grants are distributed to mainly urban areas (entitlement communities), and thirty percent to the States (non-entitlement communities).

President Obama is committed to fully fund the CDBG program and has requested $4.45 billion for 2010. In addition, the Budget proposes CDBG legislative reforms and new initiatives with this account. CDBG reform proposes a modernized formula to better target funds to communities with the greatest economic need. The current formula has not been updated in over 30 years, and as a result, many communities that have greater community development needs are not receiving adequate CDBG funding relative to places with less economic distress. Because of the adjustments in funding allocation, the reform legislation will also include a hold harmless provision to transition communities over time to the improved formula. CDBG disaster recovery reforms will also be included in the legislative proposal. The program will be further strengthened by greater accountability and better performance metrics. Proposed legislation to authorize these reforms will be transmitted in mid-2009.

The Budget requests three new initiatives. As a set-aside within the account, $150 million is provided for a Sustainable Communities Initiative. The objective of this initiative is improved coordination of transportation and housing investments that result in more regional and local sustainable development patterns, reduced greenhouse gas emissions, and more transit-accessible housing choices for residents. These funds will stimulate more integrated regional planning to guide state, metropolitan, and local decisions, investments, and reforms in land use, transportation and housing. The Sustainable Communities Initiative would have three components. First, the Initiative proposes to offer $100 million in Regional Planning Grants, which will be a collaborative effort between HUD and the Department of Transportation (DOT). Eligible applicants would include metropolitan planning organizations and consortia of HUD formula block grant recipients, with an emphasis on recipients' capacity for long-term cross-jurisdictional partnerships, public and private engagement, and ability to integrate resources.

The second component is the Metropolitan Challenge Grants, which is a local complement to the broader regional plans. The Budget provides $40 million for this investment to facilitate changes in local zoning and land use policy and practice. The objective is to provide incentives to encourage sustainable growth and reverse counter productive growth patterns that have evolved in many areas, and then to subsequently replicate these models.

Finally, the third component would provide $10 million for a joint HUD-DOT research effort designed to advance transportation and housing linkages. The research agenda include tracking of housing and transportation expenditures by location; creating broader measures of affordability and metropolitan accessibility; evaluating location efficient mortgages and energy efficient mortgages; identifying best practices in transit-oriented development and those that responds to affordable housing needs; establishing standardized performance measures such as vehicle-miles traveled or location efficiency. It is expected that about $2 million of this set-aside will be used to evaluate this new initiative.

The second Initiative is the Rural Innovation Fund, which is funded at $25 million. These funds are provided to states through a competitive process to promote innovative and cost effective approaches to improving housing conditions in rural communities.

The third Initiative is the University Community Fund, which is also funded at $25 million. These funds serve to promote revitalization in communities surrounding the universities, with a renewed emphasis on energy conservation, homeownership training/counseling, and other community and economic development activities.

The Indian Community Development program will continue to be funded in this account at $65 million. This program provides eligible grantees with direct grants for use in developing viable Indian and Alaska Native Communities, including decent housing, a suitable living environment, and economic opportunities, primarily for low- and moderate-income persons.

This account also reflects 2009 Recovery Act funding — $1 billion in CDBG and $2 billion for Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP) II competitive grants. The NSP grants are for emergency assistance for the redevelopment of abandoned and foreclosed homes and are in addition to $3.92 billion NSP funding, which was mandatory appropriation funding and is reflected in a separate account.

No new appropriation is requested for the Empowerment Zone (EZ) and Renewal Community (RC) programs in the 2010 Budget. The EZs' and RCs' tax incentives were scheduled to expire on December 31, 2010. As one of many temporary tax provisions that are extended, the Administration proposes to extend the EZs and RCs through December 31, 2010.

The Administration supports extending the Federal Community Renewal tax incentives so that the EZs' and RCs' ongoing efforts to encourage and support business investment, economic revitalization, and expansion of job opportunities for residents in the designated high poverty, high unemployment census tracts may continue. The initiative complements the President's goals of strengthening communities and focusing Federal resources on areas of greatest need, primarily through the expansion of business opportunities.

An amendment to the Internal Revenue Code enacted in 2001 approved major tax incentives to revitalize areas of pervasive poverty, unemployment, and general distress, and HUD designated 40 urban and rural RCs and a third round of 8 urban EZs under the 2001 law. This law also allows the earlier 22 urban EZs to receive the same package of tax incentives, all of which expire December 31, 2009.

The 2010 Budget requests no funding for the Brownfields Economic Development Initiative (BEDI) program. BEDI is a competitive grant program designed to assist cities with the redevelopment of brownfield sites for the purposes of economic development and job creation. Brownfields are abandoned, idled, and underused industrial and commercial facilities and land where expansion and redevelopment is burdened by real or potential environmental contamination. The program is relatively small in size and local governments have access to other public and private funds, including the larger Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), which can serve similar purposes.

The HOME Investment Partnerships Program is authorized by the National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101-625), as amended. This program provides flexible annual formula grant assistance to States and units of local government to increase the supply of affordable housing and expand homeownership for low- to very-low income persons. Sixty percent of the formula grant funds is awarded to participating local governments and 40 percent is awarded to states. These communities often use the funds in partnership with local non-profit organizations to fund a wide range of activities that build, buy, and/or rehabilitate affordable housing for rent or homeownership or provide direct rental assistance to low-income people. Projects funded by HOME often leverage private dollars and are used in conjunction with the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit, Community Development Block Grant, and local funds.

Over time, the funding provided in the 2010 Budget is estimated to result in the production of almost 78,000 units of affordable housing through new construction, rehabilitation, and/or acquisition. It is also estimated that communities will use a portion of their funding to support tenant-based rental assistance for over 17,000 units.

The Housing Trust Fund was originally authorized in the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Pub. L. 110-289) under section 1338 of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 (12 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.) with a dedicated funding stream from assessments on Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. However, the Federal Housing Finance Agency has indefinitely suspended these assessments. The Budget proposes to restore funding for the Housing Trust Fund through legislation directing $1 billion to finance the fund. The purpose of the Housing Trust Fund is to provide grants to States for use to increase and preserve the supply of rental housing for extremely low-income and very low-income families, including homeless families; and to increase homeownership for extremely low- and very low-income families. The funding will be distributed by formula to States or State-designated entities that will target resources to areas with substantial needs. The Housing Trust Fund will help address the growing shortage of affordable housing, which is one of the most serious social and economic problems facing the country. The funding will be used for production, preservation, and rehabilitation of rental housing and operating costs, and for production, preservation, and rehabilitation of housing for homeownership (limited to ten percent of the funding). Over time, the funding provided for the Housing Trust Fund in 2010 is expected to produce approximately 29,000 rental units and 7,000 homebuyer units.

The Budget requests $77 million for this account, which comprises the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program (SHOP) and the Capacity Building for Community Development and Affordable Housing Program (formerly called Section 4).

For the 2010 Budget, $27 million is provided to SHOP to assist low-income homebuyers willing to contribute "sweat equity" toward the construction of their houses. Assistance is provided through competitive grants to eligible national and regional non-profits and consortia for land acquisition for home sites and improvement of utilities and other site infrastructure. Those funds will increase the ability of non-profit organizations to leverage funds from other sources and will produce at least 2,000 new homeownership units for very low to low-income people. The program has shown that it can leverage at least seven dollars from other sources for each Federal dollar spent.

The Capacity Building for Community Development and Affordable Housing program is authorized by Section 4 of the HUD Demonstration Act of 1993, which established HUD's participation in the privately organized and initiated National Community Development Initiative. The 2010 Budget request for the program is $50 million, which generates a required match of three dollars from private sources, for a total of $200 million for program activities. The Capacity Building program provides competitive grants to national intermediaries to develop, enhance, and strengthen the technical and administrative capabilities of community development corporations to carry out community development and affordable housing activities for low- and moderate-income persons.

The Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP) was authorized by the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (HERA) and funded at $3.92 billion. In response to the foreclosure crisis, HERA directed HUD to develop a formula to distribute the funds to states and local governments with the greatest need. To determine the areas with the greatest need, the allocation formula had to be based on home foreclosures, subprime loans, and mortgage defaults or delinquencies. Grantees may use NSP funds for a number of eligible activities, including establish financing mechanisms; purchase and rehabilitate abandoned or foreclosed properties; establish land banks; demolish blighted structures; and redevelop vacant or demolished property. NSP grantees must use at least 25 percent of the funds appropriated for the purchase and redevelopment of abandoned or foreclosed residential properties that will be used to house individuals or families whose incomes do not exceed 50 percent of the area median income. In addition, all activities funded by NSP must benefit low- and moderate-income persons whose income does not exceed 120 percent of area median income.

HUD made direct NSP allocations to 309 jurisdictions, including all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Insular Areas. HERA was enacted on July 30, 2008 and HUD announced approval of all NSP plans by mid-March 2009. Pursuant to HERA, grantees will have 18 months from the date funds are made available to obligate the funds, meaning that all obligations and substantial disbursements are expected by the end of 2010.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA) made several changes to the NSP program as enacted by HERA and appropriated an additional $2 billion in funding for the NSP program under Community Development Block Grants (CDBG). The ARRA funding for NSP will be reflected under CDBG and will be distributed by competition pursuant to ARRA and will be open to states, local governments, non-profit organizations, and consortia of non-profits.

The Homeless Assistance Grants account provides funds for the Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, Emergency Shelter Grants, and Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Single Room Occupancy programs. These programs, which award funds through the Continuum of Care process, enable localities to shape and implement comprehensive, flexible, coordinated approaches to address the multiple issues of homelessness. Many communities have made great strides in creating comprehensive approaches to ending chronic homelessness through the development of State Interagency Councils and local plans.

The Budget requests $1.794 billion for a wide range of activities to assist homeless persons and prevent future homelessness. HUD estimates it will use $1.5 billion for competitive renewals, $140 million for new competitive projects, and $150 million for the Emergency Shelter Grants Program. The Budget places a major emphasis on permanent housing for homeless individuals and families by requiring 30 percent of competitive funds to be used for this purpose. In 2008, 62.5 percent of competitive funds awarded were used for housing purposes and it is estimated that the Budget will support approximately 183,000 emergency, transitional and permanent beds for homeless families and individuals.

The Administration will again support legislation to combine HUD's three competitive grant programs—Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, and Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Single Room Occupancy—into a single program with flexibility to better meet community needs. The Department continues to pursue expanded interagency efforts to meet the needs of the homeless.

Funding for program evaluation and technical assistance is requested under the transformation initiative.

The Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2008 (P.L. 110-252) created this new account and provided $73 million for permanent supportive housing assistance as referenced in the Road Home Program of the Louisiana Recovery Authority (LRA). Of the total amount appropriated, $50 million is for permanent supportive housing, which serves approximately 1,000 homeless individuals and families living with disabilities. These grants are administered under the Shelter Plus Care program, as authorized under subtitle F of title IV of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11403 et seq.). The LRA would be eligible to apply for Homeless Assistance Grants to renew this assistance. Additionally, this account provides $23 million in project-based rental assistance vouchers to LRA to support an estimated 2,000 elderly and disabled disaster victims, as authorized, under section 8(o)(13) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(o)(13)). Beginning in 2010, these vouchers will be funded within the Tenant-Based Rental Assistance account.

The 2010 Budget does not provide any funding for the Rural Housing and Economic Development (RHED) program. The RHED program was created to encourage innovative approaches to serve the housing and economic development needs of the nation's rural communities. Alternatively, the Budget is proposing a new, Rural Innovations Fund to be funded within the Community Development Block Grant account. This initiative will identify and test meaningful practices and strategies that will inform communities on best practices, in order to replicate these effective housing efforts in communities across the nation.

The Revolving Fund (liquidating programs) was established by the Independent Offices Appropriations Act of 1955 for the efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs, all of which are no longer active. The operational expenses are financed from a permanent, indefinite appropriation to administer the remaining repayments of loans and recaptures in the portfolio. Annually, any amounts in the account are returned as a dividend to the Treasury.

The Section 312 loan program portfolio, which provided first and junior lien financing at below market interest rates for the rehabilitation of homes in low-income neighborhoods, constituted a large portion of the account activities. This program ceased to originate new loans over ten years ago. Since the sale of the Section 312 loan portfolio to the private sector in 2001, activity in this account has been minimal.

The 2010 Budget requests no appropriations for the Community Development Loan Guarantee program (Section 108). Carry over Section 108 Loan Guarantee credit subsidy in this account will continue to be used until exhausted. The program will continue to be administered, but restructured based on a legislative proposal that would require zero credit subsidy cost. Program activities include economic development projects, housing rehabilitation, public facilities rehab, construction or installation for the benefit of low- to moderate-income persons, or to aid in the prevention of slums.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed since 1992 (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses for this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The 2010 Budget includes a legislative proposal that would eliminate the prohibition to collect fees for the Section 108 Loan Guarantees Program. A fee schedule would be published annually and the upfront amounts would be collected when HUD guarantees the debt obligation issued by the Section 108 borrower (i.e., the public entity).

The Section 108 Loan Guarantees Program is a source of financing for economic development, housing rehabilitation, public facilities rehab, construction or installation for the benefit of low- to moderate-income persons, or to aid in the prevention of slums. It allows local jurisdictions to transform a small portion of their CDBG funds into federally guaranteed loans large enough to pursue physical and economic revitalization projects that are often needed to inspire private economic activity in distressed areas.

Guaranteed loans. The 2010 Budget does not request funding for the Section 108 Loan Guarantees program. The Administration requests legislation to allow HUD to collect fees to offset credit subsidy costs. The financing account shows the status of privately financed guaranteed loan commitments made in and after 1992. An accompanying liquidating account shows activity for Federal Financing Bank (FFB) direct loan activity obligated prior to July 1, 1986, and any pre-1992 loan guarantee activity.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of loan guarantees that resulted from commitments in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

Guaranteed loans. Guaranteed loan assistance under the Community Development Loan Guarantee (Section 108) program is provided to eligible communities to finance economic development activities, such as housing rehabilitation, development or expansion of public facilities, acquisition of real property, and rehabilitation of publicly-owned real property. Until 1986, the Federal Financing Board (FFB) in the Department of Treasury financed these guaranteed loans. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 required private financing of all loan guarantees committed after July 1, 1986, but the FFB will continue disbursing loans for commitments approved prior to July 1, 1986. The activity shown in the above account reflects privately financed guaranteed loans for which commitments were made prior to 1992.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this liquidating account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from FFB direct loans for which loan guarantees were committed prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis.

This account includes expansion activities under the Section 202 Housing for the Elderly Program, including funding for the construction of new units via capital advance grants to nonprofit owners, provided that the owner reserves the units for very low-income elderly individuals for no less than 40 years. Expansion activities also include project rental assistance (PRAC) provided for an initial period (usually 3 years) to each new project.

The Budget proposes separate account funding for supportive housing for the elderly for PRAC renewals, service coordinators and congregate services, conversion to assisted living, and other operating expenses. This will allow the display of "fixed costs" associated with existing units to be separate from the "variable costs" of building new units.

Rental assistance renewal and operating expenses fund the difference between a HUD-approved, per-unit operating cost and (usually) 30 percent of the tenant's adjusted income.

This account includes expansion activities funded under the section 811 Housing for Persons with Disabilities program including funding for the construction of new units via capital advance grants to nonprofit owners, provided that the owner reserves the units for very low-income persons with disabilities for no less than 40 years. Expansion activities also include project rental assistance (PRAC) provided for an initial period (usually 3 years) to each new project. The Budget proposes a new account for PRAC renewals, amendments, and operating expenses. This will allow the display of "fixed costs" associated with existing units to be separate from the "variable costs" of building new units.

The Budget proposes this new account for funding for supportive housing for persons with disabilities for renewal of project rental assistance contracts (PRAC), vouchers for persons with disabilities, and amendments. Rental assistance renewal and operating expenses fund the difference between a HUD-approved, per-unit operating cost and (usually) 30 percent of the tenant's adjusted income, and annual costs associated with renewing "main stream" vouchers reserved for persons with disabilities, which are administered by the Office of Public and Indian Housing.

The Housing Counseling Assistance Program provides comprehensive housing counseling services to eligible homeowners and tenants through grants to nonprofit intermediaries, state governmental entities, and other agencies with local to national presences. Eligible counseling activities include pre- and post-purchase education, personal financial management, reverse mortgage product education, foreclosure prevention/mitigation, and rental counseling. As such, the Housing Counseling Assistance Program supports the delivery of a wide variety of housing counseling services to homebuyers, homeowners, low- to moderate-income renters, and elderly citizens. The program is an important part of numerous HUD and Presidential priorities, including the Administration's current foreclosure mitigation efforts. For example, Housing Counseling is crucial to the Making Home Affordable program, announced in March 2009, that will potentially help up to 9 million families restructure or refinance their mortgages to avoid foreclosure. The primary objectives of the program are to expand homeownership opportunities, improve access to affordable housing, prevent foreclosure, increase financial literacy, and aid in HUD's commitment to bridging the minority homeownership gap. Additionally, the program supports individuals with FHA-insured loans, which helps maintain the financial soundness of the FHA insurance funds.

The objective of the Energy Innovation Fund is to provide support for promising local initiatives that can be replicated across the nation and to stimulate and enhance private investment in cost-saving energy efficiency retrofits of existing housing, through improved use of FHA single family and multifamily mortgage products.

First, the Local Initiatives Fund will address the broader housing market, both single and multi-family, by leveraging private sector (utility and other third party) financing to stimulate the development of model residential energy efficiency retrofit initiatives in specific markets. The fund will support promising models that are being initiated at the local level, and help expand them to additional markets. These local models can be tailored to local needs, climate conditions and building types, and can leverage utility, private foundation or bank financing in ways that are difficult to do at a national level. Funding will provide a mix of incentive grants, demand side subsidies, and supply side leveraging to support the expansion or start-up of local energy retrofit funds. The Local Initiatives Fund will support local market development initiatives that include: energy efficient or green retrofit investment funds; incentives to catalyze investment by private sector institutions (local utilities, and banks) in selected markets; leveraging other public sources of funds; and streamlined delivery of energy audits and related technical services. The Fund could also support a variety of innovative financing programs that are being tested locally, such as utility bill financing or financing through local property tax bills.

In the single-family housing sector, FHAs Energy Efficient Mortgage (EEM) in its current form has had little traction in the marketplace, with no more than 1,000 such mortgages insured each year. The Energy Innovation Fund will be used to develop an EEM Innovation pilot program which will extend the benefits of the existing FHA EEM and Title I Energy Efficient Property Improvement loan programs to more homeowners. In developing the EEM Innovation HUD will consider several options for financial incentives. HUD also may use a portion of the Energy Innovation Fund to finance the cost of energy audits, to the extent that this expense may be a barrier to some borrowers securing an EEM. HUD will also explore a federal partnership with national home energy rating organizations to streamline energy audit procedures, and with an emerging home performance remodeling industry to ensure quality installation of recommended energy conservation measures.

Finally, HUD will develop a Multifamily Energy Pilot (MEP), which may include financial incentives for borrowers in the following FHA Multifamily programs: Mortgage Insurance for Supplemental Loans for Multifamily Projects, Section 241(a); Mortgage Insurance for Purchase or Refinancing of Existing Multifamily Rental Housing, Section 223(f); and Mortgage Insurance for Rental and Cooperative Housing, Sections 221(d)(3) and 221(d)(4). The MEP program will target property owners and developers seeking energy efficiency improvements in multifamily rehabilitation projects.

The Other Assisted Housing Account contains the programs listed below:

Rent supplement. Rent supplement assistance payments will continue to be made on behalf of qualified low-income tenants in approximately 13,683 units as of March 2009 that have not converted to Section 8.

Section 235. The Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 (Public Law 98-181) authorized a restructured Section 235 (Homeownership Assistance) program that provided homeowners a 10-year interest reduction subsidy on their mortgages.

Section 236. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Section 236 Rental Housing Assistance Program, which subsidizes the monthly mortgage payment that an owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. This interest subsidy reduces rents for lower income tenants.

This account includes funding necessary to amend Rent Supplement and Rental Assistance Payment (RAP) contracts in state-aided multifamily housing projects to address cost increases beyond the maximum annual payment limitation previously established for the affected contracts. As some of these rental assistance contracts are terminated due to prepayments or other reasons, remaining balances are recovered. The account includes language to cancel the amounts recovered from projects where rental assistance has been terminated.

The Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere Program, funded from fiscal year 1992-1995, provided affordable homeownership opportunities for low-income families. Units were converted to homeownership from public and Indian housing properties in HOPE I, from FHA-insured and Government-held multifamily properties in HOPE II, and from Government-owned or -held single family properties in HOPE III. HOPE Grants were used for property acquisition, rehabilitation, mortgage subsidies, security measures, and technical assistance. In addition, grants have been devoted to counseling and training of residents, and other activities intended to help them become economically self-sufficient homeowners. This schedule reflects the expenditure of prior year balances.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public with respect to purchase or leases of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 100 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. The fee receipts are permanently appropriated and have helped finance a portion of the direct administrative expenses incurred in program operations.

RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE FUND—Continued

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund into which rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in Section 236 subsidized projects would be deposited.

The Housing and Community Development Amendment of 1978 authorized the Secretary, subject to approval in appropriation acts, to transfer excess rent collections received after 1978 to the Troubled Projects Operating Subsidy program, renamed the Flexible Subsidy Fund. Prior to that time, collections were used for paying tax and utility increases in Section 236 projects. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1980 amended the 1978 Act by authorizing the transfer of excess rent collections regardless of when collected. The Budget proposes that the resources from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund continue to be transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund, with the exception of amounts required to make refunds of excess income remittances as authorized by Public Law 106-569.

The Flexible Subsidy Fund assisted financially troubled subsidized projects under certain FHA authorities. The subsidies were intended to prevent potential losses to the FHA fund resulting from project insolvency and to preserve these projects as a viable source of housing for low and moderate-income tenants. Priority was given to projects with Federal insurance-in-force and then to those with mortgages that had been assigned to the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Excess rental income in the Rental Housing Assistance Fund not refunded to project owners will continue to be transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund.

The HOPE for Homeowners (H4H) program was created by Congress to help those at risk of default and foreclosure refinance into more affordable, sustainable loans. H4H is an additional mortgage option designed to keep borrowers in their homes. The principal obligation of all mortgages insured under the H4H program may not exceed $300 billion. The H4H Program was established by the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Act), and signed into law on July 30, 2008. Under the H4H Program, eligible homeowners may refinance their current mortgage loans into a new mortgage insured by FHA. The program requires borrowers to share with HUD a portion of the equity created upon the issuance of the new FHA-insured loan as well as a portion of any future appreciation on the subject property.

As stated in the Act, the key objectives of the program are:

- 1) To create an FHA program, participation in which is voluntary on the part of the homeowners and existing loan holders to insure refinanced loans for distressed borrowers to support long-term, sustainable homeownership;
- 2) To allow homeowners to avoid foreclosure by reducing the principle balance outstanding, and interest rate charged, on their mortgages;
- 3) To help stabilize and provide confidence in mortgage markets by bringing transparency to the value of assets based on mortgage assets;
- 4) To devote mortgage assistance under this program to homeowners for their principal residence;
- 5) To enhance the administrative capacity of the FHA to carry out its expanded role under the program;
- 6) To ensure the program remains in effect only for as long as is necessary to provide stability to the housing market; and
- 7) To provide servicers of delinquent mortgages with additional methods and approaches to avoid foreclosure.

The Administration supports modifications to the H4H program to make it more attractive while retaining important safeguards against excessive risk. These amendments include more underwriting flexibility and lower premia and appreciation sharing assessments. As a result of this proposal, H4H will experience a higher level of program volume. These budgetary effects are shown under the schedules for a Legislative proposal for this account and the H4H Financing account.

The program is effective from October 1, 2008 to September 30, 2011.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the administrative expenses for this program, as well as the subsidy costs, if any, associated with the loan guarantees committed. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis. Under the Act, the Department of the Treasury is authorized to issue HOPE Bonds, up to the aggregate insurance amount, to finance the subsidy amounts necessary for loan guarantees, as well as for the net costs to the Federal Government of the program, including administrative costs.

The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) provides mortgage insurance to encourage lenders to make credit available to borrowers for which the conventional market does not adequately serve. These include first-time homebuyers, minorities, lower-income families, and residents of underserved areas (central cities and rural areas).

In 2010, FHA is requesting an aggregate limitation of $400 billion on loan guarantees for the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) fund. For the first time, the MMI Fund requires credit subsidy appropriations to operate.

The decline in house prices has adversely affected the projected credit performance of Home Equity Conversion Mortgages. As a result, the program has a positive subsidy rate. The Budget provides both fixed and variable appropriations of credit subsidy to support continuous operation of the program even if actual loan activity exceeds projections. The Budget projects insurance of $300 billion in single-family forward mortgages and $30 billion in Home Equity Conversion Mortgages with an additional $70 billion in commitment limitation available in case these amounts are exceeded during execution.

The 2009 Budget established a separate risk category for seller-financed downpayment assistance mortgages. Actuarial analysis found that these loans are very costly, with default rates well in excess of other FHA single-family purchase mortgages. These loans were terminated in the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008. As a result, the Budget does not include the risk category in 2010 and beyond. If this program were re-authorized, however, the risk category would be re-instated, as would be the case for any new MMI program that poses credit risks materially different from current programs.

As of 2009, new loans for the Condominium, the Section 203(k) rehabilitation, and Home Equity Conversion programs are in the MMI fund in order to consolidate single-family programs in one fund; previously these loans were made under the General and Special Risk Insurance funds. Those single-family loans made prior to 2009 will remain under the General and Special Risk Insurance funds.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records the subsidy costs, if any, associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and thereafter. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals.

The $50 million in 2010 direct loan limitation in the MMI Fund would permit the Department to use Purchase Money Mortgages (PMMs) to help finance the sale of acquired single family properties. HUD would extend credit for these single-family homes to community nonprofit organizations or local government entities, which would be expected to sell the properties to low- and moderate-income buyers. The use of PMMs provides a tool for State and local nonprofit organizations to use in revitalizing communities, and creates enhanced homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families.

In 2002, a Capital Reserve account was established for the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. Financial reserves, including securities, of the MMI Fund were transferred from the liquidating account to the Capital Reserve account. In 2003, this mandatory account started earning interest on Treasury investments, collecting negative subsidy and downward reestimates from the Financing account, and paying upward reestimates to the Program account. The Liquidating account now only reflects cash-flows related to pre-1992 books of business.

The Federal Housing Administration Fund currently consists of four separate insurance funds.

In order to present more clearly the operations of the various funds, FHA's budget transactions are separated into two major business segments. The basic single-family insurance programs, including the Condominium, Section 203(k) rehabilitation, and Home Equity Conversion Mortgage programs, in the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) fund and the multifamily Cooperative Management Housing Insurance (CMHI) funds form one segment. All other multifamily and other specialized insurance programs in the General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance funds (GI/SRI) form the other segment.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 creates a structure of three accounts for existing credit program. For each of the FHA business segments (MMI/CMHI and GI/SRI) there is a liquidating account, which records the revenues and costs associated with loan insurance committed prior to October 1, 1991, a financing account which records the revenues and costs associated with commitments to insure loans made after September 30, 1991, and, a program account which records the transactions associated with the program subsidy costs, if any, and the costs of administering the program.

This liquidating account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from MMI/CMHI loans insured prior to 1992 and is shown on a cash basis. All new activity in this program in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loans insured in any year) is recorded in the corresponding program (86-0183) and financing (86-4587 and 86-4242) accounts.

In 2002, the MMI Capital Reserve account was established to maintain reserves required by statute that were previously deposited in the liquidating account.

The program activity in the "Program Highlights" table shown below reflects only the activity in the MMI/CMHI liquidating and financing accounts. The GI/SRI program activity can be found with the GI/SRI liquidating account (86-4072) and financing account (86-4077).

Financial condition.—The following tables reflect the revenues, expenses and financial condition of the MMI/CMHI liquidating funds based on Generally Accepted Accounting Principles.

This account includes budget authority for General and Special Risk Insurance Fund insurance programs requiring positive credit subsidies. Unlike previous years, this account no longer receives appropriations for administrative contract costs, which is reflected by the considerable reduction in both total budget authority and obligation activities in 2010. Pursuant to the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008 (Pub. L. 110-289), in 2009 the Department consolidated the bulk of FHA single-family programs under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) fund, shifting several programs—including condominium mortgage insurance and Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) insurance—that had previously been administered through this account into the MMI fund.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for the single family, multifamily, hospital, and Title I insurance programs of FHA's General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance Funds, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed or direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loan guarantees or direct loans that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis.

The General Insurance fund provides insurance for a large number of specialized mortgage insurance programs, including insurance of loans for property improvements, cooperatives, condominiums, nursing homes, rental housing and nonprofit hospitals. The Special Risk Insurance fund provides insurance on behalf of mortgagors who otherwise would not be eligible for mortgage insurance.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed and direct loans obligated prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis. New insurance and direct loan activity in 1992 and thereafter in the GI/SRI programs are recorded in corresponding program (86-0200) and financing (86-4077 and 86-4105) accounts.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated prior to 1992. The Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped Fund, a combined liquidating account was established pursuant to section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended. The loan program is no longer active - no new loan commitments were made after 1991 - although projects developed under it continue to operate. The program provided direct loans to non-profit organizations sponsoring the construction and management of rental housing for the elderly or non-elderly persons with disabilities. Any remaining activity for the loan program includes amendments for projects reaching final endorsement.

After April 1, 1992, all projects for which there were administrative reservations converted to the capital advance assistance program.

The National Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974, as amended by the Manufactured Housing Improvement Act of 2000, authorizes development and enforcement of appropriate standards for the construction, design, and performance of manufactured homes to assure their quality, durability, affordability, and safety. All manufactured homes produced since the standards took effect on June 15, 1976 must comply with Federal construction and safety standards. The States are actively encouraged to participate in the program under compliance plans approved by HUD. New program requirements mandated by the Manufactured Housing Improvement Act of 2000 include procurement of an Administering Organization, formation of a Consensus Committee to recommend revisions to and interpretations of the manufactured housing standards, development and implementation of standards for installation of manufactured housing, and development and implementation of a dispute resolution program.

Fees are charged to the manufacturers for each manufactured home transportable section produced and to any dispute resolution and installation program participant. Approximately $7 million in fees and appropriations of $9 million will be used to fund the costs of authorized activities necessary for the consensus committee, HUD, and its agents to carry out all aspects of the manufactured housing legislation. Fees are deposited in a trust fund administered by the Department, and a portion of the fee receipts are transferred to the salaries and expenses account to defray the direct administrative expenses of the program. The requested appropriation will offset the effect of declining fee revenue caused by a substantial reduction in manufactured housing production rates.

GOVERNMENT NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

The Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) was formed by Congress in 1968. It is a wholly owned government corporation within the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). It was established to support Federal housing initiatives by providing liquidity to the secondary mortgage market and to attract capital from the global capital markets for the nation's mortgage markets. Its primary function is to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on Mortgage-Backed Securities (MBS) that are backed by loans insured or guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), Rural Development in the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and HUD's Office of Public and Indian Housing.

GNMA issuers are assessed commitment, guarantee, and other fees to cover costs incurred by GNMA, and to fund a reserve against possible future payments under the guarantee.

This account requests loan commitment authority. All cash flows to and from the government are recorded in the financing account on a cash basis. The net present value of such estimated flows for the cohort of credit instruments guaranteed are deposited into the GNMA receipt account.

The Administration supports modifications to the Hope for Homeowners program to make it more attractive while retaining important safeguards against excessive risk. These amendments include more underwriting flexibility and lower premia and appreciation sharing assessments. As a result of this proposal, GNMA will experience a higher level of securitization. These budgetary effects are shown under the schedules for a Legislative proposal for this account and the GNMA Financing account.

The Budget requests $50 million for HUD's Research and Technology program. This request includes additional funds to restore and enhance various national housing surveys that are rich sources of data on the nation's housing stock. These surveys include the American Housing Survey, the Survey of New Home Sales and Completions, the Survey of Market Absorption of Multifamily Units, the Survey of New Manufactured Housing Placements, and the new Multifamily Residential Housing Survey. Program staff will also conduct transformative research as part of HUD's Transformation Initiative set-aside, Community Planning and Development and disaster formula calculations, and research and policy work related to the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (P.L. 111-5). The University Partnership Programs will be transformed into the University Community Fund and will be funded from the Community Development Fund account.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the HUD mission. These functions are carried out internally by Policy Development and Research staff and through contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, and educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

The Budget requests $72 million for fair housing activities to support efforts to end housing discrimination. Of the amount requested, $29.5 million is for the Fair Housing Assistance Program (FHAP) and $42.5 million is for the Fair Housing Initiatives Program (FHIP).

This funding includes $12 million for FHIP and $1 million for FHAP to support the Department-wide Combating Abusive and Fraudulent Mortgage Practices Initiative, which recognizes the necessity and priority of funding outreach and enforcement efforts to fight mortgage abuse. The FHIP allocation includes $4.5 million for leading fair housing groups with experience in lending activities, $4.5 million to integrate the approaches undertaken by consumer protection and fair lending organization, $2 million for local outreach efforts, and $1 million for training of housing counselors. In addition, $1 million will be used for training to enhance the capacity of FHAP agencies to address lending discrimination and mortgage abuse.

FHAP, authorized by Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 as amended, provides funding to State and local agencies to assure prompt and effective processing of Title VIII (Civil Rights Act of 1968) complaints. To be eligible for assistance through FHAP, an agency must demonstrate that the fair housing law it administers is substantially equivalent to the Fair Housing Act. It is estimated that there will be a total of 107 FHAP agencies in 2010. The funding requested for FHAP will support fair housing enforcement by funding State and local fair housing organizations to meet the needs of currently underserved populations. It will also address the persistently high rate of discrimination against minorities as identified by HUD's 2000 Housing Discrimination Study.

FHIP, authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987, as amended by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, provides funding to States and local governments, and to public and private non-profit organizations that administer programs to prevent or eliminate discriminatory housing practices. FHIP also provides funding to programs and activities designed to enforce the rights granted by Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, or substantially equivalent State and local fair housing laws. In addition, FHIP supports funding for education and outreach programs designed to inform the public concerning rights and obligations under these laws.

Title X of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-550), known as the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act, authorized the Secretary to establish the Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control Grant Program. The primary purpose of the program is to reduce the exposure of young children to lead-based paint and other environmental hazards in their homes, including protecting them from permanent developmental problems and asthma, and exposure to pesticides and carbon monoxide.

The program is a major part of addressing the number one environmental disease impacting children, lead poisoning. The Budget includes $116 million for HUD's Lead Hazard Control Program competitive grants, $20 million for the Healthy Homes Initiative, and $4 million for Technical Studies. The Budget includes a provision that would allow the transfer of unobligated balances and recaptured funds from undersubscribed competitive programs to other competitive programs experiencing oversubscription. HUD will be requesting authorizing language granting the Secretary authority to carry out investigations, administer oaths, and subpoena documents related to lead hazard investigations.

The Lead Hazard Control Grant Program provides grants of $1 million to $4 million to State and local governments and Indian tribes for control of lead-based paint hazards in low-income rental and owner-occupied housing. The grants are also designed to stimulate the development of a housing maintenance and rehabilitation workforce trained in lead-safe work practices and a certified hazard evaluation and control industry. In awarding grants, HUD promotes the use of new, low-cost approaches to hazard control that can be replicated across the nation. Newly-established programmatic efficiency measures, such as mitigation cost estimates, will help HUD determine best practices and maximize resources.

The Healthy Homes Initiative will enable the Department to assess and control housing-related hazards that contribute to childhood diseases and injuries. The initiative will demonstrate and evaluate methods for controlling two or more housing-related diseases through a single intervention. A public education/outreach effort designed to enable the public to prevent children's exposure to hazards will also be conducted through a competitive grant process.

The Office of Healthy Homes and Lead Hazard Control will continue its Technical Support program, which will include public education; support for State and local agencies, private property owners, HUD programs and field offices and professional organizations; technical studies to improve program policy and implementation; quality control to ensure that the evaluation and control of lead-based paint hazards is done properly in HUD-assisted housing; and development of standards, technical guidance, regulations and improved testing and hazard control methods.

The Administration, Operations and Management (AOM) account was created by the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008, which created nine new administrative expense accounts across the Department. As the largest single administrative account, AOM funds many central Departmental functions, including: the Office of Administration, the Office of the Chief Financial Officer, the Office of the Chief Procurement Officer, the Office of Departmental Operations and Coordination, the Office of the General Counsel, the Office of Field Policy Management, the Office of Sustainability, the Office of Transformation Planning and Management, and several other offices across the Department. The AOM account also serves as the primary funding source for all non-personnel expenses, such as travel, overhead expenses (e.g., rent and utilities), contract services, and other functions. The Office of the Chief Financial Officer will provide funds control oversight and accountability by administering the central non-personnel expense funds.

Beginning with the passage of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008, this account will no longer receive new appropriations. Instead, salary and expense activities are now spread across many accounts, achieving greater transparency and accountability within the Department. Resources remaining in this account reflect prior-year appropriations and otherwise unexpended amounts.

Formerly, this appropriation financed virtually all salaries, benefits, travel, contract expenses, and related administrative costs associated with administering the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Working Capital Fund (WCF), authorized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, finances the information technology business functions of the Department. The WCF provides funding for the operation and maintenance of IT systems in support of FHA Mortgage Insurance, housing assistance, grants programs, disaster relief, and core financial and general operations. The Budget requests a direct appropriation of $200 million for IT business operations, infrastructure, and 290 personnel. An additional $70.8 million in program transfers will augment the direct appropriations to support necessary systems that benefit specific programs. The Department proposes to fund the development and modernization of its IT systems from the Transformation Initiative account.

The 2010 Budget provides $20 million in the Transformation Initiative account for the Presidential Initiative to combat mortgage fraud. This is part of an agency-wide effort that draws upon a number of programs, resources and accounts. Examples of Transformation Initiative activities that may be implemented include: development of anti-fraud IT data tools that would be applied to all phases of the mortgage insurance process to detect misrepresentation at consumer, application, and property levels; technical assistance to support housing counseling organizations with identifying mortgage fraud and addressing fair lending issues and to help implement the SAFE Act and Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act; research and assessment of the implementation of the Neighborhood Stabilization Program to ensure it addresses the needs of minority and low-income communities, and analysis of loans, assessments of service compliance with FHA loss mitigation guidelines.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development faces serious challenges arising from structural constraints, while the scope of housing and urban development problems facing the nation has never been greater. HUD needs flexibility both to become more innovative and to adopt an evidence-based approach to improving program operations. The flexibility of aggregating limited transfers will enable HUD to undertake an integrated and balanced effort to improve program performance.

Within the broader Transformation Initiative, there are four initiatives that provide a systematic and crosscutting approach to transformation.

The Research, Evaluation and Program Metrics Initiative provides a predictable stream of funding for high quality research and evaluation that will inform sound policymaking. Funds will be allocated to the Research and Technology account to enable HUD to engage in continual rigorous program evaluation. The initiative will supplement Research and Technology appropriations that are mainly dedicated to funding housing data, such as the American Housing Survey. This initiative redresses the chronic underfunding for program evaluation and research that is needed to ensure that program funds are spent effectively, as well as to develop appropriate metrics to track program performance between evaluations. The systemic and scientific approach enabled by the Research initiative would highlight those programs that are effective and those that require reform, so that timely modifications can occur.

The Program Demonstrations Initiative will enable HUD to design and execute a series of major research demonstrations that rigorously test new program innovations. Demonstrations can be used to explore fundamental questions about housing market dynamics and their impact on economic, social and environmental objectives. The demonstrations will improve programs and help state and local governments develop more effective strategies for housing and community and economic development, and to improve the delivery and reduce the cost of public services. Transformation Initiative funds for approved demonstrations would then be administered by the Office of Policy Development and Research.

The Technology Initiative will provide funding to develop information technology to support the Transformation Initiative and modernize programs. In recent years, insufficient funding has forced the Department to rely on outdated systems and has prevented the Department from utilizing modern tools to capture, store, analyze and disseminate information. Funds provided through the Technology Initiative will complement the funding for basic, steady-state maintenance and operations funded by the Working Capital Fund. HUD envisions three key areas of technology transformation: 1) the collection, quality control and storage of data to provide timely and high quality data for informed policy making and to reduce inefficiencies spent on manual processes; 2) the use of data for improved analysis, monitoring, management and accountability to transform HUD into a data-driven agency; and 3) the communication, sharing and leveraging of data to improve the dissemination of analytic and social networking tools to internal and external stakeholders. Further, HUD plans to enhance these electronic systems to support business operations, human capital, organizational culture, and management.

Technical Assistance set-asides are not requested in individual HUD program accounts as these amounts have been consolidated within the Transformation Initiative. Traditionally, HUD has delivered program-oriented technical assistance to ensure that HUD grantees are fully aware of the rules governing the disparate programs. While awareness of rules is necessary, effective responses to urban and housing challenges increasingly require coordination and awareness of diverse areas of knowledge: housing finance as well as land use, energy efficiency as well as healthy homes, community development as well as transportation planning, and accessibility as well as job creation. The Technical Assistance and Capacity Building Initiative will enable HUD to develop enhanced and focused support to deliver cross-program technical assistance for states, local governments, and other HUD grantees for more sophisticated program administration and integrated planning across programs and jurisdictions. HUD plans to provide well-packaged information, case studies that serve as models and illustrate choices, and collaboration opportunities. Integrating cross-cutting knowledge with program requirements will produce results while avoiding fraud, waste and abuse.

The following table illustrates the maximum possible transfers into the Transformation Initiative account. It does not represent actual transfers.

(a) APPROVAL OF PREPAYMENT OF DEBT.—Upon request of the project sponsor of a project assisted with a loan under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 (as in effect before the enactment of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act), for which the Secretary's consent to prepayment is required, the Secretary shall approve the prepayment of any indebtedness to the Secretary relating to any remaining principal and interest under the loan as part of a prepayment plan under which—

(1) the project sponsor agrees to operate the project until the maturity date of the original loan under terms at least as advantageous to existing and future tenants as the terms required by the original loan agreement or any project-based rental assistance payments contract under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (or any other project-based rental housing assistance programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s)) or any successor project-based rental assistance program, except as provided by subsection (a)(2)(B); and

(2) the prepayment may involve refinancing of the loan if such refinancing results —

(A) in a lower interest rate on the principal of the loan for the project and in reductions in debt service related to such loan; or

(B) in the case of a project that is assisted with a loan under such section 202 carrying an interest rate of 6 percent or lower, a transaction under which

(i) the project owner shall address the physical needs of the project;

(ii) the prepayment plan for the transaction, including the refinancing, shall meet a cost benefit analysis, as established by the Secretary, that the benefit of the transaction outweighs the cost of the transaction including any increases in rent charged to unassisted tenants;

(iii) the overall cost for providing rental assistance under section 8 for the project (if any) is not increased, except, upon approval by the Secretary to—

(I) mark-up-to-market contracts pursuant to section 524(a)(3) of the Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act (42 U.S.C. 1437f note), as such section is carried out by the Secretary for properties owned by nonprofit organizations; or

(iv) the project owner may charge tenants rent sufficient to meet debt service payments and operating cost requirements, as approved by the Secretary, if project-based rental assistance is not available or is insufficient for the debt service and operating cost of the project after refinancing. Such approval by the Secretary—

(I) shall be the basis for the owner to agree to terminate the project-based rental assistance contract that is insufficient for the debt service and operating cost of the project after refinancing; and

(II) shall be an eligibility event for the project for purposes of section 8(t) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(t));

(v) units to be occupied by tenants assisted under section 8(t) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(t)) shall, upon termination of the occupancy of such tenants, become eligible for project-based assistance under section 8(o)(13) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(o)(13)) without regard to the percentage limitations provided in such section; and

(vi) there shall be a use agreement of 20 years from the date of the maturity date of the original 202 loan for all units, including units to be occupied by tenants assisted under section 8(t) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437f(t)).

Energy and minerals management.—Provides for management of onshore oil and gas, coal, geothermal resources and other leasable minerals; mineral materials activities; and the administration of encumbrances on the mineral estate on Federal and Indian lands. The Budget funds oil and gas management activities through a combination of direct appropriations and offsetting collections generated from assessing a fee for processing applications for permits to drill.

Program costs are expected to be fully offset by claim maintenance and other fees.

Challenge Cost Share (CCS).—This program leverages non-Federal funding, in-kind services, and materials with Federal funding to conduct on-the-ground projects that improve conditions of the public lands. These conservation, restoration, and enhancement projects benefit forestry, range, riparian, fish, wildlife, threatened and endangered species, recreation, and cultural resources.

National Landscape Conservation System (NLCS).—Provides for the management of National Monuments, National Conservation Areas, and other Congressional conservation designations, key units in the NLCS. The program provides for the recurring operational (base) budgets of these NLCS units.

Permanent operating funds accounts include:

Operations and maintenance of quarters.—Funds in this account are used to maintain and repair BLM employee-occupied quarters from which rental charges are collected. Agencies are required to collect quarters rentals from employees who occupy Government-owned housing and quarters. This housing is provided only in isolated areas or where an employee is required to live on-site at a Federally owned facility or reservation.

Forest ecosystems health and recovery.—Funds in this account are derived from revenue generated from the Federal share of receipts from the sale of salvage timber from the Oregon and California grant lands, public domain lands, and Coos Bay Wagon Road lands. This account was established to allow BLM to more efficiently and effectively address forest health issues. Funds can be used for other forest health purposes, including release from competing vegetation and density control treatments.

Timber sale pipeline restoration fund.—This fund provides for the deposit and use of fees collected by BLM for sales of non-salvage timber pursuant to the timber salvage provisions of Public Law 104-19 and Public Law 105-83. Of the total deposited into this account, 75 percent is to be used for preparation of timber sales to fill the timber pipeline on lands administered by BLM, and 25 percent is to be expended on the backlog of recreation projects on BLM lands.

Expenses, road maintenance deposits.—Users of certain roads under BLM's jurisdiction make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys collected are appropriated for necessary road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available only for those lands (43 U.S.C. 1762(c), 43 U.S.C. 1735(b)).

Federal Lands Recreation Enhancement Act, BLM.—The Federal Lands Recreation Enhancement Act (FLREA) was enacted on December 8, 2004 as part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act for 2005. FLREA replaces the Recreation Fee Demonstration Program, and most current BLM sites will transition to the new program. All receipts collected under this authority will be deposited to this account. BLM returns 100 percent of these receipts back to the site where the fees were generated. FLREA authorizes this program through 2014.

Acquisitions in Deschutes, Oregon from land sale receipts.—Pursuant to Public Law 105-221, the Oregon Public Lands Transfer Act, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to use the proceeds from sales in Deschutes County to purchase environmentally sensitive lands.

Operations and acquisitions in Nevada from land sale receipts.—Pursuant to Public Law 105-263, 85 percent of receipts from sales of public domain lands in southern Nevada are used to acquire environmentally sensitive land in the State, implement certain conservation initiatives on Federal land in Clark County, Nevada, make capital improvements to areas administered by the National Forest Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, and BLM in Clark County, Nevada, and develop parks, trails, and natural areas in Clark County, Nevada.

Lincoln County Land Sales Act.—Public Law 106-298 authorizes the Secretary to dispose of certain lands in Lincoln County, Nevada, and distribute the proceeds as follows: five percent to the State of Nevada; 10 percent to the County; and 85 percent to an interest bearing account that is available for expenditure without further appropriation.

White Pine County Land Sales Act.—Public Law 109-432 authorizes the Secretary to dispose of certain lands in White Pine County, Nevada, distribute the proceeds as follows: five percent to the State of Nevada; 10 percent to the County; and 85 percent to an account that is available for expenditure without further appropriation for the management of archaeological resources, wilderness protection, recreation activities, preparation of a management plan, reimbursement for sale costs, and other purposes.

Leases from Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 2.—The 2005 Energy Policy Act established this fund for environmental investigation and restoration on that site. A portion of revenue from new leases on the site is authorized to be deposited to this account.

BLM Permit Processing Improvement Fund.—The 2005 Energy Policy Act established this pilot program. Fifty-percent of the rents from non-geothermal onshore mineral leases are authorized to be deposited in this fund through 2015 and used to increase BLM oil and gas permit processing.

Geothermal Lease Revenue Fund.—The 2005 Energy Policy Act established this fund. Twenty-five percent of geothermal bonuses, rents, and royalties are authorized to be deposited to this account through 2010 and used to expedite geothermal leasing activities.

Federal land disposal.—The Federal Land Transaction Facilitation Act, P.L. 106-248 (114 Stat. 613), provides that the Administration will conduct sales of lands that have been classified as suitable for disposal under current resource management plans. This law provides that receipts from such sales may be used to acquire non-Federal lands with significant resource values that fall within the boundaries of areas now managed by DOI. This authority expires on July 25, 2010.

BLM Permit Processing Improvement Fund.—The 2005 Energy Policy Act established this pilot program to improve oil and gas permit processing. Fifty-percent of the rents from non-geothermal onshore mineral leases are authorized to be deposited into this account through 2015. The Administration will submit legislation to both eliminate this fund and to substitute new cost recovery fees for this activity beginning in 2011 through the implementation of a cost recovery rulemaking. In the meantime, for fiscal year 2010, the Budget assumes BLM's continued reliance on the APD processing fees imposed by appropriations language and credited as offsetting collections to the Management of Lands and Resources account.

Geothermal Lease Revenue Fund.—The 2005 Energy Policy Act established this mandatory fund to expedite geothermal leasing. Twenty-five percent of geothermal bonuses, rents, and royalties are authorized to be deposited to this account through 2010. The Budget proposes to eliminate this fund. Funding for geothermal leasing activities would continue to be provided through BLM's regular discretionary program and, where appropriate, user fees.

Miscellaneous permanent payments include:
Payments for Oregon and California and Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands, receipts.—The Secure Rural Schools and Community

Self-Determination Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-393), as amended by P.L. 110-343, provides annual transition payments to the 18 O&C counties. These payments are derived from revenues from federal activities on O&C lands funds in the previous fiscal year that are not deposited to permanent operating funds, and, to the extent of any shortfall, out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. The Act, as amended, is structured to phase out these payments. In 2009 through 2011, Secure Rural Schools payments are a declining percentage of the payments made in 2006; the payment in 2009 is 90% of the amount paid in 2006, 2010 is 81%, and 2011 is 73%. In 2012, a new payment formula calculates payments using multiple factors including acres of O&C grant land within a county, the average 3 highest 50-percent adjusted share and safety net payments made to each county for the eligibility period, and an income adjustment based on the per capita personal income for each county.

Payments to States (proceeds of sales).—States are paid five percent of the net proceeds from the sale of public land and public land products (31 U.S.C. 1305).

Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands outside grazing districts.—States are paid 50 percent of the grazing receipts from public lands outside of grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315i, 315m).

Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within districts.—States are paid 12.5 percent of grazing receipts from public lands inside grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315b, 315i).

Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts, miscellaneous.—States are paid specifically determined amounts from grazing receipts derived from miscellaneous lands within grazing districts when payment is not feasible on a percentage basis (43 U.S.C. 315).

Payments to counties, National Grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of Bankhead-Jones Act lands administered by BLM, 25 percent is paid to the counties in which such lands are situated, for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

Payments to Nevada from receipts on land sales.—(A) Public Law 96-586 authorizes and directs the Secretary to sell not more than 700 acres of public lands per calendar year in and around Las Vegas, Nevada, the proceeds of which are to be used to acquire environmentally sensitive lands in the Lake Tahoe Basin of California and Nevada. Annual revenues are distributed to the State of Nevada (five percent) and the county in which the land is located (10 percent). (B) Public Law 105-263, as amended by P.L. 107-282, authorizes the disposal through sale of approximately 49,000 acres in Clark County Nevada, the proceeds of which are to be distributed as follows: a) five percent for use in the general education program of the State of Nevada; b) 10 percent for use by the Southern Nevada Water Authority for water treatment and transmission facility infrastructure in Clark County, Nevada; and c) the remaining 85 percent to be used to acquire environmentally sensitive lands in Nevada; make capital improvements to areas administered by NPS, FWS and BLM in Clark County, Nevada; develop a multi-species habitat plan in Clark County, Nevada; develop parks, trails and natural areas and implement other conservation initiatives in Clark County, Nevada; and reimburse BLM for costs incurred arranging sales and exchanges under the Act. (C) Public Law 106-298 authorizes the sale of certain lands in Lincoln County, Nevada. The proceeds of these sales are to be distributed as follows: a) five percent to the State of Nevada for general education purposes; b) 10 percent to Lincoln County for general purposes with emphasis on supporting schools; and c) the remaining 85 percent to be used by the Secretary of the Interior to acquire environmentally sensitive lands in the State of Nevada, for identification and management of unique archaeological resources, for development of a multi-species habitat conservation plan in the county, and for other specified administrative purposes.

Cook Inlet Region Inc. property.—This account received funding appropriated by section 9102 of the fiscal year 1990 Department of Defense Appropriations Act for the acquisition of Federal real properties, improvements on such lands or rights to their use or exploitation, and any personal property related to the land purchased by the Cook Inlet Region, Incorporated as authorized by the provisions of section 12(b) of Public Law 94-204 (43 U.S.C. 1611). Funds are made available to BLM for administration and subsequent payment to accounts accepting Cook Inlet Region, Incorporated offers for Federal properties.

Native Alaskan groups' properties.—Funds were appropriated by Public Law 102-172 for the Calista Corporation, and by Public Law 102-415 for the Haida Corporation and the Gold Creek Susitna Association, Incorporated, for the acquisition by those groups of Federal real properties in fulfillment of claims originally settled in 43 U.S.C. 1617, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act

The Helium Act Amendments of 1960, Public Law 86-777 (50 U.S.C. 167), authorized activities necessary to provide sufficient helium to meet the current and foreseeable future needs of essential government activities.

The Helium Privatization Act of 1996, Public Law 104-273, provides for the eventual privatization of the program and its functions. In 2010, the Helium program will consist of:

- (a) continued storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (b) complete disposal of helium refining facilities and other excess property not needed for storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (c) oversight of the production of helium on Federal lands; and
- (d) administration of in-kind and open market crude helium gas sale program.

The estimates assume that the helium program will continue full implementation of the Helium Privatization Act.

The Minerals Management Service (MMS) manages the Nation's oil, natural gas, and other energy and mineral resources on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) as well as the mineral revenues from the OCS and from onshore Federal and American Indian lands. MMS's goal is to ensure that the Federal Government is realizing fair market value and that companies are in compliance with applicable laws, regulations, and lease terms. Through all of its programs, MMS works to ensure that the public receives maximum benefit from America's OCS resources and mineral revenues.

Outer Continental Shelf Lands.—The Offshore Energy and Minerals Management program regulates OCS activities, including OCS leases, monitoring the safety of offshore facilities, and protecting our coastal and marine environments. As the Nation's designated steward of the mineral resources on the OCS, MMS has worked diligently for over 26 years to build a successful offshore program with a legal and regulatory framework that will provide for safe and environmentally sound OCS mineral resource development. Under a new mandate, MMS is also implementing a renewable energy program that will allow leasing on the OCS for the development of renewable energy resources such as wind, wave, and ocean current energy.

Minerals Revenue Management.—Through the Minerals Revenue Management program, MMS ensures that the Nation's Federal and Indian mineral revenues, whether received through in-kind or in-value royalties, are accurately reported and paid in compliance with laws, regulations, and lease terms. Revenues collected by MMS are one of the largest sources of non-tax revenue to the Federal Government. MMS disburses mineral revenues to states, the Office of the Special Trustee for American Indians, other Federal agencies, and the General Fund of the United States Treasury.

General Administration.—The General Administration program is responsible for providing leadership, securing resources, developing organizational capabilities, coordinating strategic planning efforts, building infrastructure and assuring the appropriate delivery of services for the entire MMS organization.

For Mineral Leasing and Associated Payments (MLAP), the Mineral Leasing Act (MLA), 30 U.S.C. 181 et seq., provides that all States be paid 50 percent of the revenues resulting from the leasing of mineral resources on Federal public domain lands within their borders. In addition, under MLA, 40 percent of revenues are deposited in the Reclamation Fund, which funds western water projects, and the remaining 10 percent is deposited in the General Fund of the United States Treasury. By law, Alaska receives no funds from the Reclamation Fund, but receives a 90-percent share of mineral leasing receipts. In addition, the State of Oklahoma is paid 37.5 percent of the Red River oil and gas royalties in lieu of State and local taxes on Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Tribal lands, to be used for construction and maintenance of public roads and support of public schools (65 Stat. 252). Mineral leasing revenues are derived from royalties, rents, bonuses, and other revenues, including minimum royalties, late payment interest, settlement payments, gas storage fees, estimated royalty payments, and recoupments.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-58) amends section 31 of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Lands Act (43 U.S.C. 1356 et seq.) to require that, for a four-year period, $250,000,000 in OCS revenues be paid annually to coastal States and coastal political subdivisions that have submitted approved coastal impact assistance plans. The formula for distribution is based on the amount of qualified OCS revenues generated off the coastline of each producing State. In addition, 35 percent of each State's allocable share is to be distributed to coastal political subdivisions based on population, coastline, and distance to applicable OCS leases.

The Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act of 2006 opened some additional areas in the Gulf of Mexico for offshore oil and gas leasing, while maintaining moratoria on activities east of the Military Mission Line and within certain distances from the coastline of Florida. The Act provides that 37.5 percent of Outer Continental Shelf revenues from certain leases be distributed to four coastal States (Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas) based on a complex allocation formula and subject to an annual cap in later years. The receipts are available in the year following collection, and the first disbursement is estimated to be in 2009. The funding provided is to be used primarily for coastal protection and restoration activities.

Title IV of the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1998 (P.L. 105-83) established the Environmental Improvement and Restoration Fund account. As required by law, 50 percent of the principal and 50 percent of the interest from the Alaska Escrow account are deposited into the Environmental Improvement and Restoration Fund. The law requires that the corpus of the Fund be invested. Twenty percent of the interest earned by the Fund is permanently appropriated to the Department of Commerce and the unappropriated balance of interest remains in the fund. At this time, no budget authority is requested.

As of May 23, 1908 (16 U.S.C. 499), 25 percent of the revenues collected from onshore mineral leasing and production on national forest lands have been paid to the State in which the national forest resides. A State's payment is based on national forest acreage and when a national forest is situated in several States, an individual State payment is proportionate to its area within that particular national forest.

Flood Control payments to States are shared according to the Flood Control Act of 1936 (33 U.S.C. 701 et seq.) which provides that 75 percent of revenue collected be shared with the State in which it was collected. These funds are to be expended as the State legislature may prescribe for the benefit of the public schools and roads in the county from which the revenue was collected or for defraying any of the expenses of county government. These expenses include public obligations of levee and drainage districts for flood control and drainage improvements.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-58) amended section 20 of the Geothermal Steam Act of 1970 (30 U.S.C. 1019 et seq.). The amendment provides that for the revenues collected from geothermal leasing, 50 percent of the revenues are to be paid to the State and 25 percent are to be paid to the county in which the leased lands or geothermal resources are located. In addition, the remaining Federal revenues received during the first five fiscal years following enactment of the Energy Policy Act, after excluding funds paid to State and county governments, are deposited into a separate Treasury account for use by DOI in the implementation of the Geothermal Steam Act of 1970 and the Energy Policy Act of 2005.

The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (P.L. 109-58) amended section 20 of the Geothermal Steam Act of 1970 (30 U.S.C 1019 et seq.) to provide that 25 percent of the revenues collected from geothermal leasing be paid to the county in which the leased lands or geothermal resources are located. This payment is in addition to the 50 percent of Federal revenues that have historically been paid to the State in which the leased lands or geothermal resources are located. The Budget proposes to eliminate these county payments and return to the traditional 50/50 Federal-State revenue sharing arrangement.

Environmental protection.—This activity funds those functions that directly contribute to ensuring that the environment is protected during surface coal mining operations. It also addresses those activities that ensure that coal operators adequately reclaim the land after mining is completed.

Under this activity, OSM provides regulatory grants to States to operate enforcement programs under the terms of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (SMCRA). It also provides for the operation of Federal and Indian land programs and the oversight of State programs, and supports State regulatory program development and maintenance. In addition, this activity funds environmental reclamation efforts through the collection of civil penalties for post-SMCRA reclamation and funds from bond forfeitures, and provides funding for underground and coal outcrop fires.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that States and Indian tribes need to operate their regulatory programs. It provides technical outreach to States and Indian tribes to solve problems related to the environmental effects of coal mining and to fund technical studies to address specific coal mining issues. The Applicant Violator System is funded from this activity.

Financial management.—This activity provides the resources for the managing, accounting, and processing of collections and for the pursuit of delinquent civil penalties. This includes developing and maintaining information management systems that support these functions and enhance the agency's ability to deny new mining permits to applicants with unabated State or Federal violations.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services, such as rent, telephones, and postage.

and the environment that have been degraded by mining prior to the passage of SMCRA.

This activity provides discretionary funding for the Federal reclamation program, which includes program evaluations and operations, high-priority projects in States that do not have reclamation programs, and watershed cooperative agreements. Beginning in 2008, this activity will provide mandatory reclamation grants for qualified States and Tribes to address remaining coal problems instead of the discretionary grants provided through 2007.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that the States and Indian tribes need to operate their reclamation programs. OSM conducts technical studies on mining and reclamation-related problems.

Financial management.—This activity provides funds to identify, notify, collect, and audit fees from coal operators for the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund. OSM seeks to maximize voluntary compliance with the SMCRA's reclamation fee provisions.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services such as rent, telephones, and postage.

The Water and Related Resources account supports the development, management, and restoration of water and related natural resources in the 17 Western States. The account includes funds for operating and maintaining existing facilities to obtain the greatest overall level of benefits, to protect public safety, and to conduct studies on ways to improve the use of water and related natural resources. Work will be done in partnership and cooperation with non-Federal entities and other Federal agencies to reduce conflict, facilitate solutions to complex water issues and stretch limited water supplies. The American West is now the fastest growing region of the country and is facing a serious water crisis. Competition for finite water supplies is growing to meet the needs of expanding municipalities, the environment, and agriculture, while at the same time, climate change and extended droughts are impacting water availability. In 2010, Reclamation will help address these concerns through a Water Conservation Initiative, which includes water recycling and reuse (Title XVI) and competitive challenge grants. The goal of this effort is to assist local communities' availability of water by encouraging voluntary water banks and other conservation measures.

This account funds activities that are consistent with the CALFED Bay-Delta Program, a collaborative effort involving eighteen State and Federal agencies and representatives of California's urban, agricultural, and environmental communities. The goals of the program are to improve fish and wildlife habitat, water supply reliability, water quality, and levee integrity in the San Francisco Bay-San Joaquin River Delta, the principal hub of California's water distribution system.
