See what's coming — market forces already in motion

Social and ecological movements are changing business for good. In this seminar you will see how crucial this information is for making business decisions. We are at a point in history where we are being called to choose: shall we keep on with business as usual or will we summon the courage to transform our destructive practices?

It's already happening

In this talk you will see real life examples of how people are creating businesses that promote people and planet as core values. The interesting thing is these companies are also realizing greater profits! You will see how this works and it will spark your imagination.

Purpose – what is yours to do

Purpose-driven companies outperform rivals by 600 – 1,000%.* Purpose, leadership and culture are the new currency for employee engagement, greater sales, and fulfillment for all stakeholders.

Your personal calling

Businesses change only when people do. What might it look like to evolve toward a healthier relationship with every aspect of your business? This will effect the way you relate with your inner self, other people and all life on earth.

Jump in when ready

Catch the wave of the future with care. Like a surfer who feels when it's right to start paddling choosing this path requires intuition and fortitude. Is this your time? This talk will help you choose.
