

TOP 12 DISRUPTORS

FOR HR SENIOR LEADERS

Change is rapid, accelerating, and constant and CEO's want HR co-leading the effort

Organizational structures are out of alignment and don't support new business imperatives

Daily feedback is replacing performance management systems

Data is king, but leveraging the findings for strategy and direction is harder

New innovative platforms for talent management, learning and recruiting are exploding

Teams rule but remain dysfunctional, especially at the cross functional level

Modern learning becomes more blended – with micro bite sized offerings emerging

Coaching skills are in demand, but short supply

A new diversity is required to create global cultures of inclusion for greater bottom line results

Hierarchical view gives way to the enterprise perspective

Work life "well-being" becomes essential for talent retention

Employee engagement gives way to the employee experience (recruitment, onboarding, development)

