Annotate

Comment at the Source

CollaborateBI's multi-tiered annotation capabilities allow business users and analysts to leave comments where they belong — at the source of the conversation. With this intuitive and dynamic interface, users can...

- Respond to other users' comments
- Edit their own comments
- Embed comment threads when needed

Broader discussions can take place in a generic dashboard thread, while more specific and detailed topics can be addressed in singular reports or even in individual rows within tables.

CollaborateBI gives your users a level of specificity lacking in current Analytics environments. You no longer have to guess which reports are being referenced in emails or other communication channels. No more screenshots. No more copy and paste.

Document

The Right Space for When You Need to Write More

CollaborateBI gives you the ability to add documentation to your Analytics environment for those times when you need more than a comment. Want to add a synopsis for a report? Easy. Need to provide the reasoning behind key analytic decisions? Simple. Want to record the history of a dataset? No problem.

With CollaborateBI, you no longer have to store documentation outside your Analytics environment. Keeping key materials contained inside the dashboard gives the right people access to key information when they need it — no searching

CollaborateBI's documentation tool features a built-in text editor, allowing you to write longer reports, edit existing documents, and keep critical information where it can easily be found.

Integrate with Your Workflow

CollaborateBI is designed as a tool of convenience, adding a layer of commentary functions to your Analytics operation. You can bring attention to important information on the dashboard using instant messaging platforms or email.

Your CollaborateBI installation includes custom integration with the team collaboration tool and email platform your organization already uses. This integration automatically generates a link to the comment's or document's location on the dashboard, bringing the communication full circle.
