OUR LOCATION

Westminster Gardens is a woodland oasis. Everywhere you look there is luscious plant life. The 32-acre campus is home to 800 trees and 2,000 rosebushes. As you wind your way among the apple trees, the Asian pears and the avocados, you find peaceful cottages and homes set amid the landscape. All homes are at ground level so residents can commune with nature—without worry about stairs.

While the community feels semi-rural, the surrounding town of Duarte on historic Route 66 offers easy access to all of Los Angeles County. There's plenty of shopping nearby, as well as Monrovia's historic downtown and Santa Anita Park for live horse racing in nearby Arcadia. Residents also enjoy excursions to the Los Angeles Zoo, Universal Studios, Dodger Stadium and the Walt Disney Concert Hall; the community's easy access to the 210 Freeway makes much of Southern California a quick drive.

OUR PEOPLE

Residents of Westminster Gardens are tutors, former ministers and missionaries, and others who have committed their lives to public service. They are doers who like making a difference in the world.

There's no pretension. Residents have a laid-back attitude and respect for differences. Some say that attitude is rooted in the very work they used to do or in their spiritual backgrounds.
