Updated 5.18.20

About LRP

Q: What is Live Remote Proctoring (LRP)?

A: Online testing, via LRP, is specifically designed to be a secure, web-based, monitored testing event with a live proctor monitoring the exam, candidate and testing environment throughout the exam administration. LRP is defined by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies (NCCA) as follows:

“Remote proctoring that occurs with a person actively watching and monitoring a candidate during the time of the test administration and that provides safeguards for exam integrity and validity similar to in-person proctoring.”

Technology Requirements for LRP

Q: What are the technology requirements for LRP?

A: LRP will work with any modern Windows or Mac OS X computers with a working webcam, microphone, and internet connection.

- Candidates may access a compatibility check tool before registration, during the registration process or prior to testing at <https://home.psiexams.com/static/#/bcheck> to ensure their system meets the following hardware and software technical requirements for their remote proctored exam:
  - Operating systems supported: Windows 7 and later; 32bit (x86) and 64bit (x64); Mac OS X and later.
  - Browsers supported: Chrome Extension

Q: Are Chromebooks acceptable? What about Google Chrome as the browser?

A: Chromebooks are not able to be used for LRP at this time. You can view specific technology requirements by running the PSI Technology Check for LRP. Google Chrome is the recommended browser to access Live Remote Proctoring, but the operating system on the tester's computer needs to be Windows, Mac OS, or Linux. It's important to note the difference between an operating system and browser/platform.

Q: Are candidates allowed to take exams via LRP on a public computer? ex: Library

Q: Will you know if test irregularities, such as cheating attempts and clicking outside of the browser, occur during the exam?

Q: Will calculators be allowed during the exam?

A: The ExCPT exam is the only exam during which candidates may use a calculator. PSI has confirmed that will continue for LRP. Candidates are not able to supply their own calculators. Our psychometrics team makes sure necessary elements such as calculators align with the expectations/requirements of each exam and that they are part of the QE process. If a calculator is required, it will be present/available for use within the exam.

Q: Can scratch paper be used during the exam?

A: Candidates can have two sheets of paper and a pencil during exam administration, including when taking the exam via LRP. The LRP proctor will require the candidate to tear up the paper prior to leaving the session.
