Moline, IL, Aug 9, 2018 – Avadyne Health, a patient liability resolution expert and Windrose Health Investors, formerly MTS Health Investors, today announced Dave Harris, a recently retired principle at PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC), has been appointed to the Avadyne Health Board of Directors.

"Dave is an accomplished leader and pioneer in the healthcare payments field and a contributor in building one of the largest revenue cycle consulting practices during his 25 years at PwC," said Jayson Yardley, CEO of Avadyne Health.

"We're delighted to welcome Dave to the Board and look forward to his contributions," said Curtis Lane, Founding Partner of WindRose Health Investors. "Drawing on his years of experience in healthcare, Dave will provide fresh insights to our business priorities," he added.

"I am honored to serve on Avadyne Health's Board of Directors," said Dave Harris. "The company is transforming patient liability resolution and patient satisfaction with market-leading solutions, engagement concierges and innovative technologies. Their focus on reducing the cost-to-collect and improving patient satisfaction are game changers in today's market."

He assisted in the development of the first national claims processing system, still in use today. Harris was a founding member of the American Hospital Association (AHA) and participated in the patient-friendly billing initiative with Healthcare Financial Management Association (HFMA).

As a management consultant he has helped payers, providers and clearinghouses improve operations, optimize systems, co-source/outsource and consolidate business office functions. He considers himself a life-long advocate of healthcare business office professionals who are under constant pressure to collect money.
