ADMINISTRATIVE AND DISCUSSION ITEMS

At its meeting of Wednesday, April 4, 2018, the following administrative and other items were discussed by the PIAA Basketball Steering Committee. The Administrative Staff will give consideration to those items designated as administrative. The following items are shared with the PIAA Board of Directors for informational purposes:

- 1) Dr. Lombardi, Mr. Byers, Mr. Gebhart and Ms. Grassel reviewed with the PIAA Basketball Steering Committee the 2017-2018 PIAA Inter-District Basketball Championships. All District Basketball Chairmen were commended on their assistance and cooperation in the recommendation of Contest Managers and subsequent management of the respective Inter-District sites.

Mrs. Grassel made a presentation regarding the use of Google Sheets for the compilation of first round summaries. The Committee supported making the documents available to all members for their completion for first round contests held within their respective Districts.

A concern was raised over the number of unused advanced sale tickets that are currently not used. Mr. Byers expressed that due to need by some competing schools, the tickets continue to be worthwhile in determining an appropriate gate sale.

Mr. Kinder addressed a concern with sites or game managers not contacting competing schools. Mr. Byers shared that the current process for making contact is for competing schools to reach out to their contest managers. Due to the efficiency of contest managers reaching out to schools, some schools have become reliant on those individuals reaching out.

- 2) Mr. Anderson discussed the merits of adopting a shot clock for contests and the position paper in support of the shot clock from the National High School Basketball Coaches Association (NHSBCA). Mr. Wright addressed the concerns regarding the administration of the shot clock and additional rules implicated through such adoption. Additional members addressed concerns over the need of a shot clock for all competition. A concern raised was an adoption had the positive affect of making good games better, but also making bad games worse. (continued on page 13)

2018 Basketball Steering Committee Minutes of April 4th 2018

Mr. Sette requested that the Philadelphia Catholic League be able to pilot the use of a shot clock. Mr. Byers addressed the concerns raised by the Board in the past in providing for pilots that treat certain leagues and Districts differently.

- 3) Discussion was held concerning the Religious Headwear Guidelines recently adopted by the Board of Directors on a First Reading. The Committee discussed the merits and risks associated with a blanket policy that would permit headwear for religious reasons. A motion reflects this discussion.
- 4) Dr. Lombardi provided background on the current recommendations of the Competition Committee to the Board of Directors to tighten the transfer rules for both in-season transfers and transfers made by students embracing the 12th grade. Mr. Sette provided the background on a transfer that existed this past postseason and the steps taken by the District to address the transfer.
- 5) Mr. Anderson shared with the Committee that a fall coaches' clinic was held on behalf of the association. An east meeting is planned for 2018. Once a date is finalized for the coming school year, it will be shared with the Committee.

The PABCA held a three-point team fundraiser and looks to expand participation during the coming school year. PABCA has created a Ron Galbreath Coach of the Year scholarship and will be distributing information for participation the coming school year.

- 6) Mr. Manners brought up the concern of streaming during PIAA Championship playoffs. Those recognized during contests were unaware of current policies and restrictions. The topic was suggested for the District Annual Meetings and as part of the sportsmanship message to read before the start of contests over the PA system.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Byers adjourned the meeting of the PIAA Basketball Steering Committee at 1:05 p.m., Wednesday, April 4, 2018.

NEXT PIAA BASKETBALL STEERING COMMITTEE MEETING: 12:00 P.M.,

13

A 1985 magna cum laude graduate of Grove City College, Steve Lamie enters his 15th season as the Wolverines' head men's basketball coach.

In his 14 seasons at the college, Lamie has directed the Wolverines to four Presidents' Athletic Conference championships, nine winning seasons, six postseason berths and national and regional acclaim in several statistical categories.

In 2010, he earned the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Great Lakes Coach of the Year award after directing the Wolverines to a 19-9 record, the PAC title and a berth in the NCAA Division III Championship Tournament.

In 2007, Lamie led Grove City to one of the most improbable championships in PAC history as the Wolverines captured the conference tournament after entering as the fourth seed.

Overall, he has a 191-176 record since taking over as head coach in June 1998.

Lamie guided Grove City to the PAC championship in 2003 as the Wolverines downed Thiel in the conference title game, 60-59, in Greenville. The 2002-03 Wolverines ranked in the top 10 nationally in both field goal percentage and rebound margin while finishing 18-9, the fifth-best season in school history.

Grove City also hosted its first-ever ECAC playoff game in 2003 as the Wolverines hosted Neumann College in a quarterfinal game.

In 2001-02, the Wolverines finished second in the nation in rebound margin and held their opponents to less than 38 percent shooting from the floor. Grove City also finished among the national leaders in field goal percentage in 2004-05. Last year, Grove City led the conference in scoring defense.

College Spotlight

In his first season, the Wolverines captured the Presidents' Athletic Conference championship and advanced to the ECAC Championship Tournament. From 2000-2005, Grove City posted five consecutive winning seasons. That represented the program's longest run of winning seasons since the 1920s.

He has also coached five 1,000-point scorers in former standouts Tanner Prosser, Ryan Eller, Shawn Carr, Ryan Gibson and Andy O'Keefe. O'Keefe also earned CoSIDA Academic All-America honors in 2010. Three Grove City players have earned Academic All-District during his tenure.

Lamie is the 21st head men's basketball coach in Grove City history. Prior to becoming head coach, he assisted longtime head coach John Barr for four seasons. The Wolverines won 16 games in consecutive seasons and reached the ECAC tournament in each of Lamie's first two years as an assistant.

Lamie played four years under Barr, earning the team's hustle award and co-captain honors as a senior. As a sophomore during the 1982-83 season, he helped Grove City advance to the NCAA Division III Championship Tournament as the Wolverines set a school record with 21 victories.

His coaching career began as an assistant at Cedar Crest High School in Lebanon, Pa. After four seasons at Cedar Crest, Lamie spent two years as a graduate assistant at Kent State, earning his master's degree in biology in 1991.

Lamie then returned to the high school ranks for three seasons as a head coach. After one year at Palisades High School in Kinterville, Pa., Lamie led Perkasio, Pa.-based Penridge High School to the District I playoffs in 1994, ending a six-year drought.

Lamie is an assistant professor of physical education and exercise science. He also worked previously as an assistant track and field coach at Grove City, working with the throwing squad.

His wife Melissa recently completed her 20th season as Grove City's head women's soccer coach. She is also Grove City's head golf coach.

Coaching Advice To Help Build A Winning Program

Building genuine relationships with athletes By Kevin Sutton, contributing writer

Genuine relationship building takes time, and coaches today have to make a conscious decision to forge these relationships with their players.

The ability to communicate with players is an invaluable skill. These relationships allow coaches to earn the respect and trust of their players. Once these genuine relationships are established, teaching can take place. And after proper teaching takes place, improvement will surely follow.

Today's student-athletes use a variety of methods to communicate through social mediums and platforms. However, that variety does not necessarily make an individual a great communicator. I'm a firm believer that coaches must reach their players on a level where they are most comfortable to truly develop a genuine relationship. These can be on emotional, spiritual, academic or social levels. It's also important to choose a location where the student-athletes are comfortable, such as their dorms, the coach's home, training table or during the team meal.

In high school, I struggled learning geometry. One day, my geometry teacher attended one of my basketball games, and it made a huge impact on me because she saw how much the game meant to me. In class the following day, she told me that I knew more about geometry than most of my peers. I was sure she had lost her mind.

Coaching Advice To Help Build A Winning Program

She then gave me a piece of paper with the dimensions of the basketball court on it. She started to ask me geometry questions using the lines and angles of the court, and I answered all the questions correctly. She met me on my level, and she created a teachable moment that I will never forget.

Here are some ideas that I have discussed with other coaches and have personally used during my coaching career to develop genuine relationships with my players. I'm confident that if you try to implement some of these ideas, you're already moving in the right direction toward establishing a meaningful connection with your student-athletes. Theodore Roosevelt said it best: "They don't care how much you know, until they know how much you care."

- Get to know their five 'Hs' — history, hopes, heartaches, heroes and honey.
- Work them out and help them to improve their skills.
- Invite your players into your home for a meal.
- Set aside time for 1-on-1 film sessions.
- Go to their homes to make a connection with their circle of influence.
- Discuss current events to capture their attention, especially if the event touches them personally.
- Choose books that you can read with them, and discuss the books when you're finished.
- Create a group chat with players via social media.
- Throw out a topic, and encourage the players to speak freely and openly about their feelings on it.
- Be observant of what your players do, what they say, what they wear — use it to connect.

Coaching Advice To Help Build A Winning Program

Becoming a better communicator and investing the time to develop genuine relationships with your players helps lead your team to incredible success. We all want our players to “buy in” to our programs and what we’re trying to accomplish, but to achieve this you must first get them to believe. Believe in you, your genuine interest in them, their success and what’s important to them. That belief is earned through trust, and trust takes time and effort.

Ron Galbreath

As a player for the Titans, Galbreath, a 1962 Westminster graduate, was a two-time All-American under legendary Westminster basketball coach C.G. "Buzz" Riddl. He later went on to become the head coach of the Titans for 25 seasons, retiring as the school's all-time winningest men's basketball coach in 1997.

During his playing days at Westminster, Galbreath earned All-America honors in 1961 and 1962. He is one of 15 All-Americans and one of five multiple All-Americans in Westminster history. His 1,586 career points at Westminster rank fourth all-time. Galbreath averaged 21.7 points per game in 1961 and scored 607 points that season. He helped Westminster beat the likes of the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University to make it to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) National Tournament in all four of his seasons.

Galbreath compiled a 448-206 (.686) record as the head coach of Westminster's men's program. Eighteen of Galbreath's 25 Westminster teams qualified for postseason play, with 11 reaching either the NAIA or conference finals. His teams won six NAIA district titles and reached the NAIA tournament three times: 1982, 1994, and 1996. At the time of Westminster's move from the NAIA to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) in 1998, Westminster was the all-time winningest men's basketball program in NAIA history.

Galbreath coached the Geneva women's team for six seasons. He stepped down for a medical leave of absence after suffering a stroke in March 2008. At Geneva, Galbreath recorded a 111-48 record and led the team to its only NAIA tournament appearance in 2006-07.

In total, Galbreath compiled a career record of 634-192 (.768) as the head men's coach at Westminster and Clarion University and head women's coach at Geneva. He totaled 14 20-win seasons and his teams finished .500 or better 32 times. Galbreath coached five All-Americans, including four at Westminster, and 21 1,000-point scorers.

Galbreath was inducted into numerous Hall of Fames, including the Pittsburgh Basketball Club Hall of Fame, the Western Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame, the Lawrence County Historical Society Sports Hall of Fame, and the Titan Sports Hall of Fame. He was also named the Western Pennsylvania Sportsperson of the Year in 2016.
