Dan Lopez serves as Senior Underwriting Counsel and as manager of the First American Title National Commercial Services office in Washington, D.C.

Dan joined First American Title in 2014, after more than a decade in private practice. Dan began his legal career with the finance practice group of Latham & Watkins, LLP. He later joined the transactional real estate group at Arent Fox, LLP, where his practice focused on real estate transactions and related corporate, debt financing, and equity financing matters.

Dan has counseled clients of all kinds, and has handled commercial real estate purchase, sale, development, and financing transactions throughout the United States. Dan's transactional experience, and a keen interest and understanding of title, make him a perfect fit for First American. With his prior experience as transaction counsel to the same clients, and in the same transactions, that regularly work with the National Commercial Services division, Dan brings a unique and invaluable set of skills and perspective to First American Title's service.

Dan received his J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, after earning a B.S. in Psychology from Georgetown University.
