IXM, global merchant in base and precious metals, creates a collaborative space overlooking the Saugatuck river.

IXM, formerly the metals business of trading house Louis Dreyfus, was recently acquired by CMOC. It has established its US office in Westport CT and resides at Baywater Property's waterfront space at 355 Riverside. This space takes advantage of natural light and sweeping views of the Saugatuck River. The design intent of the space was focused on fostering collaboration, team building, ergonomics and flexibility. The open plan naturally encourages communication and impromptu conversation, while individual workstations are designed for focus with privacy panels. Employees are encouraged to move throughout the day, from lounge soft seating and conference rooms to the high top café for informal gatherings. Movement is also supported in their individual workstations with height adjustable worksurfaces and dual monitor arms. All solutions can easily be relocated within the space to support future space designs and growth.

“ As in any office move and upgrade, there were a lot of expectations from the team and the management. Red Thread helped us design our new office in line with our corporate identity, while offering easy to use, ergonomic furniture. In doing so, we've enjoyed an amazing office atmosphere from day one, fostering interactions and keeping us decisively focused on our new path! ”
