

MFA Everywhere protects against the leading cause of cyber attacks — compromised credentials

There is no end in sight to the growing number of passwords, password sharing, and users making poor password choices. And, attackers are constantly evolving their methods of stealing passwords. Password-based security is no longer effective.

Multi-factor authentication (MFA) requires multiple methods for identifying a user, such as something they have, something they know, or something they are, making it a better solution to prevent unauthorized access to your corporate data. MFA everywhere, across every enterprise user and IT resource, helps block attackers at multiple points in the attack chain and strengthens protection against compromised credentials.

CENTRIFY PLATFORM - ADAPTIVE MFA

You need to secure your data but you can't afford to slow your business down. Built into the Centrify Identity Platform, Centrify's adaptive MFA solution give organizations the ability to easily combine simple, strong authentication with single sign-on (SSO) and privilege access security.
