Survey Shows Conflict Between Innovation and IT Overhead

Businesses recognize the importance of digital innovation, but a recent survey shows IT and finance leaders struggle to redirect IT budget from systems maintenance to innovation

Vanson Bourne, an independent technology market research firm, collected survey responses from 900 IT and finance decision makers between January and March 2018. The survey panel was spread across the Americas, Asia-Pacific, Europe and the Middle East. Survey findings indicate that the tremendous potential of digital transformation is very much on the minds of these leaders, yet many are dissatisfied with the speed of innovation happening in their firms.
