SHOW OFFS

How to find the perfect sofa for your floorplan and lifestyle

If you're shopping for a sofa, you've probably discovered there's an unlimited variety of styles, sizes, fabrics and colors available. For the best return on your investment—and years of comfort—buy the highest-quality you can afford. After all, it's one of the most used pieces of furniture in your home!

HELP IS AT HAND

The sales and design staff at Levin Furniture are trained to help you make the right selection and provide you with all the information you need to make an informed purchase. Don't be afraid to ask for their assistance—they can help you choose the sofa that best fits your room's dimensions as well as your style of living.

SIZE MATTERS

Consider your floorplan when choosing a new sofa. How big is the room? Is the space open or limited? Proportion is important—a small sofa may look lost in a large room, while an oversized sofa can make a room look cramped. For even more flexibility, consider a sleeper sofa. With higher quality mattresses and ease of use, today's sleeper sofas are a great value where space is at a premium.

SHADES OF GRAY

While browsing for your new sofa, don't limit yourself to traditional shades of brown, tan or beige—gray is the new brown. Look for warm gray-beige tones for a traditional aesthetic or cooler gray tones of graphite, dove and slate for a transitional or updated look.

READY FOR WEAR (AND TEAR)

The type of fabric you choose for your sofa is just as important as style and color. It should match your lifestyle, and be up to the task. Do you have children, pets or frequent spills and stains? If so, look for a long-wearing fabric or one treated with fabric protection. More durable fabrics like denim, corduroy and microfibers are a good option as well. And don't forget leather: It's classic, comfortable and comes in a variety of finishes. ☞

Image: Flexsteel

What's Your Style?

One of the first steps in choosing a new sofa for your home is determining your style. Today, there are designs, fabrics and styles available to meet every budget and fit every home. Here are some style terms you can use to describe the look you most want to achieve.

Traditional: Featuring timeless furniture silhouettes, a traditional look is warm and welcoming, and often features classic furnishings and a symmetrical placement of furnishings.

Transitional: Blending traditional and contemporary, transitional styling creates a livable, casually elegant look by incorporating a variety of elements.

Contemporary: Clean and sophisticated is the goal of contemporary design, with an emphasis on color, shape and material. It's a look characterized by minimal embellishment and uncomplicated silhouettes.

Cottage or Modern Rustic: With its time-worn finishes and soft fabrics such as linen and cotton, comfortable and informal describe this look. Coastal and farmhouse looks fall into this category as well. ☞

LEATHER Q&A

Everything you always wanted to know about buying and caring for leather furnishings

Leather furnishings are timeless, comfortable and durable. And today, they're available in a wide variety of colors and styles to fit every home and budget.

WHAT DO I NEED TO KNOW BEFORE I GO SHOPPING FOR A LEATHER SOFA OR CHAIR?

There are many different grades and types of leather, which makes it affordable for everyone. Become familiar with the terms used to describe the sofa or chair you're considering; it'll help you make the best choice for you and your lifestyle.

When you shop, go in person. Take your time and don't be afraid to make yourself comfortable and do all the things you'd do if relaxing at home—sit, recline, stretch out. Run your hands across all the surfaces, including the sides and back.

WHAT ARE THE DIFFERENT TYPES OF LEATHER?

Through a process called tanning, cow hides are transformed into supple, soft leather suitable for upholstery. There's a range of leather types and grades, which correlate to its price, longevity and usability.

WHAT'S THE MOST AFFORDABLE TYPE OF LEATHER?

Bonded leather is the most affordable type of leather. It's a blend of polyurethane, polyester/cotton and leather bonded to the back of fabric. It's soft and durable, and has a beautiful texture.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ANILINE, SEMI-ANILINE, AND PURE-ANILINE?

- Aniline is a high-quality leather that has been dyed but allows the natural grain to show through.
- Semi-aniline has been coated for added protection, but retains its natural beauty and softness.
- Pure aniline, sometimes called naked leather, is the softest and most supple, but has the least resistance to stains.

WHAT'S ARE THE UNIQUE QUALITIES OF FULL-GRAIN, TOP-GRAIN AND SPLIT-GRAIN HIDES?

- Full-grain comes from the top layer of the hide and is the strongest, most valuable layer.
- Top-grain is leather that has been sanded to reduce some of its natural markings. It's then embossed with a consistent graining pattern.
- Split-grain comes from layers beneath the top-grain. It's as durable as top-grain but typically not as supple.

WHAT OTHER TYPES OF LEATHER FURNISHINGS ARE AVAILABLE?

Today's leather furnishings go beyond just traditional sofas and chairs. You'll find leather ottomans, benches, dining room chairs and bar stools. And taking it a step further, leather-covered headboards, cabinets, and accent pieces make a stunning design statement. CS

MAD ABOUT MOTION

The inside scoop on the most comfortable sofas and chairs available

No matter what your style or décor preferences are, everyone wants their home to be comfortable. From sofas and sectionals to loveseats and chairs, today's motion furnishings offer the ultimate in relaxation and comfort.

COMFORT + STYLE

With the variety of looks, materials and sizes available in the marketplace, it's hard to tell just by looking which sofa and chair models actually recline. Gone are the days of the unattractive recliners—motion furnishings today come in looks ranging from tailored and contemporary profiles to old-school, overstuffed models. You needn't choose between comfort and style: You can have both in one piece!

MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME

When shopping for your perfect sofa or chair, jump right in and test them all. Sit back and relax just as you do at home. Try out the lumbar support, evaluate the reclining angle—if you feel like you could take a nap right there in the store, you've found the right one.

YOU'VE GOT THE LOOK

There are plenty of options to explore when it comes to finding just the right fabric for your new motion sofa or chair. What look best matches your style—relaxed, rustic, contemporary, transitional or traditional? What about your lifestyle—do you have children or pets? If so, stain-resistant fabrics are your best bet. Some of the most popular durable upholstery materials include microfibers, cotton, chenille and leather.

COLOR YOURSELF HAPPY

You've found the piece and chosen your fabric ... now, what color? Consider the personality and tone you want in your room. Bold? Subtle? Bright? Think about the other pieces you have already. Go bold if your sofa is going to be the centerpiece; if not, use a more neutral color and brighten it up with vibrant accent pillows. To help you in the selection process, take photos of the space beforehand and bring them shopping with you. It's always easier to refer to a picture than to try to describe a color or style to the sales associate working with you.

EXPLORE THE OPTIONS

While you're buying a new motion piece, why not treat yourself to a few extras? Look for special features like massage or heat, or built-in storage such as cupholders and hidden compartments for remotes (and even beverage coolers!). Many of today's top-selling models also feature technology options such as docking stations, USB chargers, and built-in speakers. ☞

BIG STYLE FOR LITTLE ONES

Top tips for creating a well-designed space that can grow with your child over the years

Creating a space your child will love can be fun and rewarding. With a little imagination and planning, their room will be one that grows with them from cradle to college.

FUTURE-FOCUSED

Today's top designers recommend skipping babyish themes and focus on timeless style. With the abundance of choices today in youth furniture, think ahead when making furniture choices to how the pieces will look in a teenager's room years from now.

BED HEAD

Why not begin with the most important component of the room—the bed? Just because it's a child's room doesn't mean the bed needs to be child-sized. A full- or queen-size bed gives your child room to grow. And when they go off to college, it'll be that much easier to turn the space into a guest room.

ACCESSORIZE WITH ABANDON

Don't hold back on accents and accessories. Wall colors, bedding and artwork can really bring a space together—yet are easily updated as your child's tastes change over the years.

COLORFULLY CREATIVE

Go beyond the “traditional” shades of pink and blue. From pastels to neon to bright fluorescents, be creative in your color combinations. Try a classic black and white color scheme, and brighten it with pops of accent color. Grays are the new neutral, and can be paired with a variety of hues for a stylish effect.

SOPHISTICATED TOTS

Bring the style of the other rooms of your home into your child's space. Add a touch of sophistication with prints, graphic patterns and monograms. Once they're old enough, get your child involved in the process and encourage their input and creativity.

ACCENT ON STYLE

An accent wall is a great way to brighten up and add interest to your child's room. A stenciled pattern, mural or wallpaper adds impact, and can be easily updated when the time comes. With a bit of paint or wallpaper, even the ceiling can become a focal point!

A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING

Storage is never out of style in a child's room. Under-bed drawers, storage cabinets and flip-top ottomans add functionality and make tidying up easier.

THINK IN 3-D

For a truly unique look, mount a three-dimensional object on the wall. From a model boat or airplane to a vase of flowers or a garden gate, the possibilities are limited only by your imagination! ☞

EFFORTLESS ENTERTAINING

6 simple steps for putting your dining room to work for you and your guests

If your dining room has become one of the most underused (or never used) rooms in your home, perhaps it's due for an update. Here's how to transform yours into one of your favorite spaces to entertain, or just enjoy a casual family dinner.

1. EVALUATE YOUR SPACE

First, consider the layout of your dining room. Does the table you currently have allow for a good flow from kitchen to table? Is its scale too large, or too small? Would a round table make better use of the space than a rectangular one? Do you need a buffet or bar to enhance your entertaining style?

2. FOCUS ON FUNCTION AND FORM

Next, think about how you want the room to function. What type of entertaining will you do there? Casual or formal dinners? Family-style buffets? Or game nights with friends? You'll want the lighting and furniture placement to reflect your style and the vision you have for the room.

3. CREATE A STYLE FILE

Start collecting inspiration photos that catch your interest and reflect your style. Create a portfolio—online or with magazine pages—that you can take with you when you shop for furnishings and accessories. A project file will help keep you organized and excited about transforming your space.

4. START FROM THE GROUND UP

In addition to trying to create a beautiful space, endeavor to design one that's welcoming to your guests. If you're using an area rug in your dining room, make sure it's large enough that chairs can be moved back without getting caught on the edge. Choose dining chairs that are supportive and comfortable. Allow for enough room between chairs so that your friends and family don't feel cramped.

5. THINK BIG

Sometimes a small change can make a big impact. Consider painting the ceiling, adding a new chandelier or light fixture, or adding a dramatic area rug. For a quick change, accents such as tableware and linens can add a dash of color and character.

6. MAKE IT FUN

Mix things up by integrating different furniture styles and elements. If you have a traditional dining space, consider adding a few modern elements. Try accenting an heirloom dining set with a contemporary wall color or bold artwork. Or, ground a more modern space with an understated rug or light fixture. Even serving pieces and tableware can be updated or mixed and matched to add a creative juxtaposition of style.

GEOMETRY LESSONS

Design strategies for finding the size and shape of tables that complement your room

When it comes to redecorating, people seldom think about updating their tables. Yet the home furnishings marketplace is packed with fashionable table designs boasting a wide variety of enticing shapes, sizes and materials. From cocktail tables to end tables and media consoles, today's stylish tables are impossible to overlook.

SHAPE OF THINGS

One of the first things to consider when it comes to choosing tables is function: What do you need it to do? Are you looking for a worksurface, display area or storage piece? Once you've identified function, it's time to consider form. Feel free to mix and match the tables in a room—they don't have to match, but they should relate to one another. When using pieces from different collections, look for similar finishes or design elements that tie them together. And, if most of the furniture in your room has a rectangular or square footprint (such as sofas and chairs), add some interest with a round cocktail table or accent tables.

A SOLID BASE

Today's slimmer televisions call for a more streamlined base—the gargantuan entertainment units of past years are practically extinct. When choosing a media console for your TV, keep its size proportionate to the TV screen. A corner unit is a good choice for small or awkwardly shaped rooms. Don't forget media storage and cord management capabilities for a tidier look.

TIDY UP

Speaking of storage, it's an important consideration in every living space. When choosing cocktail tables and side tables—regardless of shape—look for drawers and hidden storage areas to help keep your room organized.

STAY PROPORTIONATE

As you plan your room, keep your furnishings in proportion. The size of your tables and media console should reflect the size of the space and the surrounding furnishings. If a table looks too big in your room, it probably is. And don't forget, everything looks smaller in a retail store than it will when you get it home. For the best shopping experience, bring your room dimensions (and those of existing furnishings that will stay) with you when you shop.

FIND YOUR STYLE

Whether you prefer a contemporary round, glass-top cocktail table or a rustic one with a reclaimed look, there are endless options from which to choose. When you choose tables that you love and reflect your sense of style, your room will come together seamlessly. ☺

SHIFT INTO NEUTRAL

Color palettes, furnishings and style formulas for creating a relaxing master bedroom

What better place to relax and rejuvenate than your own bedroom? With these simple tips, you can create the retreat of your dreams—the perfect space to recharge and renew your body, mind and spirit.

IMAGINE YOUR RETREAT

Picture a favorite hotel, B&B or destination where you remember being most relaxed. What appeals most to you about the room you've imagined? Perhaps it's the restful color of the walls. Or the luxuriously upholstered headboard. Or maybe the sumptuously soft bed linens. Identify your favorite elements and let them help guide your design decisions for your bedroom.

EVALUATE YOUR ENVIRONMENT

Here are a few elements experts recommend to help you get the highest-quality, uninterrupted sleep: The room should be cool (around 68 degrees Fahrenheit), dark and quiet. A good mattress is the foundation of good rest—if yours is more than eight years old, it's probably time for a new one.

DECORATE FOR R&R

One tried-and-true design strategy for creating a relaxing retreat is to start with a muted color palette. Calming wall colors create calming spaces. Soft, natural tones of blue, green, gray and tan invite rest and relaxation.

DE-CLUTTER AND DE-STRESS

One of the simplest ways to make over your bedroom is to declutter the space. With laundry piles and stacks of papers or magazines around, it can be hard to unwind. The mind is constantly distracted by these items and considering what needs to be done. Keeping clutter contained and out of sight allows the mind to relax and shift focus.

READY YOURSELF FOR REST

If you have trouble winding down at night, reduce your caffeine and alcohol intake prior to bedtime. Turn off all electronics—yes, that means your cell phone and tablet devices—and being the process of powering down yourself. If you still have trouble getting to sleep, consider a relaxing bath, a warm drink, reading or aromatherapy.

SET THE SCENE

Thoughtful finishing touches are what really take a room from bedroom to retreat. Accessorize your bed with soft layers of bed linens in subtle colors that invite rest and relaxation. Use lamps to create warmth and light where you need it, and to avoid harsh overhead lighting. Filter out light and heat, and keep your private retreat cool and comfortable by using drapes and blackout window treatments. Finally, choose a few spa-inspired decorative elements to complete the aesthetic without attracting attention. ☾

SLEEP TALKING

An in-depth look at the importance of sleep and getting your best rest

Image: Stearns & Foster

It's a scientific fact that sleep affects every facet of our lives. Not getting enough quality sleep can lead to diminished productivity, difficulty losing weight, memory issues, and the onset of certain diseases. The good news is: Getting better sleep is within your reach.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE

According to the National Sleep Foundation (NSF), high-quality sleep is as essential to our well-being as food, air, and water. While a good night's sleep can leave you feeling refreshed, alert and energized, poor sleep—or not enough sleep—can leave you feeling tired, groggy and depressed. It also negatively impacts the health of our jobs and relationships.

POOR SLEEP = POOR PERFORMANCE

NSF studies show that nearly three out of four Americans experience sleeping problems at least a few nights each week. Sleep deprivation has serious side effects, including negative influences on areas such as: metabolism, brain function, alertness, agility, and hormone regulation. It's not unusual for people suffering from insomnia to become irritable and have difficulty concentrating and making decisions. Severe sleep deprivation has been linked to premature aging and diseases such as diabetes.

HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?

To truly experience the restorative power of sleep, both quantity and quality are important. While individual needs vary, most sleep experts recommend getting 7-9 hours of continuous, uninterrupted sleep each night.

Start by establishing a regular sleep routine by getting up and going to bed at the same time each day. Next, consider your sleep environment. Is your bedroom designed to support your goal of improving your sleep? How old is your mattress? If it's more than eight years old, it's time to consider replacing it. What about your pillow—is it supportive enough? For the best chance of improving your sleep, you must evaluate every element of your bedroom and bedtime routine. Improving the quantity and quality of your sleep can offer immediate and lasting rewards. ☺

How to Shop for a New Mattress

A critical part of a good night's rest is a comfortable, supportive mattress. If your mattress is more than eight year's old, or is lumpy or sagging, it's time to look for a replacement. Here are some tips to help you shop:

- Shop only at stores you trust.
- Wear comfortable clothing.
- Bring your mate or sleep partner.
- Take your time and test each mattress by removing your shoes and lying on each model in your typical sleep position.
- Try a variety of firmness and comfort options, even if you think you know your preference beforehand. Industry terms and construction techniques change over time.
- Ask the sales associate about both the interior and exterior features of the mattress.
- Buy the best mattress your budget will allow.

Mattress Types At-a-Glance

With the sheer quantity of mattress models on the market today, it's easy to feel overwhelmed. Here's a look at the most popular styles you'll encounter:

- Innerspring: The classic mattress option, these sleep sets are constructed using steel coils and varying layers of cushioning materials.
- Memory foam: One of the fastest-growing mattress types, these models employ a foam core that replaces traditional innersprings.
- Latex foam: This model also replaces the innerspring with a foam core. Latex mattresses are available in models made from natural or synthetic foam cores.
- Gel foam: One of the most innovative technologies, gel foam materials offer unique conformability features.

- Hybrid (a combination of springs and foam): Not sure which type mattress you prefer? Many manufacturers now offer hybrids that combine the best of both innerspring and foam mattresses. CS

YOUR OFFICE, YOUR WAY

How to create a workspace that works for your home

Whether you work from home full-time or just a few hours a month, you deserve to have the workspace of your dreams. An inspiring home office can make the toughest task tolerable and even the longest week feel manageable. Today's multifunctional home office furnishings make it easier than ever to stay organized and are designed to turn even the smallest spaces into productivity centers.

RACE FOR SPACE

If you don't have an extra room to use as a dedicated office space, consider repurposing a part of your dining room, living room or bedroom. A variety of furniture styles and configurations are available to help you maximize work areas in non-traditional spaces.

CLUTTER BE GONE

Control the chaos and keep out the clutter with bookcases, file drawer cabinets and accent chests with hidden storage. Look for multifunctional designs with technology features such as built-in chargers and cord management. Even these most functional furnishings are available in styles and finishes designed to fit every décor scheme.

ON DISPLAY

Whether you want to keep your most-needed reference materials near at hand or show off some hard-earned awards, there's nothing better than a bookcase or etagere for stylish display.

WORK-LIFE BALANCE

If your living room sometimes doubles as your home office, look for a storage cocktail table with a lift-top that can function as a desk. And, choose a sofa or chair with built-in charging capabilities.

PERSONALIZE IT

Fun and colorful office supplies can add charm and personality to your workspace. Upgrading to brightly colored file folders can help you stay organized and bring a smile to your face. Check out your favorite office supply store for the most fashionable looks in desk organizers, magazine holders and creative stationery. ✂

3 Tips for Work-at-Home Success

- Set a schedule and stick to it. Start and end your work day at the same time every day, and be sure to build in breaks.
- Resist the temptation to work in your PJs—get dressed for the day. You can still enjoy the perks of working from home by dressing casually and comfortably.
- Manage your time and your workflow with the same discipline you would use in an office environment.
