is among the 551 bankers taking part in the 68th annual two-week session of the Graduate School of Banking at Louisiana State University. Classes got underway May 21 and will continue through June 2, 2017 with courses covering all aspects of banking, economics and related subjects. Students traveled from twenty-one states and Mexico to participate in this Session.

Sponsored by 15 southern state bankers associations in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education at LSU, the banking school requires attendance on campus for three years, with extensive bank study assignments between sessions. The faculty consists of bankers, business and professional leaders, and educators from all parts of the U.S.

During their three years at the Graduate School of Banking, students receive 180 hours of classroom instruction, thirty hours of reviews, planned evening study, and written final examinations at the end of each session.
