My First Baby's Arrival

On September 27, 2012, I gave birth to my beautiful and healthy 8.7 pound baby girl, Mollie, at Baby Lane. Although I lived 90 minutes away at the time, I didn't question making the drive, even for all my prenatal care, because of all the wonderful things I had heard from relatives who lived in Zachary.

Being a young first time mom, I didn't have much experience and needed some help! I am so thankful for the amazing staff that helped me feel like a pro in no time. My daughter was a little jaundiced, so her stay was a little longer than usual. I was incredibly impressed that the doctors and nurses spent so much time and attention to ensure that she went home perfect. We were BOTH treated like family.

A few years later, my husband's job relocated to the Baton Rouge area. At that point, we needed to decide on a place to settle down. The wonderful care our daughter and I received played a huge part in us ultimately deciding to purchase a home and raise our family only a few miles away from Lane.

My Second Baby's Arrival

Now, our amazing and thriving 4-year-old preschool graduate has recently been promoted to big sister! On January 27, 2017, I gave birth to my second beautiful and healthy 7.14 pound baby girl, Max (short for Maxine), at Baby Lane of course!

I did not think it was possible to have an even better experience than I did nearly 5 years earlier. We had another very calm and enjoyable delivery that went very smoothly and again, no complications, much thanks to the awesome Dr. Elbourne. Our amazing nurses offered to step in and help with our new baby so we could both get some sleep. My husband even joked with nurses asking if they could all come home with us! I was NOT joking :)

I also had some difficulty with breastfeeding, and each nurse went above and beyond to help me. I felt so comfortable asking them any question I had. Specifically, nurses Laura, Elizabeth, and Tammy made us feel like we were just chatting with friends who also happened to be periodically checking my vitals. I am so blessed and thankful for Lane Regional Medical Center and the entire staff for helping to make two of the best days of our life even better.

And we will be headed to Baby Lane again one day when we try for a little brother for our girls.

One Great Location.
Two Great Services.
Three Great Doctors.

Fighting Cancer the Lane Way

No one wants to hear the “c” word. Yet unfortunately, cancer affects hundreds of people in our community each year. In our continuing efforts to address our community’s needs, Lane Regional Medical Center has recently expanded Lane Cancer Center to include Hematology and Oncology services.

Lane Hematology/Oncology Clinic has joined Radiation Oncology Services as part of Lane Cancer Center. This means radiation therapy, chemotherapy, infusion services and medical visits are all conveniently located in the same building.

“In addition to providing leading edge cancer services, we focus on the unique needs of our patients. Our team works with patients to help them fully understand their diagnosis and treatment options. Equally important is providing each patient and family with emotional support and outstanding customer service,” says Dr. Michael Castine. “We do all that we can to help them become cancer survivors,” he explained.

Having access to convenient, high-quality cancer care can help ease the challenges of treatment and recovery. Patients can now rely on:

- A convenient location
- Flexible scheduling
- Experienced caregivers
- Multidisciplinary care
- Recognized physician experts
- Easy parking
- Attractive setting and amenities

What Is Chemotherapy?

Chemotherapy, also known as chemo, is the use of drugs or other chemical substances to treat cancer. It is one of many cancer treatment options at Lane Cancer Center and is often used in conjunction with cancer surgery or radiation therapy.

The way chemotherapy is given depends on the drugs used. Most often, chemo is injected into a vein through an IV (also called intravenous or IV therapy). Other options for chemo treatment include oral delivery, in the form of a pill or liquid, or injected into your muscle or fatty tissue.

The length of your chemo treatment will depend on your cancer type, which drugs are used and how you respond to the treatment.

What Is Radiation Oncology?

Radiation oncology is the branch of medicine that treats cancer by delivering high-energy beams to control, shrink or kill cancerous cells. It is often used as a curative or controlling treatment, usually in combination with surgery and/or chemotherapy.

During radiation therapy, patients will receive carefully planned doses of radiation to the targeted area, which usually only takes about 15-to-20 minutes. While each cancer treatment plan is unique, patients who undergo radiation therapy generally receive treatment five days-a-week for approximately two-to-seven weeks.

Lane Hematology/Oncology Clinic

At Lane Hematology/Oncology Clinic, medical oncologist Dr. Michael Castine specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of all cancers and blood disorders such as leukemia, lymphoma, and anemia. Patients rely on his expertise, compassionate care, and philosophy of hope and optimism.

LIFESAVER AWARD RECIPIENT: Cassidy Bergeron

On Christmas Eve 2016, Cassidy Bergeron still had presents to wrap when she ran out of scotch tape. She decided to make a quick trip to the store to get what she needed. Yet instead of stopping at the nearest store, she drove further passing several stores where she could have gotten the tape. To this day, she believes it was divine intervention that took her to a place at the exact time a newborn baby needed help.

Cassidy works at FASTLane After Hours Urgent Care Clinic in Zachary and is a second-year nursing student. When she arrived at the store still in her scrubs, people noticed her, and before Cassidy even realized what was happening, she was holding a baby in her arms — a baby that had just stopped breathing. She quickly learned that the baby had been found in the store's bathroom where she was abandoned shortly after birth.

"People were helping the baby, and all that I did was initiate the first steps of infant CPR. I turned her on her stomach, and rested her on my arm as I tapped her back. I was ready to breathe into her mouth when she took a big gasp of air," explained Cassidy. "Someone had already called 9-1-1 before I arrived, and the paramedics were coming in just after the baby started breathing again. I give credit to the paramedics and to the people who found her in the bathroom for saving her life. My role was very small, but it makes me realize how important knowing CPR is. I now tell everyone to learn infant and adult CPR, because you never know when someone will need help."

At Lane Regional Medical Center, Cassidy became the first recipient of the Lane Lifesaver Award which was created to recognize Lane employees who perform a lifesaving heroic act outside the workplace. "I'm just glad that I went to that store for the tape, and I got there when I did. I'm glad I knew what to do, and that I remained calm and did what I was supposed to do," Cassidy explained. "I'm thankful every day the baby is okay."
