Anne Glenn is a Member at Goodman Allen Donnelly with a long and established healthcare litigation practice. She also has experience defending manufacturers and other entities in product liability litigation.

Anne's practice focuses primarily on the defense of hospitals, physicians, nurses, nursing homes and other health care providers. She provides advice in the areas of risk management, informed and surrogate decision-making, ethical issues and crisis situations which arise in the health care setting.

Anne also assists clients with guardianship, conservatorship and judicial authorization proceedings. She has experience with the regulatory boards in the Commonwealth of Virginia, including both the Board of Medicine and the Board of Nursing.

As a frequent lecturer to hospital risk managers, physicians, practice managers, and nurses, Anne shares insight about a variety of medical, ethical and legal issues arising in the health care setting.

Since entering private practice in 1996, Anne has successfully handled several hundred malpractice cases, many of which involved catastrophic injury or death. Prior to 1996, she served as Assistant General Counsel to the Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust.
