

Third-Party Risk Intelligence for VENDOR MANAGEMENT

AR Surveillance™, Argos Risk, enables organizations to effectively quantify the risks associated with vendor third-party relationships by providing a systemic means of assessing and monitoring a third-party's level of viability.

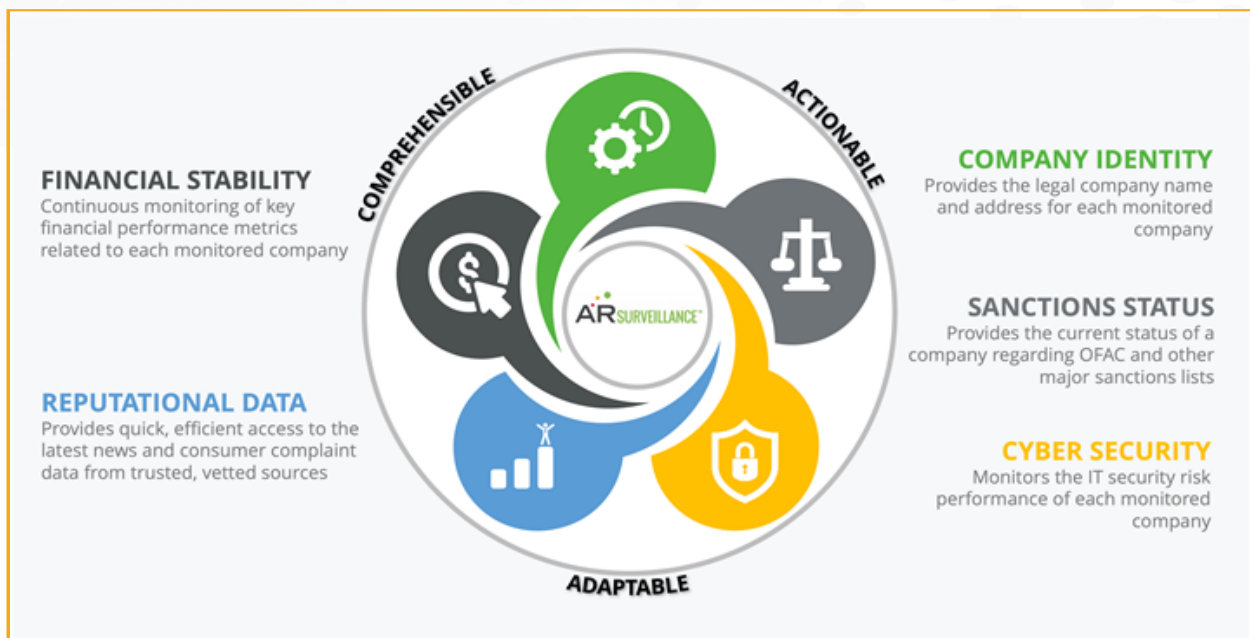

In most vendor management programs; challenges arise when a vendor is resistant to requests for information or is reluctant to provide current data. Acquiring and analyzing the information for third-party assessments is time consuming, complex, and can be the leading cause of operational bottlenecks.

With its aggregation engine and multiple vetted data sources, AR Surveillance quickly builds and maintains commercial risk profiles on millions of businesses ranging from large publicly traded organizations to smaller privately held companies. The AR Surveillance platform provides holistic insights by constantly monitoring key areas related to financial performance and stability, legal exposure, cyber security, sanctions status, reputational risks, and much more.

To enable the transformation from data to actionable intelligence, the platform leverages proprietary algorithms, called Argonomics®, to produce color-coded performance metrics that are presented on a 0 to 100 scale. This methodology provides a consistent, easy-to-understand evaluation process that any member of the organization, from the line-of-business user to the compliance auditor, can quickly adopt.

With the Holistic approach, AR Surveillance provides access to a continuous stream of data that helps answer the following common questions:

OPERATIONAL RISKS	Does the vendor have the stability to be part of your mission-critical operations?
