TIME ZONE RULES

In the Time Zone Rules application, you can specify time zone rules to identify the local date and time when you create records for a process, such as generating work orders from a preventative maintenance record.

Records can show the local date and time of the user who is accessing the record even if the record was created in a different time zone.

BUDGET MONITORING

In the new Budget Monitoring Application, you can create budget records to monitor transactions in a financial period. Monitoring budget costs can help ensure that projects or activities are completed with an agreed budget and can improve estimation of the cost of future projects. In this application, the user can: monitor maintenance budgets, configure budget monitoring, create budget records, and predefine focal points and calculator rules.

LICENSE USAGE MONITORING

You use the license usage monitor application to monitor the usage of licenses for products that are based on Tivoli's process automation engine. In addition to authorized, concurrent, express, and limited users, the cron task that is used to gather license usage data from your environment now supports concurrent express users for Maximo Asset Management. IBM Maximo Anywhere now also supports concurrent user licenses.
