Retargeting 101

Step One: Someone visits your website

Step Two: They leave your site, then start seeing your ads on other sites they visit

Step Three: They come back to your site

Retargeting 101

- Tracks who has visited your website
 - Reaches those specific people with ads on other websites
 - Advantages:
 - Reaching a “warm” audience
 - Sustained, multi-touch exposure
 - You don’t need their email

Wait. How does the ad get there?

Real-Time Bidding (RTB). Driven by web analytics data like cookies, IP address, etc.

RTB. While the page loads, a split-second auction takes place

Highest bidder's ad will load. Who is willing to pay the most for your eyeballs?

RTB = Real Time Bidding

The split-second auction process that takes place while pages with ad inventory are loading, mediated by ad exchanges

"I'm looking for X and willing to pay Y !"

Advertiser

Ad Exchange

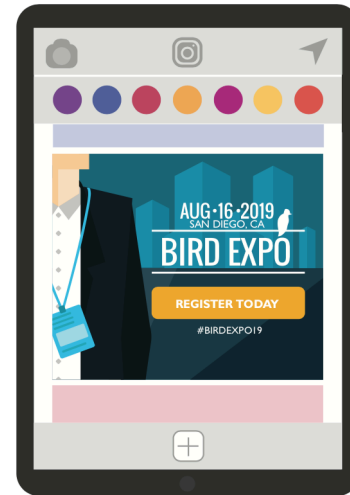

Site with
Ad Space

" X is loading my site and I have Z ad space available, who's willing to pay the most?"

A More Relevant Example: Attendee Marketing

Beyond Banners. 85% of digital ads are transacted this way – including video, social, and mobile ads

Programmatic Advertising

The automated process of purchasing digital ad inventory using RTB, based on audience targeting criteria set by the advertiser

First Party vs Third Party

- "Visitors to my website this month"
- "Female golf enthusiasts living in Alabama"
- "Subscribers to my email newsletter"
- "People who exhibit similar characteristics to..."

First-Party Audiences

Audiences from data that YOU own – for example, the email list of your members or the cookies of your website visitors

Third-Party Audiences

Paying someone else to use THEIR first-party data for your marketing campaigns – for example, “renting” an email list, or using Facebook Ads Manager

Third-Party Audiences

Audiences from someone else's first-party data – usually aggregated and resold by a data broker or data management platform (DMP)

Data Brokers/DMPs

Company offering their first-party (or aggregated third-party) audience data to marketers to either “rent” for a specific campaign or “own” for unlimited use.

Email Mapping

Email Mapping

- Data brokers pay websites (shopping, newsletters, etc) for their user login data (email + cookie)
- You upload your email list
- Data broker attempts to match your list to cookies associated with those same email addresses
- Now you can target them with ads!

The background of the slide features a light gray grid of dots. Overlaid on this grid are several small, interconnected clusters of nodes. These nodes are represented by small circles in various colors, including blue, green, and purple. Thin gray lines connect some of these nodes, forming a network-like structure that is more prominent in the upper and lower portions of the slide.

Lookalike Modeling

Lookalike Modeling

- Analyzes your existing audience (first-party data)
 - Finds similar people around the web
 - Leverages third-party data vendors to match:
 - Search + web browsing history
 - Emails \longleftrightarrow cookies \longleftrightarrow IP addresses
 - Social profiles/posts/likes
