New vs. Established Patients: When should I use a new patient E/M code vs. an established E/M code?

As with so many forms of healthcare delivery, coding for a new vs. an established patient can be confusing. In this month's CodingAlert, we will review how to properly code for each type of patient visit.

Understanding New vs. Established Patients

Prepared by: Allison Disessa, CPC, CPMA, Consultant

Defining New vs. Established Patients

New Patient

One who has not received any professional services from the physician/qualified health care professional or another physician/qualified health care professional of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, within the past three years.

- An interpretation of a diagnostic test, reading an x-ray or EKG, etc., in the absence of an E/M service or other face-to-face service with a patient does not affect the designation as a new patient.
- Physicians in the same group practice of the same specialty are to bill and be paid as though they were a single physician.

- Physicians who are of a different specialty may bill and be paid without regard to their membership in a group.

Established Patient

One who has not received any professional services from the physician/qualified health care professional or another physician/qualified health care professional of the exact same specialty and subspecialty who belongs to the same group practice, within the past three years.

- If a physician is on call or covering for another physician, a patient's encounter will be handled the same as if the unavailable physician were there.

Additional Information

- No distinction is made between new and established patients in the emergency department.
- Physicians who share the same Tax ID are part of the same group even if they are in different locations.

Comparison Chart

Common Scenarios	Established Patient	New Patient
A physician leaves a practice to join a new one. A patient follows the physician to the new practice.	Patient sees original physician at new practice. The patient is considered an established patient for all physicians of the same specialty at the practice.	Patient sees another physician in the new practice before seeing their original physician. For this physician, they are a new patient.
The professional component of a previous procedure is billed within 3 years (e.g., a lab interpretation is billed and no E/M service or other face-to-face service is billed).		This patient remains a new patient for the initial E/M visit.
A family physician sees a new patient and refers to a surgeon in the same group with the same Tax ID.		If the surgeon has not seen the patient in the past 3 years, he/she is considered a new patient since the two physicians are of different specialties.
A patient presents with a new problem within 3 years of a visit.	This is an established patient; a previous or new problem has no bearing on this. If it has been under 3 years since professional services were rendered, it is an established patient.	If it has been 3 years or more, it is a new patient.
