

Wilderness Horsemanship

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Wilderness Horsemanship Program

Students in the Wilderness Horsemanship Program will gain practical experience in working with horses in wilderness settings. In addition, they will learn how to drive wagons through various terrain, how to teach new students riding techniques, and how to properly use and repair riding equipment.

Hocking College students can also opt to take elective courses such as equine health care, equine massage, and farrier courses.

The Hocking College Equine Program observes the CHA national standards for equine welfare and rider safety. Therefore, a weight limit of 225 pounds will be observed for all mounted riding classes. Alternative hands-on non-riding exercises can be provided to those who may exceed this limit.
