

Keeping my team at their best...

VIRTUAL WORKSHOP

Our working context is changing rapidly. We are likely calling on our people to be working in new and different ways. Different things matter to different people. Leaders need to continually evolve their leadership style and behaviours to lead effectively for their team members in this environment. The most effective will lead with empathy; knowing their people and appreciating what is going on in their context.

This workshop is about gaining insight into your team members, how they are showing up in your current context and how you can lead them with greater insight, curiosity and compassion. We will use the Hogan personality tools as a 'framework' for understanding our own and others' behaviours, styles and motivators. It is not necessary to have completed the Hogan assessments to attend or gain benefit from this workshop.

Winsborough's psychologists have worked internationally with leaders and teams in war-zones, during natural disasters, business mergers, disestablishments and startups. We have coached hundreds of teams and have written the book on team psychology. Learn from deeply experienced professionals how to support you and your team's performance.

"...Very informative workshop tailored to my context with real life/practical examples."
