

Leading a team through crisis/change...

VIRTUAL WORKSHOP

How people respond under intense pressure is different from how people respond in day-to-day circumstances. Understanding the differences and how to adapt your approach is important for anyone leading through a crisis.

The Winsborough team can help you to lead, manage and support your team through a crisis. With more than 20 years' experience in the industrial-organisational psychology industry our team have both practical experience and scientific theory to support you in managing yourself and your work at home.

What's important to focus on?

There are three core areas you need to pay attention to when you're leading people in a crisis. They exist in normal circumstances too, but how you approach them during a crisis needs to be a little different:

- The Individuals
- The Team
- The Task

"...Winsborough has provided both the company and me with great insight into what is happening within the business and the SLT, and tools to make the necessary improvements to operate at a higher level..."

- Executive Leader

Managing your people, your team and the task

If you're interested in investing in Winsborough's Leading a team through crisis/change virtual workshop (one-hour) for you or your people please contact your Winsborough Account Manager, call 0800 222 061 or email support@winsborough.co.nz to REGISTER NOW.