

Dear Parents and Guardians,

During this school year your child has been learning about developing positive character traits as a part of their regular classroom routine. Your child's teacher has been using an educational video series called The Character Tree to support the efforts of character development. Each episode of The Character Tree highlights a specific character trait and a prominent figure who exemplified the trait.

As a teacher myself, I understand the importance of maintaining consistency as much as possible during this uncertain time. The Character Tree is now providing an at home access option to all of our subscribers! Personally, I am thrilled to be able to offer my students at home access during these coming weeks while we are unable to be together at our school. It is my hope that you will now be able to incorporate The Character Tree into your weekly routine at home.

If you are looking for ideas for how to create a routine using The Character Tree please visit the blog on The Character Tree website, click here. I have written several posts on how I use The Character Tree in my classroom. I wrote the posts for teachers, but I now hope they will be supportive for your at home learning efforts as well.

If you are interested in signing up for your own subscription, you may do so by clicking here. With the new home access option, your child's teacher is able to share the episodes with you, so having your own subscription account isn't necessary. However, with your own account you are able to access all of the printable materials that go with each episode. The subscription is available for free through June 30, 2020 and does not require a credit card to sign up.

We are in this together!

Sincerely,

Sara VanderWel
