About MAPSA

MAPSA, Michigan's charter school association, represents a statewide movement of charter school stakeholders. We harness the power of our charter community through direct and digital grassroots engagement, identifying their shared challenges and developing resources that support their work. We facilitate public support for the movement by utilizing our effective legislative and media avenues to build positive government relations and give the charter community a voice on issues that impact our students and educators.

MI charter schools

Charter schools are operated under autonomous school boards, allowing site-based purchasing decisions to easily be made. Charters are unique in that they are able to choose providers to partner with on a variety of services versus solely relying on an intermediate school district or layers of bureaucracy for support and products. Management companies, or educational service providers, are a common support for many charter schools, adding necessary capacity to execute both business and academic operations. Each charter school is held accountable to an authorizer by their autonomous school board. It is the culmination of these multiple stakeholders that allows charter schools to operate autonomously to continue to offer educational choice to parents and students.

WHY DIGITAL ADVERTISING?

Consumers are in digital spaces. It's where they discover new products and organizations; it's where they communicate to one another about those products and organizations. Utilizing digital advertising on a social media channel drives word-of-mouth marketing as it creates easy avenues of content sharing electronically. But that's not all. With digital mediums, you can know exactly how many people are seeing your ad and how many times they felt compelled to click on it. These unmatched analytics ensure that you can justify every dime you spend, and see the results in action.
