Geography

Welcome to the Geography department

Isle of Arran

The island lies in the Firth of Clyde between Ayr and Ardrossan, and Kintyre. The profile of the north Arran hills as seen from the Ayrshire coast is referred to as the "Sleeping Warrior", due to its resemblance to a resting human figure. The highest of these hills is Goat Fell at 873.5 metres (2,866 ft). There are three other Corbetts, all in the north east: Caisteal Abhail, Cìr Mhòr and Boinn Tarsuinn. Ben Bharrain is the highest peak in the north west at 721 metres (2,365 ft).

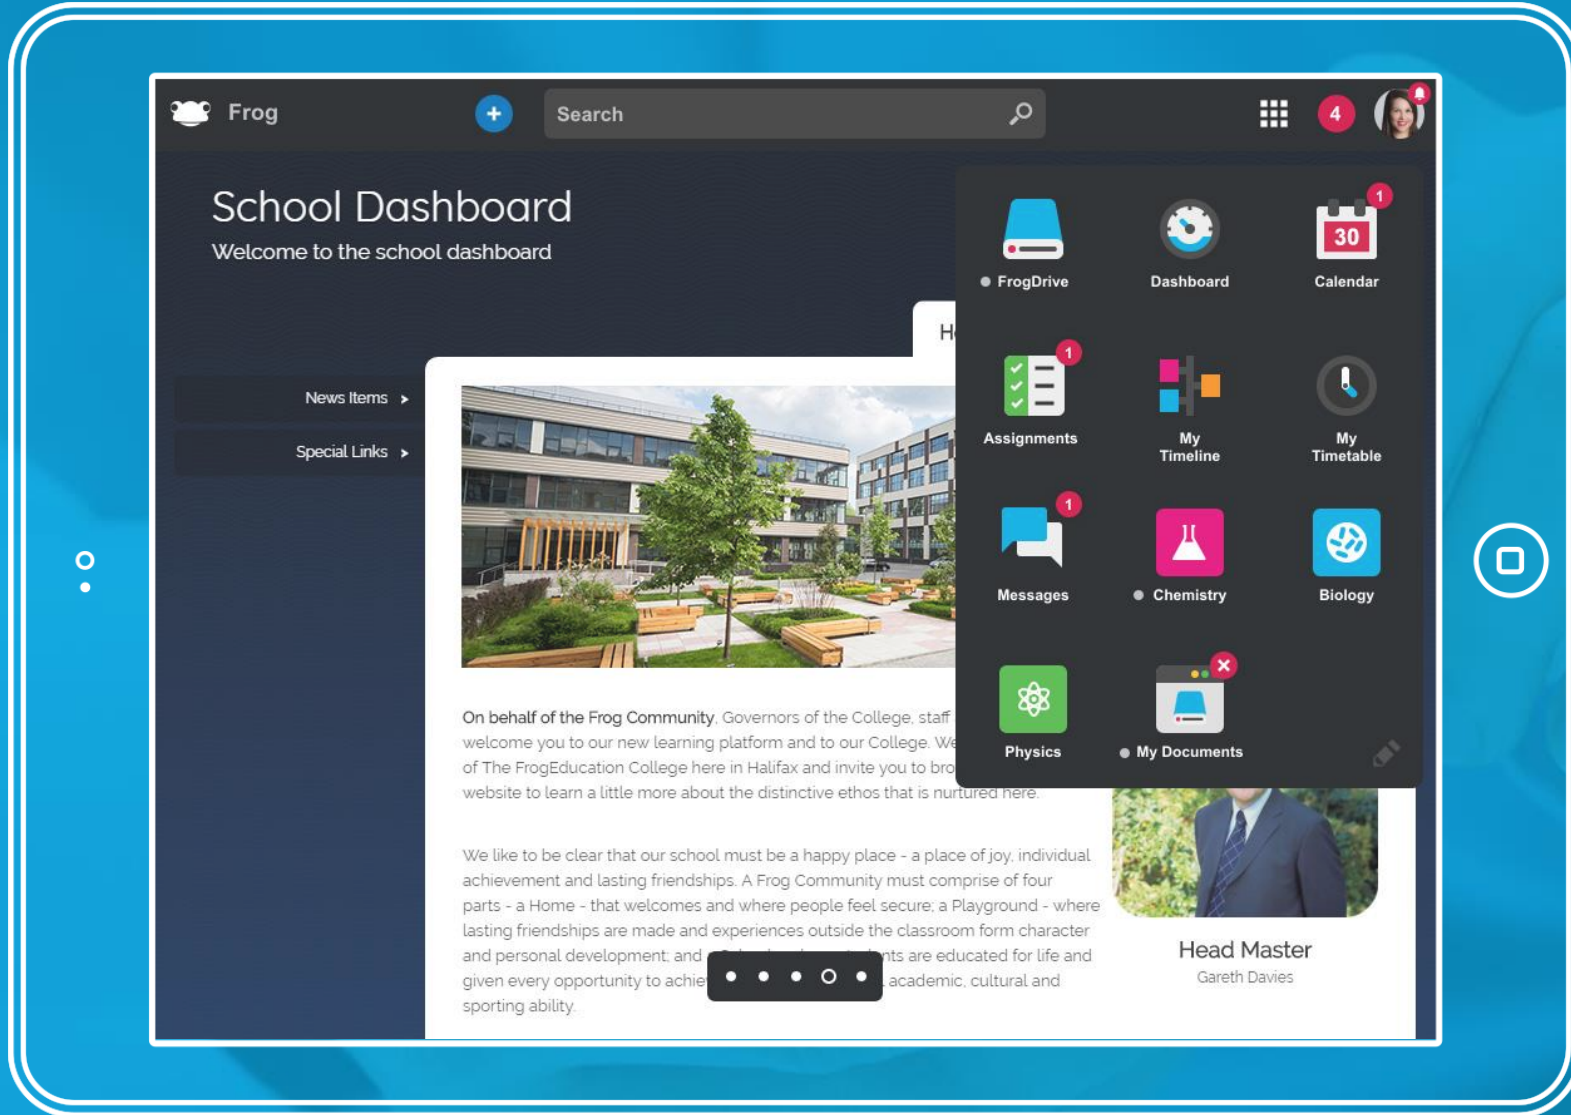

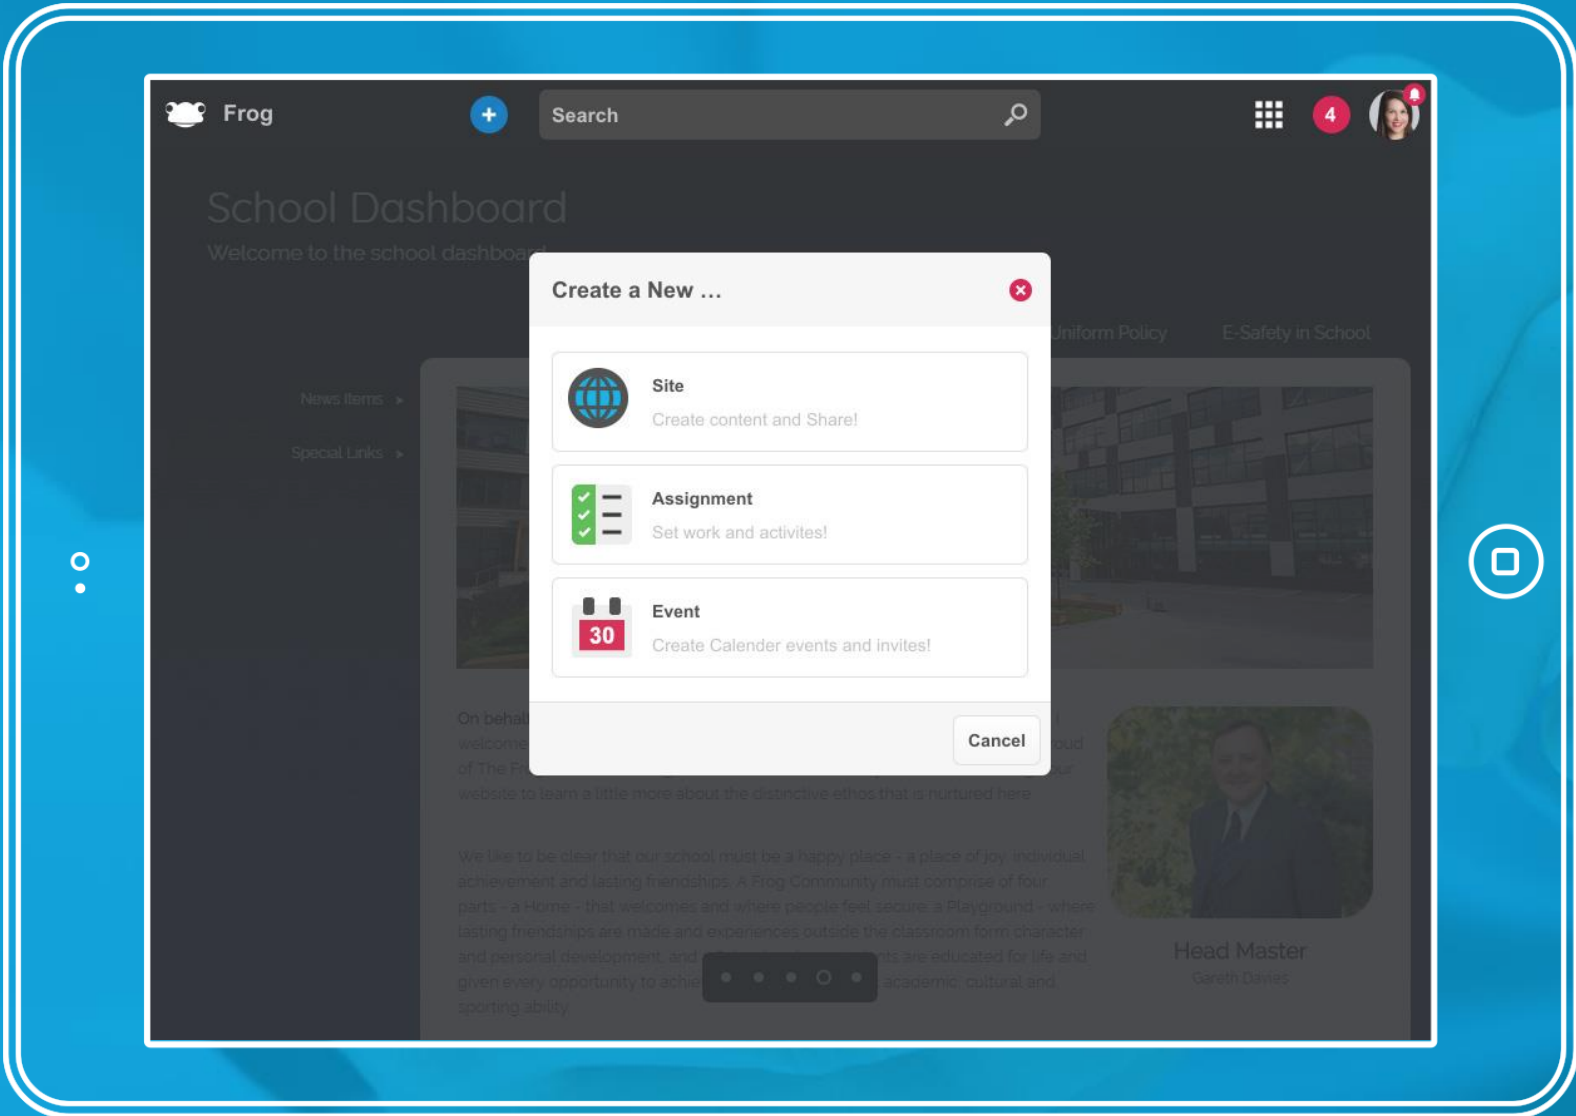

The largest valley on the island is Glen Iorsa to the west, whilst narrow Glen Sannox to the east surround Goat Fell. The terrain to the south is less mountainous, although a considerable portion of the interior lies above 350 metres (1,150 ft), and A' Chruach reaches 542 metres (1,680 ft) at its summit.
