

You've been named as an Executor.

What does it mean?

Simply put, estate administration is the process of dealing with a person's legal and tax affairs after they've died.

This means dealing with all their assets (such as property, shares and personal possessions), paying debts, paying any Inheritance Tax and Income Tax and transferring inheritance to the beneficiaries of the estate. Following a bereavement, estate administration can be extremely complex, whether or not there is a Will.

As an Executor, you are legally responsible for administering the estate and distributing the assets. This can be a time consuming and stressful experience.

That's why many Executors choose to appoint an estate administration specialist, like Kings Court Trust, to make sure everything is dealt with properly.

You're in safe hands.
