The MedTech Conference Concludes in San Jose With More Than 2,700 Attendees

SAN JOSE, CALIF. – The MedTech Conference closes its eleventh annual conference today with more than 2,700 attendees from throughout the medical technology industry, including over 630 from the state of California. Held at the San Jose McEnery Convention Center, the three-day event drew more than 1,000 companies and leaders in the medical technology industry hailing from 30 countries.

“Holding this conference in Silicon Valley was an amazing opportunity for us to bring together leaders from the worlds of innovative technology, investment and digital health to discuss the future of the medical technology industry,” said Ray Briscuso, managing partner and producer, The MedTech Conference. “Our attendance numbers are a testament to the fact that even in a world of digital connectedness, there is no replacement for coming together in person to learn, network, explore business development options and drive the industry forward.”

AdvaMed awarded its 2017 Lifetime Achievement award to Jack Wareham in recognition of his industry leadership in his role at Beckman Coulter.

Additional event highlights included:

- Nearly 1,500 business development meetings scheduled through the MedTech Connect platform, a 20 percent increase over 2016;
- 180 exhibitors displayed their latest products and services in the conference’s largest-ever Exhibit Hall;
- 50 MedTech Innovator Showcase company presentations featuring the latest in cutting-edge medical technologies and diagnostics;
- 31 educational panels organized into four tracks;
- New programming features including eight MedTech Exec Talks, six Solutions Showcase sessions, five International Lounge presentations, five patient panels, and five Innovation Pavilion presentations.
- 12 CEOs Unplugged sessions featuring leaders from companies such as Flex Medical, B.Braun Medical and ResMed; and
- $350,000 awarded to MedTech Innovator winner Day Zero Diagnostics based on a live audience vote.
