Gifted with a classic jump shot, Debbie Haliday took the world of female athletics by storm from an early age. Her drive and talent led her to compete at UCLA on the women's basketball and softball teams, winning national championships in both sports. Dedicated to expanding opportunities for women in sports, Debbie spent the bulk of her career teaching and coaching various sports teams, inspiring students and athletes to fulfill their true potential. Committed to giving back, Debbie currently directs the non-profit Restoration Sports, which serves women and children. Don't miss the chance to hear an accomplished coach and athlete as she shares life lessons that will inspire you to succeed in the workplace.
