If that is you, take a look at this...

COLIBO

Colibo is an Aarhus-based startup, that works with private, public, global and local clients. Our product is digital workplace platform, known as an intuitive, user-friendly intranet which helps the customer solve daily challenges, improve internal communication and expand their work-related knowledge. Colibo brings organizations together.

YOU

We expect you to be nice and curious, eager to learn, but also to already have some hard skills, including:

- Angular or other frontend SPA-framework (react, vue, ember etc.)
- Javascript, preferably TypeScript
- HTML and CSS (less, sass)

THE TECHNOLOGY STACK

Aside from the frontend, we are very committed to the MS-stack. The backend runs .net, MSSQL. We use elasticsearch for enterprise search. We use git for versioning and Azure Dev-ops for processes.

WE OFFER

- A great place to learn and grow and gain experience as a frontend developer
- An internship where you work as an equal part of the development team, with an as signed mentor.
- A professional, yet relaxed, workplace with downtown office, free lunch, and lots of social events.

WHAT NOW?

Send your motivated application and resumé to fbb@colibo.com.
We look forward reading it!

At Colibo, I get to develop my skills through a large range of different tasks. I especially like the interdisciplinary teamwork, where we e.g. have conducted a workshop, where everyone had the chance to bring in new ideas. As an intern, it is really cool to be a part of the development of a startup and play a more central role than I would have done in a larger company. I get a lot of responsibility, and I have the freedom to impact my work day so it fits my personal interests and studies.
