Perfectly, infinitely & forever loved by Bishop Gary Gordon, from his Homily at the Mass of Confirmation, Christ the King Parish

I want to tell you three reasons why this is my favourite time of the year. First of all, it’s Easter-time, and that is the great season we celebrate our life, because Jesus has risen from the dead and has given us life. So that is the number one reason why this is my favourite time of year.

Number two reason is, it’s springtime! I love springtime! I love seeing stuff grow out of the earth, and blooms, and the golf courses get into great shape, and, ah, there are so many wonderful things about springtime and when I was up north as a Bishop in the Yukon, springtime was even more powerful because it meant now the water wasn’t frozen anymore, and I could go fishing. So, springtime, number two reason.

And the third reason this is my favourite time of year is, I get to visit you! And I get to celebrate the Sacrament of Confirmation with you, and with all the other people in the Diocese.

So those are my three reasons why this is my favourite time of the year. And whenever God gives us three really good things: Confirmation, springtime, and Jesus rising from the dead, I say, “thank you.” That’s what fills my heart—gratitude and thanksgiving.

It’s the most important word we can ever have in our lives: gratitude, thank you. Every language in the world has a word for ‘thank you’, because those are the most important words: a human being can ever have. I’ll bet you probably say ‘thank you’ at least 50 times a day! Somebody passes you the salt at the table. “Thank you!” Somebody gives you the sugar. “Thank you!” Somebody passes you the ketchup, or somebody says, “gee, you’ve got a nice jacket.” “Thank you!” “Oh, gee, you’ve got beautiful blue eyes.” “Oh, thank you.”

And here you are. You have clearly understood what you are undertaking? And moms and dads, you said, “Yes!”

And here you are. You have clearly understood what you are undertaking? And moms and dads, you said, “Yes!”

And here you are. You have clearly understood what you are undertaking? And moms and dads, you said, “Yes!”

And here you are. You have clearly understood what you are undertaking? And moms and dads, you said, “Yes!”

And here you are. You have clearly understood what you are undertaking? And moms and dads, you said, “Yes!”

Now, I must let you know that they will also grow and become teenagers. And there will be a few more challenges to continue to raise them in the practice of the Faith, but God’s grace and gift is with you in this marvellous, beautiful adventure of family life. Thank you.

Now, boys and girls, I want to leave you with a very special word, and it is the word Confirmation. You're going to be confirmed in the power and grace of the Holy Spirit, Jesus and his Father in heaven have sent the Holy Spirit for one reason only: so that you will be confirmed today, tomorrow and for the rest of your life, that you are infinitely, perfectly, compassionately, mercifully, and forever loved by God. That is what the Holy Spirit does. It opens your heart, and your mind, and your soul to always know that you are infinitely, perfectly, eternally loved by God. That's the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Sometimes when I talk to kids in classrooms, they put up their hand and they say, "But what if …?" We all have the but ifs in our lives. "Bishop, what if I do something really bad? Will God always love me perfectly, infinitely and forever?"

"Yup." Because God's love is perfect in mercy and forgiveness.

I remember one kid a few weeks ago, put up his hand and said, "Bishop, what if I end up in jail? Will God love me perfectly, infinitely and forever?"

"Yup." God never tires of forgiving us.

Nothing can change God's mind that He loves you. That's what the Holy Spirit is for. It's to convince you of His love.

That is what the Holy Spirit does. It opens your heart, and your mind, and your soul to always know that you are infinitely, perfectly, eternally loved by God. That's the Catholic Faith—and it's that simple.

And then, you're going to receive your first Holy Communion. The gift of Jesus' Holy Communion will give you the courage and the strength to love your neighbour, and everybody else, as much as Jesus loves them. That's what Holy Communion does. That's why we go and receive Holy Communion every Sunday, because—well, you're probably better than I am—but I always need help to love everybody as perfectly as Jesus loves them. So every week, every day, I receive Jesus in Holy Communion, so that I can have the courage, and the strength and the grace to always love as perfectly as Jesus loves.

So today we celebrate the great gift of love. God's love for you, the gift of God's love for you, in the power of the Holy Spirit. This is the greatest gift we can receive. And, our greatest vocation, our greatest calling, our greatest work on this earth, is to love everyone, others, our brothers and sisters, as much as Jesus loves them. Isn't that something?

And you all thought that the Catholic Faith was complicated! It can't get any simpler than that, brothers and sisters. It's really simple. I know you kids have spent a whole year in catechism, learning all kinds of good stuff, and I'm glad that you've learned it. I'm not going to ask you any questions. I'll bet your teachers probably said, "The Bishop's going to ask you questions." Did your teacher tell you that?

I'm not asking you any questions. I just want you to be convinced that the power of the Holy Spirit will open your heart more, and more, and more, to receive God's love, and that Jesus, in Holy Communion, will open your heart more, and more, and more, to give love to others.

That's the Catholic Faith—and it's that simple. ☪
Thursday, May 12, 2016, may have seemed like any other ordinary day with the sun high in the sky and not a cloud in sight. It was the perfect day to be in and around downtown Victoria, walk by the tourist shops on Government Street, and sit on the grass in front of the BC Legislature.

But this was no ordinary day. This was the day of the annual March for Life. This was the day that 2,700 British Columbians from across Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the mainland came out and stood beside one another to voice their concerns to the politicians who represent us. There was no better way to top an ordinary day than to walk with and among people voicing their concerns over the many loopholes in Bill C-14. This year’s theme, ‘Caring Not Killing’, highlights the need to relieve suffering by caring for patients, not through euthanasia or assisted suicide.

For the first time at the March, two MLAs were present and spoke at the rally: Laurie Throness of Chilliwack-Hope and Marc Dalton of Maple Ridge & Mission. Their words and their presence was very much needed in a crucial time of Canada’s history. Both MLAs showed their concern over the long-term impacts of assisted suicide in our society and will continue to work for a provincial policy that would protect the weak and the consciences of BC physicians, and look to promote palliative and hospice care.

Other speakers at the rally who spoke on the theme for the March included Joanna Krawczynski, the Western Campus Coordinator of National Campus Life Network; Anna Nienhuis of Reformed Political Action; Dr. Will Johnston, a Vancouver family physician and Chair of the Euthanasia Prevention Coalition of BC; and Natalie Sonnen, Director of LifeCanada. Also speaking at the March was Mike Schouten of We Need a Law who gave the attendees an update on Bill C-225 otherwise known as Cassie and Molly’s law.

Bishop Gary Gordon said it best during his homily: “As witnesses to life, the Gospel of Life, and the infinite mercy of the Father, we have the opportunity to give dignity to people’s lives.” If passed, Bill C-14 will have a large impact on Canadian society; and it will challenge us, as Catholics, to act on our very identity, to show our neighbours the love that they deserve, regardless of age or ability.

Welcome!
by Denise Helm, St. Patrick’s Parish, Victoria

“For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me...”
~ Matthew 25: 35

The message is simple and heartfelt—welcome.

Across the Diocese of Victoria, parish committees are quietly well into the process of sponsoring refugee families in Canada. While other groups’ efforts on Vancouver Island have been more prominent in the media, you don’t have to look far to appreciate the efforts that Catholic communities are undertaking in this Year of Mercy.

On a recent spring evening, two dozen people from Refugee Sponsorship Committees gathered around a Victoria boardroom table to share information and learn from each other. The compassion, dedication and enthusiasm were evident.

Thousands of kilometers away, Christian families forced to flee from their homes in Iraq to Jordan and Turkey due to threats and persecution anxiously wait to begin a new life on Vancouver Island.

As of early May, nine parishes on Vancouver Island have refugee sponsorship committees and are working on detailed preparations. Progress to date wouldn’t be possible without the resources and support in the wider community, most notably the Anglican Diocese of BC, which has many years’ experience with refugee settlement. It is our Diocese’s partnership with the Anglican Diocese that has enabled our parishes to sponsor refugees under their Sponsorship Agreement with the federal government.

The amount of work being done by refugee committees is tremendous, and includes completing detailed application forms, preparing a budget, applying for various federal and provincial supports, developing settlement plans, raising funds to support a family for a year (minimum $40,000), finding and outfitting accommodation, arranging for translators, finding dentists, doctors and other professionals willing to help, and even starting English language training—and all this before the families arrive and their orientation and new lives begin, which will require preparations to resettle refugee families.

Fr. Karam Alraban, the pastor at Parksville’s Church of the Ascension and an Iraqi refugee himself, was asked by Bishop Gary Gordon to help with the effort to sponsor families from the Middle East. To that end he prepared a list of 13 families through his contacts and it is primarily those families that the committees hope to sponsor.

Parish Committees

Church of Ascension—Parksville

We hit the ground running in December and with God’s blessings and with generous parish and greater community support, $63,000 was raised in less than a month. Our Iraqi family comprises a mother, father and baby who were exiled to Syria and later to Lebanon where the husband works as a mechanic and the mother is caring for the baby and learning English. We know the wait will be long since Iraq and Syria no longer have priority in the Canadian immigration process as they did earlier, but we remain optimistic. We are blessed to have Fr. Karam leading us through the training, and thankful for his knowledge of how to work with a culture very different from our own, along with an understanding of the challenges refugees face in leaving their home and loved ones.

Trinity—Nanaimo

Trinity CARES is a joint project of the Trinity Catholic and Trinity United parishes in Nanaimo to sponsor a Christian family from Iraq who fled when ISIS invaded their town in 2014. The family, a mother and father, 20-year-old daughter and 18-year-old son, left everything behind to seek asylum in Turkey where they now live, unable to go to school or work. In just one week, Trinity CARES raised about one third of the $45,000 required by government to help the family establish themselves, and we continue to fundraise with great community support.

St. Rose of Lima—Sooke

The Team Sooke/Juan de Fuca Refugee Sponsorship Committee is all about a community working together to respond to the worldwide refugee crisis. St. Rose of Lima parish is the lead agent, with team members from the parish, other faith groups, and the wider community. The people of Sooke and the Juan de Fuca electoral area have been generous with their donations and enthusiastic in their support. We have the funds and volunteers we need for sponsorship, and were recently matched with an Iraqi family of four, a mother and father and two daughters aged 13 and 20. They were forced to flee their home in Mosul when it was overtaken by ISIS and are now refugees in Lebanon.

Holy Cross—Saanich

Holy Cross, with support from St. Patrick’s and St. Joseph the Worker parishes, began its refugee sponsorship process last fall. With a donation from the Franciscan Missionary Union, St. Patrick’s is now sponsoring its own family. The two parishes, with support from St. Joseph the Worker, are sponsoring three generations of Iraqi refugees. Our family—Martin, his wife Sandra and two daughters, aged two and four—fled their home in Iraq and have taken refuge in Turkey. Also, we have a family at Holy Cross—A Group of Five—that is sponsoring another young refugee family from Iraq. We are still looking for Arabic speakers to provide translation services and initial and long-term accommodation.

St. Patrick’s—Oak Bay

St. Patrick’s and the Franciscan Community are sponsoring an Iraqi couple with their toddler son, as well as the father’s mother. Forced to relocate twice due to death threats and religious persecution, the family is currently in Turkey. They are eager to come to Victoria and a parish member is teaching them English via Skype. Our committee’s regular meetings have reaffirmed the wealth of compassion, service to community and importance of our Catholic faith in planning for our family’s arrival. The connections we are building across Victoria and the generous help from different groups in the community are inspiring.

At the time of writing we learned that the federal government has limited the intake of refugees into Canada citing backlogs and limited resources for processing applicants. This has directly impacted one of our parishes whose refugee family reluctantly opted for settlement in Australia when faced with the current uncertainty of the Canadian system. Another letter writing campaign has started in the hopes of convincing the federal government to reverse its decision and dedicate more funds to processing refugee applications.

Diocesan Messenger – Summer 2016
Executive Director appointment

Press Release

The Boards of Directors of the Catholic Health Association of BC and the Denominational Health Association are pleased to welcome Robert J. (Bob) Breen MSC, RCID to the role of Executive Director, effective February 29, 2016. This role is pivotal, under Bob’s leadership, in promoting awareness of the Associations and their initiatives in advancing faith-based healthcare in the province. Bob brings to the position a stellar senior executive career with expertise in creating a vision, building partnerships, and enhancing customer service and operational efficiency.

The Boards look forward to working with Bob as he develops the future strategy to guide the work of the Associations.

The Boards are deeply thankful to Susan House, our retiring Executive Director, for her more than two decades of commitment and dedication to the Associations and commends her on the significant role she has played in developing both Associations and executing their missions.

Peace Pen Award

Press Release

Yvonne Zarowny from Qualicum Beach, BC, has been selected by an independent panel as the recipient of the 2015 Leo Kurtenbach Award presented to a contributor to Letters to the Editor of the Prairie Messenger. Relevants, well-resourced and challenging are some of the words used to describe Zarowny’s winning letter for 2015. Her letter, titled ISIS responding to corporate capitalism’s equally nasty war, drew the attention of the panel as one presenting a fuller story of the ISIS crisis and what may offer potential for more peaceful solutions.

Zarowny has received the third Peace Pen Award which was established honouring Leo Kurtenbach, now 96, avid reader and researcher, dedicated and influential writer for peace.

Solidarity in action

by Yvonne Zarowny, Co-Chair Church of the Ascension Social Justice Committee

Lent is annually a time of learning, renewal, and taking reflective action so we can be vessels through which God’s Love is known in our battered world.

In Misericordiae Vultus, Pope Francis reminds us the practice of pilgrimage deepens our love and compassion towards all those denied life with dignity.

In Laudato Si’, the Pope calls on each of us to be compassionate change agents in order to stop the destruction of ourselves and our common home. He also reminds us “all is interconnected,” that environmental devastation generates human suffering which destabilizes societies and this can trigger armed conflict which in turn increases the environmental devastation … and deeper into the chasm we go.

Syria is an example of how everything is interconnected. There was an extended drought in Syria beginning in 2006; by 2008, when Syria asked for assistance, there were over one million internally displaced Syrians. This is in addition to the 1.5 million Iraqis escaping the increasing chaos following the 2003 invasion and occupation of their country. The international response to the 2008 Syrian plea for assistance was inadequate. By 2011 there were over five million internally displaced Syrians, plus an increasing number of Iraqis.

On Friday February 12, 2016, Katrina Laquian, the BC/Yukon Animator for Development and Peace, provided a brief overview of the variety of projects enabled in this troubled region through Share Lent and Emergency Assistance donations. These include community building projects such as those where people are trained in conflict resolution; and the creation of child-friendly spaces.

Fr. Karam Alraban shared some of his personal experiences. He also outlined some of the ways in which his former parishioners were assisted through our Caritas Canada partners—such as having their medical bills for chronic illness paid.

Katrina stressed the need for social solutions to social problems. Through your donations to Share Lent you have assisted in laying the ground work for birthing a new Creation.

Joyfully Serving the Lord

by Christa Grillmair

Milestones were reached for Eileen Little, when the St. Peter’s Council in Nainaimo honoured her 70th anniversary as a member of the Catholic Women’s League of Canada (CWL). And this year she will be celebrating her 90th birthday. This vibrant and dynamic woman has had an incredible life’s journey.

Eileen was born in England and throughout her young years had her parents as role models. She was taught by the Sisters of St. John of the Cross and was an active participant in her faith.

Life changed dramatically when war came and the air raid sirens would hustle all to seek shelter. Everyone in England had to register for national service upon reaching the age of 17, so Eileen trained as a surgical nurse. This was a traumatic period to her faith.

In December 1944, she met a young Canadian who literally swept her off her feet by dancing all night. They were engaged in February and married in June of 1945.

In 1957, when an appeal came for homes for Hungarian refugees who were fleeing the revolution in their homeland, she and her husband, Ernie, responded. A young couple was assigned to them and they helped them find work and get settled in their new country. Eileen continued her good works for the CWL and says that especially proud when her parents came from England to watch them ride by.

In 1977, the family moved to ‘the little farm in Cedar’ (BC) where she and Ernie lived until his death a few months after their 65th wedding anniversary. Eileen was invited to attend her first CWL meeting. They gave her a gift, welcomed her throughout pregnancy and delivery. In 1970, she was awarded ‘Mother of the Year’ and was honored to ride a convertible in the Klondike Days parade; especially proud when her parents came from England to watch them ride by.

In 1977, the family moved to ‘the little farm in Cedar’ (BC) where she and Ernie lived until his death a few months after their 65th wedding anniversary. Eileen joined the CWL Council at St. Mary’s in Ladysmith. Now living in Nainaimo, Eileen is a member of St. Peter’s Parish, having worked on the parish council as Ecumenical chair, serving as President of the CWL and conducting leadership courses.

In the mid-eighties, Eileen organized a club for immigrant women to help them become more at home in Canada and Nainaimo. Throughout her life, Eileen has been encouraging women to leave the confining limits of their everyday surroundings and experience something new. Her life is a true example of how a young woman from another country can make such a difference. As we continue to welcome refugees to our country and neighborhood, Eileen’s life story and service to God and Canada should be an example and guideline for all of us.
“W”e are a small group of people from different parishes who gather at the Pastoral Centre once a month to write on behalf of those who are being persecuted because of their beliefs. We write to kings and presidents, to government ministers and diplomats, to police chiefs and other officials. We write to protest the incarceration and torture of prisoners of conscience and human rights workers. We write to draw the attention of our own politicians to unjust laws that affect our citizens and those in the Global south.” (Aidenn Lydon)

The Letter Writing Group began over thirty years ago as a Fall Action of Development and Peace. Aidenn Lydon was there at the beginning and she is still active. This is a very loosely structured group that sees itself as an outreach based on Gospel teaching. Non Government Organizations like Kairos Canada, Development and Peace, and Amnesty International send out ‘Urgent Actions’ with details of human rights abuses all over the world and the group—however many are able to attend that month—responds with letters of support for the victims.

The Letter Writing Group is looking to expand its membership. Join us for a two-hour session on the first Monday of every month at 9:30 AM at the Pastoral Centre, 1 – 4044 Nethorpe Street in Victoria. You will be most welcome. For more information, phone (250) 658-8654.

Church of the Ascension annual baby shower

by Sandi Digras

The Parish hall at the Church of the Ascension was awash in pink and blue as the Catholic Women’s League hosted the Annual Crossroads Crisis Pregnancy Centre’s Baby Shower.

Approximately 106 people attended. There were table reservations for the Parksville Fellowship Baptist Church and St. Peter’s parish in Nanaimo. We were pleased to have folks from Knox Presbyterian Church and the Salvation Army in Port Alberni; St. Mark’s Anglican Church and St. Stephen’s United Church from Qualicum Beach; and Our Saviour Lutheran Church in Parksville. These lovely visitors brought baby gifts and donations totalling $1,080 to assist the Centre’s Director, Kirsten Emmanuel, and her staff in their amazing work with mothers and fathers who are in stressful circumstances.

Anne Byrne, coordinator of the event, assembled a wonderful group of Kitchen Angels to prepare a delicious lunch while I was lucky enough to have a great team of volunteers doing everything from set up to clearing away. Volunteers from St. Andrew’s, St. John’s and St. Mary’s Church, as well as local craftspeople, worked their magic on the hall. Lovely baby-themed centrepieces were created by ladies from Port Alberni. As Emcee and game animator, I invited the ladies to pit their wits with fun quizzes and guessing games.

Our guest speakers, Kirsten Emmanuel and Elizabeth Nickels, shared their stories of grandmothering trying to assist young mothers during pregnancy and delivery; a father left to care for four children under the age of five, including a newborn; and mothers who thought they wanted to abort until they felt the hand of God—and were then happy to welcome their children.

Crossroads helped over 260 babies in 2015 and anticipates even more demand in 2016. The donations offered and gifts “go a long way to helping our clients to have a head start in their lives.”

This event was begun forty years ago when a parishioner named Elaine Vanderbyl saw the need to help unwed mothers and their babies. Elaine gathered a group of Catholic Women’s League members, and started what is now a much bigger event. Sadly, Elaine passed away in late 2015; her family assembled at Church of the Ascension to pay tribute at her funeral to her many contributions. It was our pleasure to acknowledge her at this year’s shower. Her niece and nephew-in-law, Cheryl and Dave McDougall commented:

“Our family is honored that you are recognizing Auntie Elaine’s vision, drive and commitment. She talked about how the Pregnancy Crisis Centre was growing and was very proud to be a part of supporting women.”

Our President Nancy Horsfield summed it up when she thanked everyone for attending and said “this is what the Catholic Women’s League is about: fellowship, love and helping the community.”

Creating a climate of change in the Diocese of Victoria

by Christine O’Leary, current Diocesan chair, Development and Peace, Caritas Canada

2017 will mark the 50th anniversary of The Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace. The Pilgrimage of the Solidarity Quilt project was initiated as a way to represent all parts of Canada in the celebration. The quilt piece for the Diocese of Victoria was created by Katheryn Boudreau; an antique priestly vestments from the archives were incorporated into a design featuring iconic symbols of the West Coast. The quilt piece then travelled on to the rest of Canada, where it will be stitched together with pieces from all the other dioceses. A celebratory ritual was presented on Ash Wednesday at St. Andrew’s Cathedral to exhibit the quilt piece and share the history of the organization.

The Share Lent campaign this year continued the Create a Climate of Change theme, facilitated in each parish by a Development and Peace representative. Resources created by Development and Peace and were widely used, and it was especially good to see so many parishes had organized special presentations and hosted events. The total donation amount will not be known until later in the year.

On April 16, Bishop Gary led a retreat held at Trinity Catholic church in Nanaimo, hosted by the CWL Diocesan Council. Bishop Gary chose Interdependence, Communion and Solidarity in relation to Laudato Si’ as the theme. The Pope’s Encyclical had inspired the Fall and Share Lent ‘Create A Climate of Change’ campaigns, so this theme was timely. We were asked to ponder those now familiar questions: “What kind of world do we want to leave to our children? What is the purpose of our life in this world? Why are we here? What is the goal of our work and all our efforts? What need does the earth have of us?” (LS 60) As the retreat ended, we felt challenged to seek the answers to those questions.

Over the weekend of April 29 to May 1, delegates and a few Development and Peace staff met in Cache Creek, BC. This annual conference provides a welcome opportunity for council chairs from other dioceses to meet, as well as hear updates from staff on current initiatives. As we relaxed around the outdoor fire at the end of the second day gazing up at the canopy of twinkling stars above us, we felt a renewed commitment to creating a climate of change so we can build a just world.

Earth Walk in Victoria

by Nancy Stuart

It was a loud, joyous group that led 300 people down Government Street on Saturday, April 23, 2016—Earth Day—for the 36th annual Walk for Peace and the Planet. Many different banners illustrated the various organizations that were walking to save the planet. Development and Peace was there with their banner ‘Create a climate of change’.

The walk started at the Legislative Buildings and ended at Centennial Square, where people were entertained with music. A few organizations had display tables and people mingled and enjoyed the atmosphere. It was an opportunity to network with other people and organizations that care about our planet and are working towards a sustainable future.

Pope Francis has called us to care for creation in his Encyclical Laudato Si’. Development and Peace will continue to bring this message to our Canadian citizens and our local, provincial and federal politicians.
Guided by the spirit
by Christa Grillmair

More than 100 women gathered in Courtenay at the beginning of May for the 88th Annual Diocese of Victoria Convention of the Catholic Women’s League (CWL). The theme of the convention was ‘Guided by the Spirit,’ and from the opening Eucharistic celebration by Fr. Mel Bayron, Diocesan Spiritual Advisor, to the closing Mass by Most Reverend Gary Gordon, Bishop of the Diocese of Victoria, the Spirit was very much the guide throughout the convention.

Keynote speakers included Dr. Margaret Keresztesi who shared her 40+ years as a physician on end-of-life care and the need for increased palliative and hospice care in light of Bill C-14 (Medical Aid in Dying). Evelyn Rigby, BC and Yukon Provincial Council President-Elect, challenged the attendees to step out in faith to offer their leadership. And, focusing on the Corporal Works of Mercy: visiting the imprisoned, Bishop Gary Gordon, demonstrated how a restorative justice program would be a more holistic approach where the person, family and community are included in the rehabilitation program, as compared to traditional criminal justice that deals with law and punishment. Special guests included Vera and Liz Little from Ahousaht.

At the closing Mass, Agnes Geiger was honored with Life Membership in the CWL and the new executive was installed: President Maureen Ingram, Past-President Blanca Stead, President-Elect and Organization Christa Grillmair, 1st Vice President and Treasurer Laurel Phyall, 2nd Vice President and Christian Family Life Bertha Landrie, Secretary Daisy Mah and Spiritual Development Pat Darling; and Communications, Sandi Digras.

Spring fashion show
by Sandi Digras

The Catholic Women’s League of the Church of the Ascension hosted a Black-and-White Mother’s Day Spring Fashion Event on Thursday, May 5, 2016. From the polka dot table runners to the prizes all wrapped in black and white, the 2016 Mother’s Day show was an elegant affair. Members of the Executive from St. Peter’s Council and Evelyn Rigby, incoming President of the Provincial CWL, were there to help support this wonderful Fashion Event. Over 127 guests were escorted and served by tuxedo-clad members of the Knights of Columbus.

As Coordinator of the event and Emcee I was thrilled with the response and am so thankful for Sandy Herle, the owner of Close to You clothing store in Parksville whose beautiful fashions made this event such a special event. President Nancy Horstfeld commented, “We were so pleased with the success of this year’s event which raised over $3,000 for two local charities: The Oceanside Hospice and Haven House.”

A mission of mercy and compassion

by The Diocesan Health Care Committee

The Diocesan Health Care Committee (DHCC) was formed in 2007 to serve in a consultative capacity on current healthcare and ethical issues, needs and concerns. The committee is composed of women and men with diverse backgrounds, experience in the ministry of caring for the sick and the elderly, and who represent all the regions of the Diocese of Victoria.

Bishop Gary Gordon, Moira King (Chair), Fr. Alfredo Monacelli (Bishop’s representative to Catholic Health Care), Gerry Herkel, Michael Pontus, Marilyn Klitz, Dana Mellis, Marian Lord, Patricia Gunton, Mary McGovern and Derek Pinto meet approximately every three months. Various parishes within the Diocese host the meetings.

The Vision and Mission Statements recently adopted for our Committee are:

Vision
A Diocese where the healing ministry of Jesus Christ is an integral, vibrant, and evident part of each parish and parishioner’s expression of the Catholic Faith.

Mission
The Diocesan Health Care Committee is an advisory council to the Bishop, fostering and supporting pastoral care to our parishes and homes. Its role includes:

- education about current healthcare and ethical issues;
- promotion of the healing ministry of Jesus Christ; and,
- help in strengthening pastoral healthcare ministry in our parishes.

The overarching vision relates to two pillars:

Pillar 1: Leadership and direction in health training and learning
The committee creates initiatives designed to address health concerns and assist with implementation. Presentations are offered covering such topics as biblical, theological and ethical perspectives on healthcare issues like Fr. Mark Miller’s 2015 and Dr. Moira McQueen’s 2016 presentations regarding End of Life and Palliative Care topics. These talks were very current given the decision by the Supreme Court of Canada to overturn the law prohibiting physician-assisted suicide.

Another initiative is the Pastoral Care Outreach Training Program, designed to assist parishioners involved in hospital, homebound, extended care and bereavement ministries.

Pillar 2: To provide a robust healing ministry in our parishes
The Diocesan Health Care Committee, under the guidance of the Bishop, also seeks out greater ways to assist Pastors and Parish Pastoral Council members with the pastoral healthcare ministry within parishes to share in the mission of Jesus Christ. This involves connections with agencies such as Island Health, and other Catholic, Christian and Interfaith Health Care Institutions and Associations.

Should you require more information about the Diocesan Health Care Committee, please contact Moira King, Chair, via email at moiraking@shaw.ca.

The completion of life’s faith journey

by Sandi Digras

At the April Catholic Women’s League meeting, Gerry Herkel gave a presentation on euthanasia and physician-assisted suicide at the Church of the Ascension. His presentation was most timely as this was the day the federal government introduced its Assisted Dying Bill.

In his talk, Gerry presented the teaching of the Catholic Church on end-of-life care, society’s expectations around medical technology, and some of the main reasons why people request euthanasia or physician assisted suicide. Pain management, nutrition and hydration, and palliative and hospice care were also discussed. In addition, he commented on what has and is happening in Belgium and the Netherlands since introducing laws allowing physician assisted suicide and euthanasia.

Gerry concluded his presentation by noting that a good death is still possible today without resorting to euthanasia and/or physician-assisted suicide, and that death is the completion of life in our journey of faith, love, and family.
Island Catholic Schools

Proclaim Jesus with loving hearts

_by Beverly Pulyk, Superintendent, Island Catholic Schools_

Catholic school leaders from across the province gathered in mid-April to reflect on what it means to Proclaim Jesus with Loving Hearts. Leah Perrault, who is the Executive Lead of Governance Advancement for Emmanual Care (Catholic Health Ministry of Saskatchewan), challenged approximately 40 administrators, school pastors and board members in their roles as leaders and more importantly as Catholics.

“We are Christ’s disciples—are we stuck in the Upper Room, or are we out there living the mission he has called us to?”

In the first session, _When Jesus is just a J-Word_, Leah guided participants through three stages of Christian History. From the Early Church (301-321) to Cultural Christianity (312-1960s) to Missionary Disciples (1960s on), we have seen the Church grow from a small group of disciples to a strong institutional church, to a struggling and what some might say a crumbling church, in a society where the name of Jesus is just a name. If so, what does that mean for Catholic school leaders—or for that matter, any Catholic?

Leah asked us to reflect on the following. Are we, as disciples, stuck in the Upper Room, mourning the loss of the Church of yesterday? We need to get out of the Upper Room and be Christ’s disciples in the world today as it is. We must recognize that as disciples we are called to: evangelize—to introduce people to this person named Jesus; to facilitate encounters with Jesus; share—to share the wisdom of the disciples who have come before us; and, educate—to teach others about our faith.

As disciples we must keep in mind the five stages of conversion (trust, spiritual curiosity, spiritual openness, spiritual seeking, and intentional discipleship). Without trust as the starting point, the rest remains futile.

In the second session, _Turns Out I Need Some Practice_, Leah spoke about the essential elements of Christian Spirituality (prayer and morality, social justice, immersion and belonging to a church community, and celebration/friendship/joy/gratitude) and then posed some questions: What are your spiritual practices? Are they healthy practices? How do you shake off the dust from your feet? How are you living spiritually? What does it mean to live spiritually? How are you practising your faith? Do you share your energy with others? Is it positive or negative energy?

As busy as we all may be, looking inward about our spiritual practice is essential. We cannot offer mercy from a position of power; we must be a ‘guide’, not an ‘owner’: must be vulnerable with others in order to be merciful; must be broken with the broken and not afraid to show our brokenness; and, must receive mercy as much as we give mercy.

During the last session, _Mercy Could Be My Middle Name_, the third session, focused on the Corporal and Spiritual Acts of Mercy. During this session, we were reminded that we cannot offer mercy from a position of power; we must be a ‘guide’, not an ‘owner’: must be vulnerable with others in order to be merciful; must be broken with the broken and not afraid to show our brokenness; and, must receive mercy as much as we give mercy.

As people of the Diocese, I invite you to take time to think and reflect on the information presented. We are Christ’s disciples—are we stuck in the Upper Room, or are we out there living the mission he has called us to?

We cannot give what we do not have. We cannot ‘feel good’ about it if we do not live it. We must be broken; must be vulnerable; must be grateful. We must live in a reciprocal manner that takes it beyond textbooks and into experience, again making the abstract concrete. It is only through seeking understanding and experience with the mercy of God that we can truly live our faith as disciples.

During the second session, _Mercy Could Be My Middle Name_, we reflected on what it means to live mercy. Leah reminded us of the importance of story and presence. Jesus preached through story, so we, too, are called to share our stories. Jesus was present to others, so we, too, need to show up and be present with others. Leah again provided questions that caused us to think about living our lives as Catholics and Catholic school leaders: What bible passage, character or situation resonates so deeply that is also my story? What stories might I share and what is the message? How do I make time and space for others in my life? Am I Christ for others? Am I willing to walk into the crosses of my life?

As people of the Diocese, I invite you to take time to think and reflect on the information presented. We are Christ’s disciples—are we stuck in the Upper Room, or are we out there living the mission he has called us to?

_Room, or are we out there living the mission he has called us to?

Making the abstract, concrete

_by Simon Di Castri, Principal, St. Joseph’s, Victoria_

Once again we approach the end of another school year, and it’s time to reflect on where we have been and where we are going as a school and a community.

It has been a busy year at St. Joseph’s, with students pursuing their studies on and off campus. We have made it a goal that all classes participate in off-campus learning when the opportunity presents itself, and there have been many such opportunities this school year. We are fortunate here in Victoria to have so many great facilities that relate to and extend learning.

One such facility is the Swan Lake sanctuary, which provides fantastic extension learning in various scientific areas: ecology, biology, chemistry, mammals, insects, amphibians, reptiles, microscopes, and so on. Students from kindergarten to grade 7 have benefited from programs offered at Swan Lake, and their learning becomes experiential through hands-on participation—abstract learning translated into concrete terms.

The University of Victoria (UVic) is another great community resource that we are able to tap into for extending student learning. They have provided us with a digital weather station and we are fortunate to have parents at UVic who gave presentations relating to the use and interpretation of the online data collected from the weather station. We also have had people from the Science Venture Program who helped with hands-on experiments examining the properties of air, water, and soil. Scientists in Schools, from Science World, presented a talk on trees and harvesting, and local food production. Our grade 5 students participated in a digital weather station and we are fortunate to have parents at UVic who gave presentations relating to the use and interpretation of the online data collected from the weather station. We also have had people from the Science Venture Program who helped with hands-on experiments examining the properties of air, water, and soil. Scientists in Schools, from Science World, presented a talk on trees and harvesting, and local food production. Our grade 5 students participated in a Victoria also provides many natural environments where students can see and learn about the environment and ecosystem of our surrounding regions. Goldstream Park is an excellent place to learn about the lifecycle of salmon and eagles, or to study the ecology of estuaries. Galey Farms, Oldfield Orchard, and Welland Orchard offer students more opportunities to explore ecology and the environment, and actively consider such things as invasive species, growing seasons and harvesting, and local food production. Our grade 5 students participated in a _Learn to Fish Program_ that introduces youngsters to the art of fishing, exposing them to one of the fundamental cultural activities of coastal First Nations and an economic driver for the province of BC as a whole.

Having the Legislature here in the Capital offers intermediate students the experience of government in action, seeking the work and the history of politics in British Columbia (messy as it may be!?). Students are able to visit the Victoria Municipal Public Works Yard and explore a variety of trades and see what services can be provided to the citizens of Victoria. The IMAX Theatre and the Royal BC Museum are two other venues that provide a stimulating learning environment for students to explore history and natural wonders. For the first time for St.

Joseph’s, one of our grade 5 classes will engage with the Victoria Film Festival, exploring filmmaking and the processes involved.

This year, again for the first time, we have the Songhees Nation coming to the school to share the cultural celebration of a camas harvest and pit cook, which will involve the participation of all students in one capacity or another. This is one small way of introducing First Nations culture to our students in a manner that takes it beyond textbooks and into experience, again making the abstract concrete.

In keeping with the theme of raising awareness of First Nations culture and its contribution to Canadian culture, the grade 5 class hosted a guest speaker from the Victoria Friendship Centre to extend students’ learning and understanding of First Nations culture.

Our Athletics and Phys. Ed. programs are able to make use of such excellent facilities as the PISE center for sports excellence at Camosun College’s Interurban campus, as well as the Commonwealth Pool and the Crag X climbing facility. Our Leadership Team takes learning outside of the classroom, sponsoring random acts of kindness, a RESPECT campaign, and Stations Day in support of the Heart and Stroke Foundation. Our Religion Program sponsors many events to raise funds for the marginalized here in Victoria, as well as supporting Cops for Cancer and reaching out to Haiti, the Masithuthuskanji Project in South Africa, and the Compassionate Warehouse.

So, that’s where we have been this year, and there is so much more that could be included here—a dynamic Athletics Program, a first rate Choral and Band Program, Irish and Jazz dance Programs, and our Religion Program that challenges student to put their faith in action. Now, the big question is: Where are we going?

The answer to that question is that we are embarking on a new orientation to learning established by the B.C. Education Plan that is organized around personalized learning. This is a big change in education, one that shifts the teaching focus to personalized, differentiated learning in the classroom, which addresses all learners’ needs. It involves integrating new curriculums into teaching practice, with a greater focus on experiential, project-based learning and individual student choice based on their interests and preferences. Implementation of the new BC Education Plan will be several years in duration, and will require ongoing adjustments based on the particular students in each class. It is an exciting and challenging time in education, one we embrace with enthusiasm!

We have a great school here at St. Joseph’s, and the education students receive here is broad, capitalizing on the many opportunities presented by our natural environment and the various facilities, institutions, and venues available to us in Victoria. It is a privilege to educate our children in the light of Faith, in this fabulous city in which we live!
Thriving in the Alberni Valley

by Gordon Higginson, Principal, John Paul II, Port Alberni

I

John Paul II school in Port Alberni has had a wonderful 10th Anniversary year and we’re looking forward to our eleventh! We sent our roving reporters Michael K-J and Curtis G out onto the playground in early May to ask John Paul II students some of their favourite things about their past school year.

Many of the students raved about great field trips that the school participated in throughout the year, which included trips to our local pumpkin patch, to the local salmon hatchery, to a house under construction—which gave our grades 4–7 students a chance to see math in the real world—to the Alberni Valley Fall Fair, and to the Horne Lake Caves. Many of the grade 6/7 students indicated that they were eagerly anticipating their trip to Camp Quanoes in Crofton in early June. When students were asked their favourite things about JPII, Michael and Curtis heard over and over from students that ‘friends’ and ‘really nice people’ were their favourites.

It was with heavy hearts and great sadness that we said farewell to one of our JPII Heroes who passed away in April, Mr. Joseph Dol. Joe was very much the heart and soul of our school family. We are forever grateful for Joe’s commitment and unquestionable love for the children, students, staff and school.

We are anticipating another great year in 2016–2017. We have had strong enrollment this spring, especially in Kindergarten, and anticipate starting the school year with over 135 students in September. This spring we have been putting together the foundational pieces for a number of new initiatives next year, including investment in resources for a Sensory Room to augment our Special Education programming, the purchase of a wrestling mat from the local wrestling club in anticipation of starting our own wrestling team next fall, and continued enhancement to our fencing and gate systems to improve the security of our grounds.

John Paul II continues to be a spirited little school that is growing and thriving in the Alberni Valley. We are very grateful for the support of our parish priest, Fr. Stephen Paine, our local parish, Knights of Columbus, Catholic Women’s League (CWL) from the Church of the Ascension in Parksville for generous donations this year and their continued encouragement and prayer.

Students are looking forward to returning to a state-of-the-art earthquake prepared facility in this coming September. This would not be possible without the vision and commitment of parents and the Diocese. Thank you to everyone who has helped to make St. Patrick’s a safer place to be.

Seismic preparedness project nears completion

by Deanne Paulson, Principal, St. Patrick’s, Victoria

he emergency management planning guide for schools, issued by the BC Ministry of Education, identifies key responses that can be appropriately implemented in the event of an earthquake. Drop-Cover-Hold On is the recommended immediate response. This may be followed by a second response, such as shelter-in-place or evacuation.

St. Patrick’s School, with the support and guidance of the Diocese of Victoria, developed a three-phase plan to respond to the provincial emergency earthquake emergency recommendations.

The first phase was the installation of the early warning system. Sensors buried two meters underground on the school property can detect p-waves—the initial jolt of an impending earthquake. The sensor activity is monitored by UBC’s Earthquake Engineering research facility in Vancouver and specialized sirens in the school may sound. The St. Patrick’s sirens proved their worth in providing the initial warning of a 4.7 magnitude trembler on December 29, 2015.

If the sirens warn of an earthquake, the response is for everyone in the school to drop, cover and hold on, and may be followed by sheltering in place. This response generated concern over the need to provide protection in a multi-storied wing of the school and the purchase of earthquake-proof desks from LifeGuard Structures. The desk is virtually stronger than its surroundings and designed to house two people and emergency supplies.

Everyone was very excited to return this past March from Spring Break to scaffolds, fences and the Durwest Construction team hard at work on the seismic safety plan approved and financed by the Diocese of Victoria. Most of the work is being done on the internal support system of the gymnasium and multi-storied intermediate wing. The project is progressing well and is on schedule. For detailed information on the project visit: www.stpatrickslection.ca/media/user/docs/Seismic_Plan.pdf. Staff and students are looking forward to returning to a state-of-the-art earthquake prepared facility in this coming September.

The desk is virtually stronger than its surroundings and designed to house two people and emergency supplies. St. Patrick’s School is the only one in the world with this technology.

Students are looking forward to returning to a state-of-the-art earthquake prepared facility in this coming September. This would not be possible without the vision and commitment of parents and the Diocese. Thank you to everyone who has helped to make St. Patrick’s a safer place to be.

Hands-on learning in Chemainus

by Bern Muller, Principal, St. Joseph’s, Chemainus

students from St. Joseph’s School in Chemainus recently had the opportunity to learn about traditional and medicinal plant uses in our local ecosystem. On April 25, Chief Joan Brown welcomed our children to visit the community of the Penelakut people. Mrs. Karen Charlie graciously guided us around Penelakut Island while explaining the importance of ecological stewardship. She described how cedar, which was traditionally used for clothing and other textiles, and demonstrated how the bark is harvested in the spring. She also pointed out many indigenous plants, and described their traditional and therapeutic uses.

On April 27, Chief James Thomas welcomed our entire school to the Halalt First Nation to take a guided walk by the Chemainus River. Under the supervision of Chief James and other members of the community, our students planted cedar trees and released salmon fry into the river. They were also given a hands-on opportunity to view some of the insects that play an important role in the river ecosystem. Christie Thomas guided students through the forest to identify plants that have supported local people for untold generations.

We are very grateful to our neighbors for the opportunity to visit and to learn more about the natural world around us. Hay ch q’a (thank you) for a wonderful experience!
$52,000 for West Coast missions!

by Connie Dunwoody

It was a night of faith, fun and fellowship at the First Annual Bishop's Gala, held on April 30, 2016. From the moment the doors opened to welcome guests to the final chord from Maureen Washington's outstanding ensemble, Our Lady of Fatima Parish Hall was abuzz with excitement and enthusiasm.

The purpose of the Gala was to raise funds to enable the Diocese to respond to the need and invitation of the Ahousaht First Nation: proceeds from this year's Gala will help fund the ministry of two Religious of the Virgin Mary to accompany the community on its journey of faith.

Parishioners and friends from across the Diocese of Victoria gathered in the beautifully decorated hall, renewing friendships and forming new ones. The Silent Auction was humming with activity as the dulcet tones of award-winning local musician Maureen Washington serenaded those gathered to celebrate.

Island Catering Services provided an excellent champagne cocktail reception, moving easily and unobtrusively among the guests, followed by a delicious, served dinner.

Emcees Brent and Elizabeth Boyd kept the evening moving along and the crowd entertained. Bishop Gary Gordon spoke passionately about his vision for missions in the Diocese: mission as accompaniment; mission to our own peripheries; and mission beyond our own borders; Sr. Vinda Ochoa RVM talked of her own experience with First Nations ministry at St. Ann's parish in Duncan, and her hopes for Ahousaht; and Catholic Student's Association President Sarah Kopriva shared with us her experience ministering in practical hands-on ways in the community of Ahousaht.

After dinner, bidding was fierce for the 'Fish with the Bish' two-day fishing trip with Bishop Gary; the 'Italian Dinner for Eight' to be cooked by Fr. Alfredo Monacelli; and beautiful First Nations art donated by Dave Frank of Ahousaht.

The Gala Organizing Committee is pleased to report that, after expenses, you helped us raise more than $52,000 to further this important ministry. Our deep thanks go out to all those who made this evening possible: gold, silver and bronze sponsors Jawl & Bundon, Durwest Construction, KPMG and Capri insurance; all who donated to the Live and Silent Auctions, and all those who worked so hard behind the scenes to make this event a tremendous success. We are more grateful for your generosity than our hearts can express.

And we're already excited about next year! Remember to Save the Date for the next Bishop's Gala: May 6, 2017!  🎉

Have you ever taken a moment to think about your future spouse? If so, maybe you considered what they will look like, and the qualities you hope they possess. Or, maybe you haven’t dared to look that far into the future. Perhaps we are so unsure of where God’s plan for our lives will take us that we become wary of having any expectations for fear that they won’t be met. Especially where dating is concerned, we may take things one step at a time because dating can sometimes seem like an endless journey of disappointment and heartbreak. Even if we might know the qualities we want in a partner, finding someone who matches those standards might feel impossible. At times like these, it’s vital that we keep in mind that marriage is a special vocation that God calls certain people to. Not everyone is called to be a husband or wife, but if God is truly calling you to the vocation of married life, you can be assured that the man or woman of your dreams is out there.

If you haven’t ever considered your future husband or wife, there’s no better time to start than the present. God knows you better than you know yourself, so He’s already found the perfect person for you, if marriage is your vocation. You and your future partner will truly be ‘a match made in Heaven.’

One thing that you can do to prepare for meeting your special someone is to pray for them daily, even though you may not have met. Pray that they might be open to what God has planned for their life, pray for your future relationship, and pray that they may be patient in waiting to find you.

Something else that you can do, as strange as it may seem at first, is to write your future husband or wife a letter. In doing so, you can really start to visualize God’s plan for your life. You’ll be able to see more clearly that God has chosen a person especially for you, and you’ll find yourself feeling empowered, excited, and joyful as you come to this realization and begin to anticipate seeing God’s plan for your life fulfilled.

One other important thing that will happen as you write this letter is that you’ll need to think about the qualities that you’re looking for in a partner, and it might include everything from personality to whether or not they can be completely open with someone, without feeling judged or humiliated. If you’re dating someone at the moment, you probably already have your list of priorities and qualities at least in semi-order, since you’ll probably have tested this person to see if you want to pursue a relationship with them.

Even if you haven’t met your future spouse yet, don’t lose hope! If this is the path God wants your life to take, it will unfold perfectly, with His perfect timing. God has a plan for you, and you alone. He loves you more than you could ever imagine, so put your trust wholly in Him, sit back, and enjoy the ride!

So, once you have this ‘list’, how do you actually go about writing this letter? Well, the first thing you could do is introduce yourself. Talk about your interests, and what’s going on in your life at the moment. Let your words flow easily, and speak in a warm, conversational manner. Ask your future spouse about their life and how they’re doing. Tell them that you’re praying for them, and ask them to do the same. Express how thankful you are for them, and how excited you are to meet them someday soon. Finally, you might want to tell them the qualities that you’re looking for, and the values that are important to you. What are you willing to do for them? What are you looking forward to?

Even if you haven’t met your future spouse yet, don’t lose hope! If this is the path God wants your life to take, it will unfold perfectly, with His perfect timing. At this point, your job is to be open to whatever opportunities may be presented from above, and pray. When you do meet the person you’re destined to be with, you’ll still need to discern if this is your true soul mate, and prayer will be the invaluable tool to accompany you through this journey.

God has a plan for you, and you alone. He loves you more than you could ever imagine, so put your trust wholly in Him, sit back, and enjoy the ride!

For THIS reason a MAN shall leave his FATHER and his MOTHER, and be joined to his WIFE; and they shall become ONE FLESH.

~ Genesis 2:24

Bishop Gary Gordon is pleased to announce the ordination to the Order of Deacon of Mr. Michael Tinh Tran

Friday, July 8, 2016 at 6:30 PM Christ the King Parish, Courtenay

A reception in the parish hall will follow
All are welcome
Pentecost is upon us. What does that even mean? Well, Pentecost is the feast of the universal Church at which we commemorate the coming of the Holy Spirit to the Apostles 50 days after the Resurrection of Christ. We call Pentecost the ‘Birthday of the Church’, because the Apostles were granted the gifts of the Holy Spirit to effectively and fruitfully begin their mission to preach to all the nations.

When we seek God, and open ourselves to sanctifying grace, we grow in faith and become apostles of the mission too.

But as Pentecost draws near, so too does the end of the ‘Confirmation Season’. Most of us, in one capacity or another, have had the pleasure of attending a Mass over the last couple of months celebrated by our Bishop,—with nervous and excited children, proud parents and grandparents, and delighted parishioners—all there as witnesses in support of the newly strengthened in Christ, through the Eucharist and the Holy Spirit in Confirmation.

It’s a pause for reflection, don’t you think? What were those gifts again? Do I have them? And more importantly . . . Am I using them?

Wisdom—the perfection of faith, to understand the truths of the faith more perfectly, to desire the things of God.

Understanding—moving beyond desire of Wisdom to certitude, so that we may order our thoughts and actions in the world with our Lord’s will.

Counsel—building on Wisdom and Understanding so that we know intuitively how to act.

Fortitude—moral courage that allows us to transcend suffering and to be bold in doing what is right.

Knowledge—a perfection of faith, an ability to discern the will of God from our own will or the temptations of the world.

Piety—the willingness to serve God and worship Him with our lives.

Fear of the Lord—arising out of love, the Fear of the Lord installs in us a deep faith. At our little Saint Francis Xavier church in Mill Bay, he shared with us these charms and delights his flock with his warmth and candour everywhere he goes.

Please note: these are not gifts to be trifled with. They are gifts that should not be stuffed in the bottom of the closet or in the storage room of our hearts because we think they are nice and we don’t want to offend the dear old Aunt who gave them to us. These are gifts we should be wearing daily, hanging on our walls, packing in our purses and wearing on our sleeves.

These are gifts to be used—sought, polished, prayed for and nurtured. They should be delighted in and tenderly cared for so that they arrive well understood, for the sake of our children and grandchildren.

It’s very exciting as we renew our vows with the young. Bishop Gary, of course, should be delighted in and tenderly cared for so that they arrive well understood, by more promptness Your holy inspirations, and observe your divine precepts with greater fidelity.

Grant me the gift of knowledge, so that I may know the things of God and, enlightened by Your holy teaching, may walk, without deviation, in the path of eternal salvation.

Grant me the gift of Counsel, so that I may choose what is more conducive to my spiritual advancement and may discover the wiles and snares of the tempter.

Grant me the gift of understanding, so that I may apprehend the divine mysteries and by contemplation of heavenly things detach my thoughts and affections from the vain things of this miserable world.

Grant me the gift of wisdom, so that I may rightly direct all my actions, referring them to God as my last end; so that, having loved Him and served Him in this life, I may have the happiness of possessing Him eternally in the next.

Amen.

Here’s a prayer, written by St. Alphonsus Liguori (1696-1787)

Holy Spirit, divine Consoler, I adore You as my true God, with God the Father and God the Son. I adore You and unite myself to the adoration You receive from the angels and saints. I give You my heart and I offer my ardent thanksgiving for all the grace which You never cease to bestow on me.

O Giver of all supernatural gifts, who filled the soul of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of God, with such immense favours, I beg You to visit me with Your grace and Your love and to grant me the gift of holy fear, so that it may act on me as a check to prevent me from falling back into my past sins, for which I beg pardon.

Grant me the gift of piety, so that I may serve You for the future with increased fervor, follow with more promptness Your holy inspirations, and observe your divine precepts with greater fidelity.

Grant me the gift of knowledge, so that I may know the things of God and, enlightened by Your holy teaching, may walk, without deviation, in the path of eternal salvation.

Grant me the gift of fortitude, so that I may overcome courageously all the assaults of the devil, and all the dangers of this world which threaten the salvation of my soul.

Grant me the gift of counsel, so that I may choose what is more conducive to my spiritual advancement and may discover the wiles and snares of the tempter.

Grant me the gift of understanding, so that I may apprehend the divine mysteries and by contemplation of heavenly things detach my thoughts and affections from the vain things of this miserable world.

Grant me the gift of wisdom, so that I may rightly direct all my actions, referring them to God as my last end; so that, having loved Him and served Him in this life, I may have the happiness of possessing Him eternally in the next.

Amen.

All the gifts of the Holy Spirit point to the ultimate gift. The greatest gift we can receive is love. The greatest gift we can give is love.

Love is the gift. God is the gift. Every time we go outside of ourselves, with the gifts we have received, for the good of another, we share the gift of love. And we are called to share the gift of love, not in our spare time, not in our best moments, not at Easter and Christmas, but always and everywhere.

Always and Everywhere. That’s super hard.

Our generosity should mirror the generosity of our Lord. Everything we share with another is our gift. To that person, to the Church, to humankind. Is the gift we give love, or is it resentment, anger or criticism?

What are we adding to the pool of all there is to give and receive in our little sphere? Are we using the gifts that allow us to love, express love and emulate the love of God?

Catholic Students' Association: thriving in Victoria!

by guest columnist Sarah Kopriva, CSA President

Exams are ending, students are heading home, and summer jobs beginning—all signs that the Catholic Students’ Association (CSA) is winding down for the end of term. And what a year we’ve had! As CSA president this year, I’ve been lucky enough to have seen so many exciting events and initiatives unfold, new friends arrive and old friends embark on their next adventures, and members of our community grow in faith throughout the school year. Although it is difficult to articulate the great things God has done on campus this year, one can get some idea of what we’ve been up to with a brief recap.

The source and summit of our faith, the Mass, is where we began. Our 4 PM student Mass was celebrated by Fr. Dean throughout the year, providing us with the Christ-centred framework for everything else. We continued our tradition of Soup & Soul after Mass—a soup dinner to provide hungry students with food and fellowship. This year, we hosted a panel on the vocation of marriage, presentations on prison ministry and social justice for the homeless in Victoria, discussions with Development and Peace, several potlucks graciously put together by the Knights of Columbus, two Coffee Houses to showcase student talent, an Advent Party, and relaxed evenings of hanging out, to list just a few. The University of Victoria (UVic) is also blessed to have daily Mass on campus almost every day during the week. When the Multifaith Chapel on campus was closed for renovations in January, Christ took us to the Senate Chambers, the Student Union Building, and to the student residences for the celebration of Mass, all places where Mass had never been celebrated before. We also had the opportunity to have a Eucharistic Procession from Holy Cross parish to UVic, with the Knights of Columbus escorting us. All these firsts reminded me of our Lord’s desire to be close not only to his faithful, but also to those who have not encountered his love yet—and his ability to meet people in the strangest places, without our input, on campus.

My favourite CSA events are the retreats. In September, we set off to Pioneer Pacific Camp with Catholic Christian Outreach (CCO) Western Regional Director Eric Chow to talk about the Merciful Heart of God the Father. In January, with our largest group in recent years, Bishop Gary Gordon (not one to ‘retreat’) took us ‘forward’ to Christ the King Parish in Courtenay and up to Mt. Washington, where we talked about the Good Samaritan and pushed Fr. Dean into a few snowdrifts (some students were quite literally wrestling with their faith). During the term, we were also blessed to have been welcomed by the Franciscan Friary for an Advent Retreat and the Poor Clares for a Lenten Retreat. Both were days of reflection and rest in the midst of busy semesters. In addition to these four retreats, a group of five young women and Sister Elisa of the Religious of the Virgin Mary went on a weekend with the contemplative Dominican sisters, and to witness CSA alumna Bronwyn Lawrie entering the community as a postulant.

In case our weekly gatherings and the retreats weren’t enough, the CSA came together on many occasions for board games, movie nights, and parties. The Newman House community opened their doors for Thanksgiving and Mardi Gras dinners, a post-Easter vigil ‘Resur-rock-tion’ party, and an early-morning men’s Bible study. The second men’s house, ‘Besatti House’, hosted a Halloween party and several birthday celebrations throughout the year. At the end of this year, a women’s house was established, and is preparing to host our community as they live in a prayerful community together.

During Catholic Students’ Week in February, there were several opportunities for outreach including a pilgrimage with a dozen young adults walking down the busy road in the pouring rain with a processional crucifix. That was an amazing way to quietly witness to our faith for Victoria at large and to let them know that the crazy young Catholics are so in love with Christ, they will literally weather a storm for him.

Although I spent all year working hard to try to keep the CSA running smoothly, my reflections always come back to the fact that I am not the one in charge, but only an instrument. God has been so good to our community, and has never let our work fail through when we honestly seek to do His will. The fruits of these labours truly show how full of life the student community is. I am very excited to have this summer to rest and recharge before coming back for one more year as the CSA President with a wonderful, dynamic council, who I know will be working on some very exciting things next year to continue our mission of evangelization and spiritual growth.

Please keep us in your prayers as we discern our direction for the coming year, trying to direct ourselves in the direction God calls, and heading into the fray to bring the light of Christ to UVic. Pray also for the students whom we will encounter, that their hearts would be open to receive God’s word and meet Him through our efforts.
Faith Matters

You shall also love the stranger, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt.

~ Deuteronomy 10:19

This psalm verse from Deuteronomy, clearly rooted in the Old Testament yet curiously appropriate for our times, touches on a fundamental insecurity that comes with being human. We have all been strangers, whether we’ve been to ‘Egypt’ or not! We have all either experienced being ‘the stranger’ or that visceral feeling of having been alienated or estranged.

Whether it is a powerful memory from long ago—the shocking realization that Mom is nowhere in sight and no one around me in the crowd is at all familiar—or a more poignant picture from the present—fleeing for your life with your family in the raging night, with little more than the clothes on your back, cold, hungry, and defenseless.

While our plight as North Americans may be having to endure the ‘Egypts’ of indifferent clerks, rush-hour gridlock or slow service, others—our brothers and sisters—face the brutal realities of bombings, bloodshed and the destruction of lives, homes and livelihood.

In the midst of our culture, often criticized for complacent self-interest and entitlement, an amazing groundswell of compassion and caring has occurred across this country, and in this Diocese in particular.

As soon as parishes in the Diocese of Victoria were alerted to the escalating crisis in the Middle East (this past fall) they immediately initiated support for relief efforts through funerals, or began to organize refugee support committees.

In a short time, collective fundraising efforts by all of the parishes in the Diocese amounted to more than $120,000 raised for relief, which was sent directly to: Aid to the Church in Need – Canada (ACN) 12%; the Catholic Near East Welfare Association (CNEWA) 22%; and the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace (CCDOP) 69%.

The Roman Catholic Diocese of Victoria also entered into a partnership with the Anglican Diocese of British Columbia operating under their Sponsorship Agreement with the Federal Government. Working closely with representatives Rev. Bruce Bryant-Scott and Rebecca Siebert from the Anglican Refugee Sponsorship Coordinating Office has given birth to a unique, mutually enriching ecumenical collaboration.

As a result, nine of our Catholic parishes, along with several smaller parishes (which have partnered with larger parishes), have formed refugee sponsorship committees. These committees are made up of willing volunteers with a wide variety of backgrounds: from banking, to law, to language translation, to healthcare professions.

A Few Highlights

The evening of April 21 saw representatives from five Victoria area parish communities gather at the Diocesan Pastoral Centre for networking, information sharing and mutual support in the work of preparing for our “newcomers”.

The resurrection man

by Jean Allen

In the spring, whenever I look at the world of nature, it feels like Christ is continually whispering, “I am the Resurrection.” Everywhere in the natural realm of life, something is always dying, dead or being resurrected.

To live in Christ is to be continually soaked in the process of dying and rising again.

To us, dying is frightening. It is the ultimate sign that we are not in control. We can do everything in our power to stave off dying and death, but in the end we have no control over the inevitable. The process of dying, death and resurrection is the rhythm of the universe and it’s in our genetic code. If God engineered the whole world to move through this life rhythm over and over from the beginning, there must be something phenomenally beautiful about it. To God, death is not failure and death is not the end. Dying and death are transformative states; they are a necessary bridge to resurrection and to a life that is more abundant than it was before.

Our spiritual lives also encompass this natural rhythm of life. At any given point you are spiritually dying, dead or rising again. You can’t avoid it. Though we all agree theoretically with the idea that we are called to die to the self in the spiritual life, we resist that dying process because when it happens and situations are out of our control, we feel more like failure. When we feel ill, temporarily or chronically, when relationships crumble, when our children make unhealthy choices, when we are deeply disappointed because our plans don’t work out, when life spins out of our hands, we resist the dying. It feels more like something is faulty or we are guilty of gross inadequacy than it feels like clean spiritual dying.

To Christ, death, whether it’s physical or spiritual, is not the end of the world or the end of anything. It is the beginning. It is not a process that is outside of him. He is the dying. He is the death. And he is the Resurrection! In his incarnation he completely embraced the whole rhythm of life to death to life and infused it with his own body and blood. He is not only the Master of the process; he is the process. To live in Christ is to be continually soaked in the process of dying and rising again.

Even before Jesus died on the cross and rose again, he was the Resurrection. The whole world existed within him and was dependent on the rhythmic heartbeat of his love. In Christ, dying is a High Way. There is no other way to get to the Resurrection.

One of our smaller parishes, St. Rose of Lima (aka ‘Team Sooke’/Juan de Fuca’), has literally gone beyond its church doors and has earnestly engaged the greater community of Sooke garnering support in every sense of the word: from her sister church, Our Lady of Fatima, both of their MP’s, MLA, schools in the area, other faith communities, a local service club, a bank, and a variety of local businesses. St. Rose of Lima has extended this outreach to the virtual world, having a dedicated website for the cause as well as a Facebook page. Other parishes taking the lead with impressive plans include St. Andrew’s Cathedral, Holy Cross and St. Patrick’s Victoria.

Parishes outside Victoria are also fully engaged with Fr. Karam Alraban at the Church of the Ascension (Parksville) who is assisting parishes throughout the Diocese with his own experience, sharing his story and working directly to help many refugee families. He is supported by his very effective parish refugee committee.

Val Macdonald at Christ the King parish in Courtenay (whose recent involvement saw the Comox Valley settle its first Syrian family), has 25 years’ experience in refugee resettlement having formerly assisted over 30 Kosovar refugees to settle in the Comox Valley.

These parishes, along with able committees at Trinity in Nanaimo (in partnership with Trinity United) and Holy Family/Notre Dame in Port Alberni, are ably supported and guided by Tony Davis, Assistant Refugee Coordinator with the Anglican Diocese. In addition to his own Anglican parishes (as well as other community refugee sponsoring groups), Tony has taken our Catholic parishes under his wing and has been an invaluable resource as a workshop presenter, and an expert guide in navigating the intricacies of government bureaucracy.

So we have a choice when faced with ‘the stranger’—to run in fear or to embrace, to condemn or to welcome, to not even see or to see something of ourselves. Born of our deep interdependence, compassion is essential to human relationships and to a fulfilled humanity. It is the path to enlightenment, and indispensable to the creation of a just economy and a peaceful global community.

As the Charter for Compassion

At the time of writing we learned that the federal government has limited the intake of refugees into Canada citing backlogs and limited resources for processing applicants. This has directly impacted one of our parishes whose refugee family reluctantly opted out of settlement in Australia when faced with the current uncertainty of the Canadian system. Another letter writing campaign has started in the hopes of convincing the federal government to reverse its decision and dedicate more funds to processing refugee applications.

I

In the spring, whenever I look at the world of nature, it feels like Christ is continually whispering, “I am the Resurrection.” Everywhere in the natural realm of life, something is always dying, dead or being resurrected.

To God, death is not failure and death is not the end. Dying and death are transformative states; they are a necessary bridge to resurrection and to a life that is more abundant than it was before.

Our spiritual lives also encompass this natural rhythm of life. At any given point you are spiritually dying, dead or rising again. You can’t avoid it. Though we all agree theoretically with the idea that we are called to die to the self in the spiritual life, we resist that dying process because when it happens and situations are out of our control, we feel more like failure. When we feel ill, temporarily or chronically, when relationships crumble, when our children make unhealthy choices, when we are deeply disappointed because our plans don’t work out, when life spins out of our hands, we resist the dying. Even before Jesus died on the cross and rose again, he was the Resurrection. The whole world existed within him and was dependent on the rhythmic heartbeat of his love. In Christ, dying is a High Way. There is no other way to get to the Resurrection.

Your reception of the Body and Blood in the Eucharist is an “Amen!” to being absorbed into the dying, death and resurrection process. You are saying, “My Lord—Yes!” to the universal mystery of dying, death and resurrection. To the world, dying and loss is failure but Christ came to show that dying and loss is part of a full abundant life. He saved us from the sting of dying and loss by showing us that he is death and resurrection. In his lifeblood, no pain is useless and no loss represents failure. It is all his Body and Blood.

The Word breathes into the universe, “I am the Resurrection.”

We must breathe with him.
Celebrating the first anniversary of Devotion to the Divine Mercy

By Delmer Samson

The Lord Jesus has promised that all who attend the Divine Mercy Sunday celebration, go to Confession, and receive Holy Communion, will be granted complete forgiveness of sin and remission of all punishment. Jesus told St. Faustina, “I want to grant a complete pardon to the souls that go to Confession and receive Holy Communion on the Feast of My mercy.” (Diary 1109)

It is this promise that a year ago, encouraged a committee of Catholic men and women in Victoria to plan the successful celebration of Divine Mercy Sunday for the first time at St. Patrick’s Church on April 12, 2015, with close to 200 devotees and parishioners. This important event was preceded by a Novena, an unveiling of a new Divine Mercy image, and the celebration of the Holy Eucharist by Fr. Vince Borre and Fr. Alfred Allioto, St. Patrick’s parish priest, who suggested the celebration and offered the church as an ideal place to venerate the image.

The Devotion to Divine Mercy was in the hearts and minds of three Catholic men who in recent years personally felt the presence of Jesus through the Divine Mercy image, three o’clock prayers, and Chaplet songs. Remarkably they were appointed to form the newly established Divine Mercy Devotion Committee in June 2014 under Bishop Demers Assembly #3364, Knights of Columbus. The Committee’s membership has since grown and consists of brother knights, ladies and a priest who acts as their spiritual director. Their mission is to be active disciples and promoters of the Devotion to Divine Mercy in Victoria and overseas including the Philippines and in California.

The Committee leads the weekly Friday Devotion at St. Patrick’s church, Victoria at three o’clock in the afternoon in the presence of the Blessed Sacrament. When requested, the Committee holds Divine Mercy prayers with the sick and their families in the hospital or in their own homes. Spreading the Devotion is fulfilled through group prayers, distribution of prayer booklets, images and rosaries, and works of mercy. In 2015, the Committee was formally recognized as one of the ministries serving St. Patrick’s parishioners and became a member of St. Patrick’s Liturgy Committee.

The first anniversary celebration of the Divine Mercy Sunday was held on April 3, 2016. It was a memorable occasion especially during this Jubilee Year of Mercy. The announcement about this celebration focused on what Divine Mercy Sunday is, what graces are available, and how to receive them. A Novena was held starting on Good Friday, March 25, 2016, and ended Saturday, April 2, 2016, with many devotees expressing joy for having attended and prayed all nine days.

Nine Honour Guards of the Knights of Columbus served at the occasion in full regalia. Devotees and parishioners participated in the procession and witnessed the blessing and veneration of the Divine Mercy image. Sharing food and fellowship after Mass (held at St. Patrick’s in Our Lady of Lourdes Hall) was a happy occasion that included an instant photo slideshow of the procession and the Eucharistic Celebration on that same day, as well as pictures from last year’s celebration.

Devotees of the Divine Mercy in the Philippines, especially in the town of Tubao, Province of La Union, follow and support the Committee’s works by participating in the distribution of relief goods to the poorest of the poor. Tower speakers have been erected in thirteen communities where the Chaplet in song is simultaneously played at three o’clock in the afternoon. Seniors and bedridden residents in the community join in the singing or praying of the Chaplet and seek God’s mercy.

Three Committee members regularly assist Fr. Vince Borre, Chaplain to Extended Health Care Facilities, to celebrate scheduled Masses at hospitals and healthcare facilities in the Diocese of Victoria. They introduce the Devotion to Divine Mercy and recite the Chaplet before each Mass.

The Committee is looking forward to the arrival of the live production of Faustina: Messenger of Divine Mercy from Washington State on June 10, 2016. Faustina is based on the life and message of St. Maria Faustina Kowalska (1905–1938), a Polish visionary whose personal encounters with Jesus have inspired a Devotion to Divine Mercy. The drama brings to audiences a riveting modern story that makes Divine Mercy remarkably relevant and urgent for the world today. Admission is $10. For tickets and additional information, contact the Parish Office at (250) 592-7391 or stpat190@telus.net. Watch the trailer and learn more at www.DivineMercyDrama.com.

Why is the Catholic Church in Canada issuing statements on the Doctrine of Discovery and the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples?

The statements are both responses to Calls to Action of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC). Calls to Action #46 and #49 invite faith communities to repudiate concepts used to justify European sovereignty over Indigenous lands and peoples, such as the Doctrine of Discovery and terra nullius. Call to Action #46 also invites the full adoption and implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Call to Action #49 expands on this with attention to the right to self-determination in spiritual matters, calling for internal reform where necessary, encouraging public dialogue and action in support of the Declaration. Like many other Christian communities, the Catholic Church has supported the TRC process, and is eager to engage with its Calls to Action.

Why now?

The TRC specifically invited each religious denomination to issue a statement no later than March 31, 2016 indicating how they would implement the UN Declaration. Regarding the Doctrine of Discovery, the Justice and Peace Commission of the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops (C CCCB) has been working on a statement for over a year. Controversies about what the Doctrine of Discovery means, calls for its repudiation, and the request from some quarters for Pope Francis to revoke certain papal statements from the 15th century, invited both comment and clarification.

Regarding the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples: is this the Catholic Church’s first response to the Declaration?

No, both the Vatican and the Catholic Church in various countries - including Canada - have responded very positively to the Declaration. The CCCCB wrote to the Government of Canada (with other Christian churches in 2010, and directly, in 2015) urging their support of the UNDRIP when some reluctance was expressed by the government.

The text published today deals at length on religious freedom for Indigenous Peoples and how that freedom was often lacking in Residential Schools. The tone seems apologetic in places. What is the Church beginning to address?

Well, we’re mindful that the request to adhere to the UN Declaration and implement it comes out of a history that has included much suffering, the denial of legitimate rights and the exploitation of Indigenous Peoples and lands. In this instance, it also arises out of the Church’s efforts to listen deeply to the suffering and hurt that occurred in residential schools. While the residential schools were funded by the government, 60% of the schools were administered by Catholics. While many who worked in those schools sought to serve generously and carried out their duties responsibly, we have come to a deeper understanding over the past seven years about how the overwhelming legacy of these schools was disastrous for Indigenous Peoples. Children were in many instances forcibly removed from their families, and were punished for speaking their own language. There was a shocking number of instances of sexual abuse. The TRC process also detailed physical, emotional and cultural abuse. This is the context in which we are being asked to affirm the UN Declaration – above all, it is a context of having been complicit in the deeply flawed policies behind the schools.

As the Church process made very clear, many Indigenous students experienced their traditional beliefs and practices as being belittled, or worse. While Catholicism upheld the right of each person to be free to make their own choices regardless religious faith and spiritual practice, we often didn’t live up to our own convictions, and the experience of a lack of religious freedom is a part of that legacy of suffering.

The text we’re publishing today acknowledges that history and restates our commitment to work for and respect religious freedom.

Where do the apologies, commitments and church statements turn into action? Where does the ‘rubber hit the road’ in all of this for the Catholic Church?

The UN Declaration’s recommendations and vision have the potential to be translated into action? Where does the ‘rubber hit the road?’ Where do the apologies, commitments and church statements turn into action? Where does the ‘rubber hit the road’ in all of this for the Catholic Church?

These are small but, I think, important steps in our local context. Likewise, I hope the present text is one such small step on a long journey towards reconciliation and a renewed covenantal relationship with Indigenous People.

What is terra nullius?

Terra nullius means ‘no one’s land.’ Our research suggests that the term wasn’t actually used until the 19th century. However, it’s recently been used in a sort of retroactive way to refer to the arguments many Europeans made before that time to bolster their land claims. This is probably what most people think of when they hear the words ‘Doctrine of Discovery.’ It’s basically a misapplication of the idea of ‘finders-keepers.

In what way does your text repudiate the Doctrine of Discovery and ‘terra nullius’?

I appreciate greatly the way that the TRC’s Calls to Action ask faith communities ‘to repudiate concepts used to justify European sovereignty over Indigenous lands and peoples, such as the Doctrine of Discovery and terra nullius’ (#49; cf. #46). When we started looking at the concepts of the Doctrine of Discovery and terra nullius, we realized that simply repudiating those terms wouldn’t go far enough. The European powers who unjustly seized Indigenous lands didn’t announce ‘I’m claiming this land by virtue of the Doctrine of Discovery!’ It wasn’t a recognized legal doctrine until the 19th century. The same goes for terra nullius, which is an even newer term and would have been unknown to those who actually committed these historical injustices. Rather than simply rejecting two rather esoteric terms which don’t have a clear, agreed-upon meaning, our intent in the 5 numbered statements at the start of the document is to repudiate all illegitimate concepts and principles used by Europeans to justify the seizure of land previously held by Indigenous Peoples. We hope they will be understood in that light.

Would you say that the Catholic Church is taking the TRC’s Calls to Action seriously?

The TRC process has brought about a painful awakening for many Catholics, and we see our culpability much more clearly than we did before. Both before and during the TRC process, many apologies have been offered. But we know that apologies don’t heal all the wounds. We appreciate the way in which the TRC’s Final Report has not given up on the churches, but rather, called us to integrity and to own past sins and mistakes. We know there’s still much work to be done, both in our own coming to awareness of past offenses and in seeking reconciliation. These documents are a small step on a long journey; they aren’t an end point. We will continue to work with the Calls to Action, and look for opportunities to be engaged in ongoing discussion with Indigenous Peoples as we seek to learn to walk together to build a better future.

St. Joseph’s General Hospital annual employee recognition event

By Jane Murphy, President & CEO

St. Joseph’s Hospital was honoured to host a special evening reception on April 18, 2016, to recognize its 2015 retirees and long-service employees. Approximately 120 guests attended, including representatives of the St. Joseph’s Hospital Board and leadership staff, St. Joseph’s Hospital Foundation Board and the St. Joseph’s Hospital Auxiliary. We were also very honoured to have Bishop Gary Gordon in attendance.

Celebrated were 20 retirees, and employees with 10 years of service (39); 15 years of service (23); 20 years of service (7); 25 years of service (12); 30 years of service (2) and 1 employee with 35 years of service? This year’s event also incorporated St. Joseph’s annual Sister Pat Macaulay Merit Awards presentation.

The Sister Pat Macaulay Merit Award celebrates the achievements of employees, physicians and volunteers who clearly reflect the mission and values of St. Joseph’s General Hospital. The award aims to recognize achievements that model St. Joseph’s values of stewardship, creativity, respect for human life, excellence in care, compassion, justice and social responsibility.

The annual award was established in honour of former member of the pastoral care staff, Sr. Pat Macaulay, who served at St. Joseph’s hospital from 1978 – 2002. Sr. Pat continues to be a member of the congregation of Sisters of St. Joseph of Toronto, who first established the hospital in 1913. Sr. Pat, as she is still affectionately known throughout the hospital and in the wider community, unfortunately could not attend this year’s ceremony in person, however, her congratulations and blessing was conveyed to our very deserving award recipients—six individuals and one group.

In his address, Bishop Gordon referred to the parable of the Good Samaritan—one of the foundational stories of Catholic healthcare—the story of a compassionate person choosing to help a perfect stranger because they were vulnerable and in need. Bishop Gordon expressed to our honourees that each has, whatever their role within the hospital, demonstrated this same loving compassion in support of the care and healing of those St. Joseph’s serves.

St. Joseph’s Chaplain, Brian Ducedre, delivered a poignant Reflective Blessing to open the reception.

Spring Fair to celebrate 75th anniversary

By Jane Bowers, Director of Fund Development

You are invited to take part in the festivities happening at Mount St. Mary Hospital’s Spring Fair, which is being held to recognize our 75th anniversary. Founded by the Sisters of St. Ann in 1941, Mount St. Mary Hospital has a long history of providing compassionate care to some of our community’s most vulnerable citizens.

An incredible team of 10 volunteers has been working hard to organize a fun-filled day! This free, community celebration will be held on Saturday, June 11 from 10 AM – 3 PM. The event will be held at Mount St. Mary Hospital which is located at 861 Fairfield Road (corner of Fairfield Road and Quadra Street). There will be lots of activities for children, including ‘old school’ games like egg and spoon races, bean bag toss, and sack races. There will also be an Imagination Station where children can participate in a variety of fun craft projects. Children may also choose to visit the face painter so they can explore the gated grounds with a kitty cat, puppy dog, superhero, or another favorite character painted on their face.

The smell of caramelized onions will lead you to the BBQ featuring hamburgers, hot dogs, veggie dogs and veggie burgers. The Mount St. Mary Hospital Café will also be open if you wish to purchase a hot meal, soup, salad, sandwich or a sweet treat.

You are welcome to wander the hallways to read the history of the Sisters of St. Ann and visit the special anniversary display which shares Mount St. Mary Hospital’s story over the past 75 years. Or, you may wish to visit the collection of Mount St. Mary residents’ art work created during their participation in art group sessions held by renowned Victoria artist Robert Amos every Friday afternoon. At 11 AM, violinist Jessica Woolard will entertain attendees with her beautiful music and resident Willie Lam will play a short set of songs on the keyboard with music therapist Allan Slade.

Another favorite is sure to be the bake sale table! Yummy treats—everything from cookies and squares to loafs, cupcakes and macarons—will be available for you to purchase. A big attraction will be the silent auction featuring gift certificates to local attractions and restaurants, tickets to summer festivals, gift baskets, golf passes, art and much more.

There will also be tickets on sale for two raffles—the prize for the first one is two tickets anywhere WestJet flies and the second raffle has a beautiful Giant women’s bike as a first prize and a ‘Pamper Yourself’ basket as the second prize.

There is no admission fee to attend this celebration. However, if you wish to make a donation to Mount St. Mary Hospital, all of the funds raised will support the Room to Care campaign.

Your gift will help cover the cost of renovating and repairing the residents’ rooms to maintain their dignity and enhance their quality of life. Donations can be made at the event or online at www.mstmary.victoria.bc.ca.

Put your trust in our professional service
Once again, I must laud the volunteers in the ‘Vestment Re-Purposing Project’ (before I go back to quizzing you on interesting things in the Archives) for their outstanding work in producing a unique piece for auction at the Catholic Missions in Canada gala on April 28, 2016, in Ontario.

Our Diocese has long supported CMIC, as that organization has supported the Diocese over its 107-year history. Though the pages of their magazine often feature pictures of churches with a lot of snow piled around them, the notion of ‘missionary church’ engages all of us, even in the more temperate climes of the Diocese of Victoria. There are regular and faithful donors to the organization, as well as major benefactors across the country. Annually, the Tastes of Heaven gala dinner and auction offers unique treasures to attendees at the event, and this year, the clever crafters and sensational seamstresses here in Victoria worked overtime to produce a bed runner/wall hanging as a unique donation.

Bearing in mind the valiant pioneer priests of this Diocese, and working with their re-dedicated garments, the volunteers took as their theme Matthew 4:19: “Come, follow me,” Jesus said, “and I will send you out to fish for people.” (NIV)

On a black background, the artists superimposed three colorful fishes with glittering button eyes, and painstakingly hand sewed a blue wave design on the bottom of the piece. The side borders are brocades repurposed from vestments which would ordinarily have fallen into disuse and disrepair, had not inspired individuals looked closely at them, and selected them to carry, once again, a missionary message. Though the fabrics may be brilliant or beautiful, the crafters agree on the fundamental idea of the pieces they work on: each of these items carries the spirit of one of the pioneer priests of the Diocese of Victoria, and honors their devotion to the faithful in the region.

May 13 is the anniversary of the apparition of Our Lady to three shepherd children in the small village of Fatima in Portugal in 1917. She appeared six times to Lucia, 9, and her cousins Francisco, 8, and his sister Jacinta, 6, between May 13, 1917 and October 13, 1917. On the 13th day of the month of Our Lady, May 1917, an apparition of ‘a woman all in white, more brilliant than the sun’ presented itself to the three children saying “Please don’t be afraid of me, I’m not going to harm you.” Lucia asked her where she came from and she responded, “I come from Heaven.” The woman wore a white mantle edged with gold and held a rosary in her hand. The woman asked them to pray and devote themselves to the Holy Trinity and to “say the Rosary every day, to bring peace to the world and an end to the war.”

Two years ago, Pope Francis received the statue of Our Lady of Fatima in St. Peter’s Square. He invited those present to meditate on the gaze of Mary. “O Mary, let us feel your gaze as a mother,” he said. “Lead us to your Son, as we are not Christians ‘for show,’ but who can ‘get their hands dirty’ to build with your Son, Jesus, his kingdom of love, joy and peace.”

“How important it is,” the Pope said of Mary’s gaze. “How many things can be said with a look! Affection, encouragement, compassion, love, but also reproach, envy, pride, even hatred.”

“Often,” he added, “the look says more than words or says what words cannot or dare not say. Who looks at the Virgin Mary? She looks at all of us, each of us, … She looks at us like a mother, with tenderness, with mercy, with love: the same way she looked at the Child Jesus, in every moment of his life. … When we are tired, discouraged, overwhelmed by problems, look to Mary.”

On the weekend of May 13 – 15, 2016, Our Lady of Fatima parish in Victoria celebrated this Anniversary with a processional (Friday, May 13), and special Mass and barbeque celebrations complete with Silent Auction and a bake sale of Portuguese delicacies (Sunday, May 15). See photos below.

2017 will see the celebration of the 100th Anniversary of Mary’s appearing to the children. As Portugal prepares to celebrate, and as Pope Francis plans to travel for this centennial event, Our Lady of Fatima here in Victoria will also enjoy special celebrations. Stay tuned for more information!

The central message of Fatima is what the Church has always taught: it is, as Pope Benedict XVI said, “the exhortation to prayer as the path of “salvation for souls” and, likewise, the summons to penance and conversion.” As Scripture tells us, “In the world you will have tribulation, but take heart; I have overcome the world” (John 16:33). The message of Fatima invites us to trust in this promise.
