Explosion of data volumes

Around the world, businesses and organizations are using video surveillance by installing high definition cameras. Moreover, the associated workflow applications are requiring longer periods of data retention and faster analyses. Further acceleration of generated data is due to increased safety and security needs, like body & dash-cam usage and permanent monitoring of sites and assets.

Nodeum responds to this explosive demand for the large-scale storage and archival of data with a highly innovative solution that is recommended by experts and analysts alike.
