hm107 quiet surfaces

hm107

Magnus Long's hm107 Quiet Surfaces collection of tables can be used with his hm106 Quiet Seating to form banquette and canteen seating, as well as being suitable for meeting rooms and office spaces. With their cantilevered ends and looping under frames, the collections beautifully mirror each other's proportions.

The 'quiet' design can create a discreet addition to a space, leaving a feeling of calm - reflected in the design's symmetry.

Available with three table top lengths and in two heights - a dining height and high-working/standing height - with powder coated frames and a wide choice of table surfaces. These include laminate with lacquered birch ply edging, oak or walnut veneer with solid wood edges, Forbo Lino with lacquered birch ply edging and a solid caramel bamboo option. Standard frames colours are black, white or grey/white with other RAL colours available to order.

Bespoke sizes and finishes are available, including raw, lacquered steel.

Since studying furniture and product design at Nottingham Trent University and exhibiting his first designs at the Milan Salone in 2005, Magnus Long has rapidly gained recognition as one of London's most accomplished designers. Having co-founded the prolific and award-winning design collective Viable London, he formally established his own practice in 2012 to design furniture and products that are 'positive, understandable and relevant to their audience' for both contract and domestic markets. He is an associate lecturer at Central Saint Martins University.
