

5 questions to ask your

project prioritization vendor

Here are 5 key questions to ask before you select a tool to manage your project prioritization and selection tool.

01 Is it AHP-based?

Independent research shows that AHP is the best method to use when prioritizing projects. Don't accept anything less.

02 Is it collaborative?

Your stakeholders are the ones who should own the portfolio selection. Does your tool support rich, collaborative meetings?

03 Is there a Kanban?

Evaluating projects is a process and a Kanban, or similar, makes this easier.

04 How easy is it to set up?

Can you do it yourself or do you need the vendor's consultants to do it for you?

05 Is there friction?

The less friction there is for stakeholders taking part in project selection the better. No user accounts and no passwords, please!

Pick a winner!

A good prioritization process can help eliminate waste and can boost project success by up to 57%.

It's worth doing it right.

To access our Ultimate Guide to Project Prioritization, go to:

www.transparentchoice.com/project-prioritization

For an on-demand video demonstration of TransparentChoice's project prioritization product, go to:

www.transparentchoice.com/see-it-in-action

transparent
choice