

DIGITAL RISK MONITORING

Be alerted to threats before they cause devastating damage to your business

Today, organizations are at constant risk from hackers and organized crime groups stealing company data and selling them in bulk on the dark web. Additional threats come from employees selling trade secrets or proprietary information, or disgruntled employees, contractors and activists looking to cause serious harm to the company or its executives.

With the theft of just one user's valid credentials, these cyber criminals can have the master key to your entire organization. Once inside, they can deface your websites, steal additional data, transfer money, or spread viruses, malware and ransomware.

It's an impossible task for your security team to stay on top of these attacks due to limited resources, the sheer volume of data and the complex technical nature of each risk.

"More than 25 percent of CISOs say manual processes and a lack of resources are barriers to their organization's ability to detect and respond to security breaches"
