Learners Edge Announces Partnership with University of the Pacific, Expanding Professional Development Options for Teachers throughout California

Lakeville, MN, February 7, 2017: Learners Edge announces the addition of a new academic partner expanding the reach of continuing education courses for teachers throughout the state of California. While Learners Edge courses have been used by teachers throughout California, a partnership with highly respected University of the Pacific will expand teacher choice and further meet their professional development needs.

Learners Edge offers over 120 continuing education options. Courses are designed for PreK-12 educators addressing many of today's educational needs including curriculum focused upon Autism, Literacy, English Language Learners, At Risk Students, and Bullying. Courses are self-paced and able to be completed without having to step foot on a college campus, providing the flexibility that busy teachers need as they dedicate their time and energy to their classrooms.

"Education changes so quickly," said Joe Cotter, President and CEO of Learners Edge, "We have a team of former teachers and administrators constantly developing rigorous, applicable courses that are geared towards helping teachers stay in tune with the needs of today's children." Cotter continues, "Our new partnership with University of the Pacific Center for Professional and Continuing Education will help deliver that applicable learning to even more education professionals."

University of the Pacific is well known for its Benerd School of Education and also offers multiple Master of Arts (MA) in Education programs along with Doctoral Programs. Enhancing the University of the Pacific's wide-range of Professional Development offerings through its Center for Professional and Continuing Education will meet the needs of new and experienced educators looking to expand their knowledge base.

California teachers interested in exploring and registering for continuing education graduate credit through University of the Pacific, should visit Learners Edge website and select the University of the Pacific as their academic partner (<http://www.LearnersEdgeInc.com>).

About Learners Edge (<http://www.LearnersEdge.com>): Learners Edge has been committed to helping teachers reach the highest level of success in their classrooms and in their careers since 2002. Offering over 120 self-paced, continuing education courses for teachers across the country and around the world, Learners Edge is continually working towards its mission of improving the quality of teaching and learning.
