At the core of Healogics community-based approach to wound care is physician leadership. Healogics physicians are specially trained in the latest evidence-based wound care treatment protocols. Through ongoing education and mentorship, Healogics physicians are trained in the latest advanced wound care technology and research. The physician leader, working closely with the Center's program director, clinical staff and, in some cases, a nurse practitioner, works to ensure care is consistent and coordinated no matter where the patient is seen. Our physician leaders are aligned with our mission and vision and embrace their accountability for the clinical, operational and financial outcomes for the facilities they work in and the patients they serve. Healogics utilizes an evidence-based systematic approach to chronic wound healing in treating an underserved and growing patient population. It is estimated that there are currently 6.7 million people living with chronic wounds. Fueled by an aging population, increased obesity and a rising rate of diabetes, the incidence is projected to increase at a rate of 2 percent annually over the next 10 years.
