

Entech Wins Gator 100 Award from University of Florida

Fort Myers, FL, Feb. 13, 2017—Entech, a Fort Myers-based IT managed services company, recently received the Gator100 Award from the University of Florida (UF). Accepting the award on behalf of Entech’s President Jake Spanberger and Chief Operating Officer, Buddy Martin, were Kyle Cebull and Jordan Azis, who are part of Entech’s Development Team. Spanberger is a UF alum from the Class of 2000, Martin from the Class of 2001, and Azis from the Class of 2012.

According to the UF website, “Gator Entrepreneurs are on the front lines, keeping America from falling behind. They are transforming markets, business practices, industries, themselves, their families, their communities and our economy. In the process, they are creating the future. The Gator100 recognizes Gator alumni who have built successful ventures. It is a celebration of this entrepreneurial spirit and the impressive accomplishments of these companies.”

“Buddy and I are proud members of the Gator Nation, and we are honored to have Entech’s success be recognized by the University of Florida,” said Spanberger. “We’ve worked hard to make Entech a highly successful IT managed services company, and we know our UF education helped us get there.”

About the Award

The Gator100 is presented by the UF Alumni Association and UF’s Entrepreneurship & Innovation Center. According to UF, “Alumni from the University of Florida have created and guided some of the most innovative and profitable businesses in the nation and the world. The Gator100 honors the 100 fastest-growing, Gator-owned or Gator-led businesses in the world. The Gator100 serves not only as a setting where UF’s elite entrepreneurs can gather and share their talents and wisdom, but as an inspiration to fellow Gators to be a part of this exclusive group.” The award criteria include being in business for five or more years and having verifiable revenue of $250,000 in 2013.
