CME Corp Debuts Software Solutions to Automate Logistics, Direct-to-Site Services

‘CME360’ merges capabilities of healthcare equipment supplier for easier customer experience at nation’s medical facilities

WARWICK, R.I. (Sept. 19, 2018) – CME Corp’s \(CME\), a comprehensive healthcare equipment provider and turn-key logistics company, has launched an internal tracking and logistics system which will make its signature sourcing and direct-to-site delivery services even more efficient and transparent, the company announced today.

After four years of developing the CME360 solutions software, the system has been fully implemented, making CME the only national healthcare equipment supplier and logistics company to have such an automated and universal system that enables clients to view their orders in real time and make necessary – and possibly cost-saving – adjustments as equipment is en route or being staged in warehouses. CME360 marries their Infor ERP with the proprietary new suite of software solutions to streamline processes and minimize errors.

“We have been focusing on creating the most efficient product delivery service for our customers, and this software will provide just that,” said Normand Chevrette, CME’s president. “This latest improvement is a significant innovation within the healthcare industry, and it’s one that will save our customers and our staff valuable time. We’ve always strived to be the ‘easy button’ for the healthcare supply chain. Now with CME360, we’re making it even easier while providing the customer visibility of their products as they make their journey from factory to their facility.”

Through the system, product quotes will be improved and simplified into a single platform, even when ordering from hundreds of manufacturers. Once the order is placed, asset management will become more efficient as customers can view and verify their products in real time while they are moving from various origin points, through our CME service centers and into their facilities around the U.S.
